Mexico Mobilizing to Wrest From Cantu Vice Haven That Scoffs at Law in Romantic Lower California

Defended by Isolation, Governor Has Ruled Like Sultan and Gained in Wealth From Illicit Dens on American Border.

By Clair Kenamore.

The most romantic land upon the American continent is about to be the scene of a military campaign, if the rulers of Mexico carry through their announced purpose of abating the "rebellion" of Esteban Cantu, Governor of the Northern District of Lower California. No stretch of territory upon this hemisphere, I truly believe, has such a profusion of wealth, of want, of opportunities, of useless desert, of vice and sin unrelieved, or of fine old forgotten stories.

For nearly 400 years it has been a land of mystery, with many strange tales afloat of the wealth and wonders in the interior. Many an adventurer has gone there seeking the promised things. Some found fortune, but the most of them found only thirst and death. Cortez, the conqueror of Mexico, sought to retrieve his fallen fortunes there. "Nicaragua" Walker, Capt. Cook, Alexander Selkirk, immortal as Robinson Crusoe; Morgan, the buccaneer; Pettie, Bethold and Stanley all passed that way with varying fortunes, and last of the line of adventurers is a dapper little blond man named Esteban Cantu, who has held the country in his hand and ruled it absolutely ever since he saw it.

Cantu was graduated from the Mexican Military Academy at Chepultepec, with honors, and President Diaz attached the promising young officer to his staff. Two years later he was sent to Lower California as assistant to the Governor. The Governor departed soon after, and Cantu took over the job, and he has never relinquished it. The clouds had already begun to gather for Diaz, and the storm broke while Cantu was still new to his place. The long series of revolutions began—Madero, Villa, Carranza and all the rest warred up and down Mexico, but none came near Cantu. He stayed serenely on his job, collected the revenue, and tried not to think of the troubles in Mexico City.

His safety lay in the peculiar isolation of his province, due to geography and politics. His dominions lie on the Pacific Ocean and stretch eastward along the southern boundary of the American State of California. The valuable portion is in truth only a thin fringe along the American border except where in swells some 50 miles southward in the Imperial Valley. The peninsula of Lower California is more than 700 miles long, but only the northern half of it belongs to Cantu and he has not the least interest in the southern half. In all the 350 years of its history, even in the days of its greatest prosperity a century and a half ago, when the territory was ruled by the Jesuits, no wheeled vehicle ever passed from the south of the peninsula to the north. The middle stretches hold only cactus and shifting sand and death by thirst. No army can attack Cantu from the south unless it comes by air.

Mexican Navy No Menace.

On the west is the Pacific Ocean, and Mexico so far has neither navy for attack nor transports to carry troops. On the east is the Gulf of California, a lazy sea always seeming to be asleep, and a few miles of the Sonora border. Behind this Sonora border are leagues of desert through which men cannot march; and the valley of the Colorado River, the most of which has sunk into the sand. I doubt if any capable Mexican General would try to lead an army across that dreary stretch to attack Cantu. On the north is the United States in general and the State of California in particular. There is where politics comes in.

Defended by this isolation from his own country, Cantu set up for himself an independent power when Diaz was overthrown, but he found it best to pretend that his was one of the Mexican states. Lower California never had been self-supporting in the old days, but Cantu made it not only that, but prosperous and wealthy. He made his state a haven for Ceintificos, as members of the Diaz party were known, and while not many of them took advantage of his hospitality, there were enough to form a sort of little court. A man who had been Consul-General at New York was in charge of customs; the man who built the 20,000,000 pesos opera house in Mexico City was engineer in charge of highways and public buildings, and the officers of his little opera bouffe army had served under the great Diaz in the good old days. Cantu set his friends to work according to their various abilities and turned his attention to making the isolated pauper State of California Baju a paying business.

He saw that the Imperial Valley, formerly the most deadly and desperate desert, now newly turned into a great garden by water from the Colorado River, would be his great source of revenue, so he moved his capital from Ensenada de los Todos Santos on the western ocean to Mexicali, a miserable little town against the American border line in the Imperial Valley. Mexicali and Calexico, its sister town across the line, and all the Imperial Valley are below the sea level. Mountains rise all round except to the south where miles of sand hills keep out the sea. The water which feeds this valley comes from the Colorado River in the United States, but before it is turned into the irrigation ditches, it goes across the border into Lower California and is turned back from there. The southern end of the valley is the higher in altitude. Engineering difficulties make it almost impossible to deliver the water to the valley farms and ranches over an all-American route.

Twelve Crops of Alfalfa a Year.

More than 50,000 people live in the American end of the Imperial Valley now and in 1918 its agricultural products were equal in value to the interest on $500,000,000. So rich is the land and so strong the sun that with a water supply as many as 12 crops a year of alfalfa have been harvested. The principal crop is sea island cotton, the highest-priced cotton in the world, but a great variety of stuff is grown. Nearly all the country's early cantaloupes come from there.

Yet Cantu, the Ishmael of his race, the last of the Centificos, holds this valley, its prosperity and not only the wealth, but the very lives, of the people in the hollow of his hand. For he controls the water. He could in a night blow up the flimsy dikes which hold the river between them and turn it toward the Gulf of California, or waste it over the land, washing out crops and roads and making the valley a desolation until they were rebuilt, and that cost millions of dollars the last time they broke.

That shows why the people of California protested so strongly against our Federal Government permitting Carranza to send troops through the United States to attack Cantu, weary as they were of Cantu and his works.

The agreement with Cantu provides that land on his side of the line may have half of the water. This has caused thousands of acres of the Mexican land to be leased by American cotton growers. On this cotton Cantu takes a profit from start to finish. His father-in-law, Frederico Datu, controls the cotton ginning, the biggest profit producer of all.

All Forms of Vice Flourish.

If Cantu had confined himself to these fairly respectable means of deriving revenue, there would have been little complaint against him, but he did not. There are fostered in his dominions enterprises which cater to all the vices, sins and weaknesses of mankind, and the capital, Mexicali, is the center. When I was in Mexicali last in 1917, the Tecolate gambling house conducted by "Booze" Beyers, a sad-looking New Englander, paid $15,000 a month to Cantu for the privilege of doing business. On busy nights there were 56 games of all kind running and the bar, 160 feet from tip to tip, was tended by 12 bar men. The dancehall girls numbered more than a hundred, it was said, and they came from the four quarters of the world, but mostly from the United States. Californians told weird tales of the numbers of American women and girls who had drifted across the line and been lost to sight in the gray land to the southward.

Among the patrons of the Tecolate could be seen many of the 7000 Chinese who live in Lower California, turbaned Mussulmans from India, brought across the ocean to pick cotton, American negroes and whites, Mexicans, Japanese, Englishmen, Scots, Frenchmen, Germans and natives of Thebes and Mesopotamia, but the majority always Americans.

There is but one entrance to the Tecolate, and that is through the front door of the big hall. The minor allied activities of the place are in a big compound behind, which can only be entered from the hall. In the compound I saw some 50 men, some talking and laughing, some sleeping, some sitting gloomily alone. They were pallid, ghastly looking persons, in the clouds or in the depths, and some were well dressed and some were nearly in rags. They were the opium addicts, the cocaine and morphine takers, who could get their drugs in Cantu's country without let or hindrance, if they only had the price. Raw opium was brought from China and refined in Ensenada. United States customs men said a half-million dollars' worth was lying along the border, waiting to be smuggled across.

In the rear room of a big Chinese store I was shown what was declared to be the finest collection in the world of egrets, also waiting the buyers who would try to smuggle them into this country.

Collector Koeln Tells Republicans How to Beat City Hall Machine Tuesday

"BIG VOTE MEANS ITS DEFEAT, SMALL ONE VICTORY"

Warns His Party That, if the "Committee Ring" Wins at This Week's Primary, It Will Face Almost Certain Defeat Next Spring Even Though Presidential Vote Should Save It in the Election This Fall.

Predicts That, if 45,000 Ballots are Cast, the Schmoll Organization Will Go Down to Defeat, but if Only 40,000 or Fewer It Will Retain Its Grip on the Party—Warns of Danger of Scattering Votes for Circuit Judges.

By CARLOS F. HURD.

THE antidote for boss rule in St. Louis was prescribed by Edmond Koeln, City Collector and politician of long experience, in a talk yesterday.

A big vote, at next Tuesday's primary, is the only thing that will kept the Goldstein "Courthouse Ring" from naming three Republican candidates for Circuit judgeships, and from carrying through the program which it has formed, by its alliances, for the naming of candidates for other places on the party ticket. So Koeln believes.

"If more than 45,000 Republican votes are cast in the primary, the machine will be beaten," Koeln said. "If the number is less than 40,000 the machine will probably win.

"The machine, with its precinct chairmen and their assistants, and with the city hall appointees who can be depended on to work for the machine slate, will have 1500 workers out on election day, or three to a precinct. Their votes, and those of persons whom they can get out and practically control, together with city employes who are not actively working at the polls, will come to about 18,000.

Every Vote Over 40,000 Fateful

"All the vote over that number will be the vote which is independent of machine control or suggestion. Of course, the machine candidates individually will pick up some of this vote, and in some cases the opposition to the machine candidates will be scattered among a number of other candidates. This is especially the danger as to Circuit Judges.

"But every vote over 40,000 lessens the chance of the machine's slate being put over."

Since Koeln said this, the number of voters, of all parties, eligible to take part in the primary, has been officially announced as being 135,366, and attaches of the Election Board have figured a probable Republican vote of 45,000 to 50,000 for Tuesday.

Koeln says the Republican nominations this year are equivalent to election. But he adds that the Republican party should not forget that another election is coming next April.

"This fall," he said, "the presidential ticket will bring out a big Republican vote in St. Louis, and that will probably carry the local candidates over. Still, it must be remembered that one Republican candidate failed to get over in 1916, even with the presidential vote to help him. That was Frank Slater, who is running again this year for the nomination for Public Administrator.

"But if the Republican machine succeeds in nominating and electing its slate this fall, it may find in the spring that things have changed a great deal. In all probability it will be very difficult to elect a Republican ticket in the spring if the present machine is in control.

"The Republican City Committee doesn't seem to have meetings any more," Koeln continued. "I am a member, though I tried to get off the committee once. But it's not taking up any of my time at present. Instead of meetings of the committee, at the regular place, there are caucuses in Nat Goldstein's office and elsewhere. I understand they claim to have 24 of the 28 members of the committee attending the caucuses.

"The caucus took up my case Tuesday, I am told, and the decision was that Koeln is serving his last term as Collector. That is interesting. I have been in this office since 1909, and my present term runs until 1923. I haven't thought it was time yet to decide whether I wanted another term or not.

"But I have thought that, if, in time, I should decide to seek another term, I would go before the people on my record and let the people decide whether they want me. Now I see that I was wrong. Goldstein and Bobby Moore and their friends are the ones who are to decide whether I can have the office again, and they have already made up their minds that I can't have it. I suppose I should thank them for giving me notice so far ahead, so that I can be looking about. Not everyone gets two and a half years' notice that he is going to lose his job."

EDMOND KOELN.

Schmoll Lined Up With Goldstein.

At present, Koeln says, Chairman Schmoll of the committee appears to be lined up thoroughly with Circuit Clerk Goldstein, whose doings in the Lowden fund matter Schmoll was mildly criticising before the Chicago convention.

"If Goldstein and Bobby Moore were to be blamed for taking $2500 each, and for the way they handled it," Koeln said, "it would seem that National Committeeman Babler should be blamed more for the way he took and handled $32,000. He has certainly made it hard for the Republican party to carry Missouri. But Schmoll voted to sustain Babler, and since he got back from Chicago he has seemed to have an understanding with Goldstein's crowd.

"The latest thing they have done is to attack Joe Thomas of the Twenty-eighth Ward. The spokesman of the machine in this attack was, of all persons, the chairman of the Efficiency Board.

"It may be all right for Schmoll or McKelvey or me, in the positions we hold, to take an active part in politics. Some may think we ought not to. But everybody will agree that, if there is one job at the city hall whose holder should keep strictly out of politics, it is that of chairman of the Efficiency Board.

Asks What Machine Really Wants.

"And his pretext for going into politics is that Joe Thomas is a member of the city committee and head of a department of the city government at the same time. Now, what kind of an objection is that, to come, as it did come, from the machine?

"Does the machine really want to have the principle established that no one can be on the city committee and on the city payroll at the same time? Look at the list. Twenty-two of the 28 committeemen are on the city payroll, and at least two more, Frank Slater and E. E. Butler, would like to be. Of the 22, nine are heads of departments, including the clerk of the Board of Aldermen, who is practically a department head.

"So it appears that it is all right to hold a city job and sit on the committee, so long as you are with the machine, and all wrong when you are not with it."

Koeln thinks there is danger of scattering the opposition to the courthouse ring in the vote on Circuit Judges. Therefore, he says, every Republican voter in the primary who wishes to beat the ring should vote for the Bar Association selections—Judges Shields and Grimm and Claude O. Pearcy.

Who the "Ring" Candidates Are.

The courthouse ring, which had its nucleus in a group of committeemen holding clerical positions in the courts, is trying, as has been told in the Post-Dispatch, to bring about the nomination of William H. Killoren, Judge Kimmel and E. G. Ossing.

"The Bar Association vote is the best guide for voters in selecting Circuit Judges," Koeln said. "The 400 Republican lawyers who voted in the Bar Association's poll were in the best position to decide on the merits of the candidates for Judge.

"If each anti-machine voter tries to make up his own slate, picking out his personal selections from the 11 candidates, the result will be that the three candidates favored by the ring will get over.

"I would like to support Billy Killoren, who is my personal friend. But I am supporting the Bar Association selections throughout, which is the only way that is effective.

Thinks Labor Erred on Judge Grimm

"The circulation of various slates should not be permitted to interfere with the support of the slate approved by the Bar Association. I am sorry that the persons who got up the labor slate made the mistake of scratching Judge Grimm. He has a good record. The objection made to him by the framers of the labor slate, as I understand it, is that he made some decision which was not in favor of a labor union. What the decision was I have not seen mentioned.

"I do not see it charged that Judge Grimm made a decision which was contrary to the law; only that he did not decide in favor of the union. If Judge Grimm misinterpreted the law, and was reversed by a higher court, on the ground that he had decided against the law, that would be a proper objection to him. If he decided according to the law, he was simply doing what his oath of office required him to do. The objection, if any, should apply to the law and not to the Judge."

Koeln is supporting John W. Dunn, lately his chief deputy, for City Treasurer. He believes Dunn is the sort of candidate who, if nominated and elected on the Republican ticket this fall, will stand being pointed to, in the spring campaign, as a sample of the goods the party has to deliver.

"Look at Dunn's record," Koeln said. "Assistant City Treasurer, then taken from the city hall to the World's Fair, to be detail treasurer and auditor of the exposition company—without bond, by the way. Then handling city money for years in this office. Who would think of comparing Tony Schuler, the machine candidate, a Deputy City Marshal, with him in the matter of training and qualifications?"

How Illicit Liquor Traffic Thrives in St. Louis After 6 Months of Prohibition Enforcement

Local Federal Official Explains That Many Saloonists Take Risks on Fines Because They No Longer Pay $900 License Fee—Poisonous Wares Vended by Bootleggers.

SIX months have passed since St. Louis went dry and St. Louis is still said to be wet. Intoxicants are illicitly manufactured, widely distributed and sold without much caution. Most of the decoctions are called whisky. Some of them are real whisky, undiluted, and are sold at fabulous prices. Most of the real whisky is diluted but still sold at very high prices. The "moonshine" imitations are deleterious and dangerous and sometimes deadly.

When national prohibition took effect Jan. 16 there were 1023 saloons in St. Louis. About 60 per cent of the saloons are still open, ostensibly as soft drink purveyors. More than half of these are suspected by enforcement officers of selling whisky of one kind or another. Downtown it is real whisky, but diluted to increase the profit. In the outlying districts it is mostly raisin whisky, for which saloon keepers pay as much at $32 a gallon. For real whisky they pay as much as $70 per gallon. They dilute it and sell it at 50 to 75 cents a drink.

Whisky, usually diluted, can be obtained through bellboys at most of the hotels at $20 to $25 a quart.

Doctors write whisky prescriptions for $3 a pint and druggists fill them for $3 a pint. It costs them $25 for a case of 24 pints.

Force Inadequate.

Enforcement of the Volstead act is only partly effectual because of the inadequacy of the enforcement organization. It consists of Enforcement Officer Frank T. Diggs, two narcotic suspects and eight enforcement officers for St. Louis and the eastern half of Missouri and part of Arkansas.

Infliction of heavy fines has not proven a sufficient deterrent. Judge Farris has announced that hereafter, in new cases, he will imprison those who are guilty.

Enforcement of prohibition is difficult here because it lacks the active support of public sentiment. There is less volunteer co-operation with the enforcement officials than in places where the dry sentiment is more pronounced. Persons who have knowledge of violations of the law do not report to the authorities, although, under the penal code, they may be fined $500 or imprisoned three years, or both, for failing to do so.

St. Louis policemen are not specifically charged with the duty of enforcing prohibition because it is not a State or city law, but they are under the same obligation as other citizens to report violations of the Federal law that come under their notice. Both the St. Louis police and county officials are co-operating excellently with the enforcement officers, according to David Nolan, who is in charge of the enforcement squad here while Chief Enforcement Officer Frank T. Diggs is away on a vacation.

Saloonists Take Chances.

"Sixty per cent of the St. Louis saloons are still open," said Nolan, "and 50 per cent of them are violating the law, "but they are not fooling the Government. We are getting around to them and getting the evidence on them and convicting them as fast as our limited force will permit. If we had more men we could keep them busy.

"Our maximum force is small, and there are times when it is greatly diminished, so far as St. Louis is concerned, by the assignment of men to out-of-town work. Maybe we have a case, say, at Kirksville, which requires the services of two men. It may take them three or four days or a week. There are times when we have only two men available for work in St. Louis.

"We are giving the most of our attention to the stills, partly because they are the source of supply and because they can be easily moved. We may know that a retailer is selling liquor, but he is in an established location and cannot elude us by moving and we can get him any time that we want him, so we let him alone and go after the still, which today is in one place and tomorrow may be in another place.

"The majority of the illicit manufacturers are foreigners, with Italians predominating. Before prohibition these were accustomed to manufacturing wine for home consumption and knew something about distilling. When prohibition created a demand for distillations they found that they could turn their knowledge to profitable account and many of them became 'moonshiners.'

"They are willing to take the risk of prosecution now, because of the large profits, but increasing severity of penalties will deter them after a while. The law is not severe on first offenders. The penalty provided is a fine not in excess of $1000 or imprisonment for not more than six months. When they have pleaded guilty the punishment has usually been a fine of not more than $500. But a second offense is a felony and the fine may be $2000 and the imprisonment may be five years.

"Most of the retailers are saloon keepers who have continued in business. Some grocers are retailing, usually in larger quantities than the saloon keepers. Four-fifths of all the liquor sold at retail is raisin whisky, the alcoholic content of which makes it vary from 65 proof to 100 proof. The manufacturers distill an alcohol that runs 160 proof and up. The retailer bargains with the manufacturer on the basis of 10 gallons. He pays for 10 gallons, but only gets five. Then he adds an equal amount of water and has his 10 gallons.

Raisin Liquor Dangerous.

"Raisin whisky is dangerous. It is made out of the cheapest raisins, which contain seeds, stems, sticks and parts of the vine. These produce a certain amount of wood alcohol. There may not be enough of this poison to cause death, but it does not take much to cause blindness.

"Most of the real whisky that is sold is diluted. The person who sells it is doing so for profit only and the person who buys it is not in a position to complain about the quality of what he gets."

The raisin whisky makers deliver their product to the saloons early in the morning. The saloon keepers usually keep on the premises only enough liquor for the day's trade. Some keep it in bottles the color of which disguises the contents. Most of them keep it in tin shakers or other receptables which are placed near the sink under the bar, where it can be toppled over if there is a raid, permitting the evidence to flow into the sewer.

When a still is located it is raided and seized, together with whatever liquor or mash is found on the premises. If distillation is not complete it is finished by Nolan, who has in a corner of his office the only legal still in St. Louis. The completed distillation is held as evidence.

How Cases Are Made.

Cases are made against saloon keepers by sending a man to purchase a drink. If he gets it he gives a signal as he emerges and the place is immediately raided, the proprietor and everybody connected with the place arrested and the liquors seized as evidence.

Bootleggers are captured by sending out a "stool pigeon," who makes arrangements to get liquor at a rendezvous. Officers are there when the tryst is kept and the bootlegger is arrested with the goods on him.

Abuse of the prescription privilege is limited only by the good faith of the physician and the number of prescription blanks issued to him under his permit. Each physician is permitted to have six quarts of whisky in his office for use in his practice. He can write 400 prescriptions a year, each calling for a pint of liquor, which must last the patient for 10 days.

The physician's directions are written on the label. "Teaspoonful when needed" is the usual form. Some phy-

Misstatements About Dr. Hyslop.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The generally fair attitude of the newspapers of this country toward the late Dr. J. H. Hyslop, both in editorials and news items, is gratifying. Not all can subscribe to his matured conclusions, nor is it expected. But it is inevitable that rumors should arise and errors be made, and it may interest your readers to have some of these appearing in various papers corrected.

A story has been printed broadcast that Dr. Hyslop and some friends had a meeting some years ago, that each wrote and sealed a note afterward kept in the safe of this society, not to be opened until the death of the writer, and then to be compared with any purported attempt on the part of the spirit to give the contents; and that several of the company have died, but no success achieved. It is strange if this story is true that the officers of this society knew nothing about it, and no such notes or record of them appear. I wish that the person who set this story afloat would give his authority for it.

Another form of the story is that Dr. Hyslop "was one of three members who pledged that they would, after departure, communicate with their associates in such a way and to such direct purpose that the authenticity of the message from the unseen world could not be mistaken." To anyone who is acquainted with Dr. Hyslop's caution and view that to be able to "communicate" is an exceptional rather than a usual and easy thing, this version refutes itself.

"He was a believer in the possibility of photographing spirits and weighing them." This is another statement set afloat. But Dr. Hyslop was a believer in neither. He was willing to inspect or try any experiments—that is all.

Another statement is that "he (Dr. Hyslop) reported that Mrs. Hyslop (in a posthumous communication) had told him of a woman of prominence and wealth who was anxious to have him marry her." The fact is that he reported the result of his asking Mrs. Hyslop what she thought of his own afterward abandoned thought that he might marry again—a very different thing.

It has been represented that, since Dr. Hyslop died, the offices of the Psychical Research have been in a state of tiptoe excitement, awaiting a message from him. Really they have been pursuing their accustomed courses, and making no special efforts of the kind. If he can communicate he will manage that himself.

A report has been started that the American Society stands back of a certain Canadian medium and that it was in its offices that he gave out the exceedingly doubtful message from Lincoln. All untrue.

Nor did I, as stated, at his funeral say: "I firmly believe that he who lies there will manifest himself to us in his own good time," and expressed no belief of the kind.

No Cars for Coal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Since March 1 the coal mines have faced a car shortage. Why? Perhaps the reason lies here. Last Friday, while passing over the Eighteenth street bridge, there was in the yards a train of 14 coal cars loaded with automobiles. Saturday more were seen coming over the Merchants' Bridge. No wonder a coal car shortage if automobiles are hauled in coal cars. Send the coal cars to the mines.

FAIR PLAY.

Likes Harding's Speech.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to take exception to your criticism of Mr. Harding's speech of acceptance. I regard it as one of the most impressive utterances a candidate for the presidency has ever made. No man can read it impartially without being impressed with the fact that here is a man who realizes we have problems to solve which are going to tax the capacity of our ablest statesmen. Senator Harding does not promise to smooth out every wrinkle on the face of the body politic by a patent process that works while you sleep. He frankly admits that the questions before us are too much for any one man, but he undertakes to give to their solution the best of his own brain and heart and to avail himself of the best brains obtainable.

I am a Democrat of the old school. I have no sympathy with the nostrums that have been prescribed by the reformers who are always looking for office as the first step in curing the public ills. The truth is that the most crying need in this country today is to bring about a fair day's work for a big day's pay. Mr. Harding is clear on that point. He admits that the laborer is worthy of his hire, provided he works. But drawing fancy wages and loafing on the job can have only one finish, and that finish is famine. I do not know whether I shall vote for Harding. It depends on what Gov. Cox says. But the Democratic candidate will have to convince me that he is level-headed, that he will look facts in the face, and that he will surround himself with the ablest men he can find, or I shall vote for Warren G. Harding, minister of the gospel of common sense.

DEMOCRAT.

SAVE THE BENCH.

In a forceful interview printed on another page of the Sunday Post-Dispatch, City Collector Koeln, who finds the Courthouse Ring too malodorous for his seasoned political nose, emphasizes the necessity of a large Republican vote in the primaries in order to defeat the Ring's bench slate and other unsavory candidates.

Mr. Koeln, who knows what he is talking about, says that a vote of 45,000 in the Republican primaries will insure the defeat of the Ring, but a vote of less than 40,000 will mean in all probability the victory of the Ring and the consequent putrefaction of the Republican organization and administration to such an extent that the party will face defeat in the spring elections. He estimates the assured Ring vote at 18,000.

Mr. Koeln, as a practical politician, emphasizes the necessity of concentrating the anti-Ring vote on one judiciary ticket, as the Ring concentrates its votes on one ticket. While recognizing, as we do, that there are good candidates outside of the Bar Association's approved candidates, he declares that the only way to assure the defeat of the Ring's candidates is for anti-Ring Republicans to vote for the association's selections. These are Judges GRIMM and SHIELDS and CLAUDE O. PEARCY for the Circuit bench; Presiding Judge REYNOLDS for the St. Louis Court of Appeals and WILLIAM M. BATES for the Court of Criminal Correction. The Ring candidates against these are, for the Circuit bench, WILLIAM H. KILLOREN, Judge KIMMEL and ERWIN G. OSSING; for the St. Louis Court of Appeals, City Counselor DAUES and for the Court of Criminal Correction, Judge KRUEGER, whose record condemns him. The candidates for the Circuit bench on the Democratic ticket approved by the Bar Association have no opposition, but for the Court of Appeals the association has approved HICKMAN P. RODGERS. The Ring is running ANTON SCHULER to beat JOHN W. DUNN, an exceptionally fit candidate for City Treasurer.

The Globe-Democrat, which supports the Republican party, and because it wants the party it supports to be clean and to maintain an honest and capable judiciary, stands with the Post-Dispatch in urging the Republicans to vote against the Ring's slate and for the candidates approved by the Bar Association. It is a matter, not only of good public service on the part of the Republican party, but of party preservation. The party cannot submit to the control of corrupt and selfish bossism; it cannot, in particular, surrender the bench to corrupt boss control, without discrediting itself and driving its decent voters to revolt.

The Post-Dispatch, in appealing to Republicans to defeat their own ringsters, has only one end in view, the rescue of the bench from the control of bossism and the preservation of the processes of justice and law enforcement from demoralizing influences which strike at the safety of the life and property of all citizens, and at the foundation of good government. To this end we are willing to work with Republicans; we are willing to work with Democrats; we are willing to work with any party or any group of citizens.

We are working now with Republicans because the issue of good government lies in their hands. Will Republicans consent to Boss dictation? Will they take any kind of ringed and bound candidates for the judiciary and other important public offices handed out by self-constituted party bosses working for their own foul purposes?

Are there 25,000 Republicans in St. Louis who will go to the primaries and vote for unbossed candidates and an untrammeled, capable judiciary?

THE PULITZER FLYING TROPHY.

The Pulitzer trophy to be competed for in a cross-country flight this fall is a beautiful work of art, representing a winged female figure with arms extended above her head, presenting a wreath to a monoplane in flight. Its value is $5000. It was tendered to the Aero Club of America, which set aside a national fund of $20,000 as an additional inducement for the competition. In all, prizes aggregating $100,000 await the winner of the projected transcontinental flight.

This, it is planned, is to be a safe flight. It will not be a haphazard, devil-may-care dash across the continent, regardless of weather and other conditions, but a scientific, carefully considered, businesslike contest, both in speed and expert aviation, the results of which are expected to be of great aid to the future of commercial, Government and individual flying for all purposes.

The race will take place late in October or early in November. Conditions during and since the war have prevented it until this year. Now, when all conditions are favorable, we may expect to witness one of the most notable achievements in the history of aviation.

ST. LOUIS SCORES IN OPERA.

The season of municipal opera, which closes tonight, crowns this novel and admirable venture of St. Louis with success.

St. Louis has the honor, not only of having the only municipal opera in the country, but of having one of the few operatic ventures in history which ended with a surplus instead of a deficit. The receipts will exceed the expenditures by a handsome margin, assuring the continuation of the project.

Congratulations and commendation for their extraordinary achievement are due the Mayor and his official associates, the men who stood back of them and the management and the forces which have produced the operas. The people of St. Louis have awakened to the beauty and charm of excellent and entertaining operatic productions in the entrancing surroundings of the municipal open-air theater. They are supporting the venture and understand the wonder and admiration of visitors to St. Louis who have enjoyed the performances in their beautiful setting.

Considering the difficulties of producing good light opera under the conditions prevailing on the stage, the management and the performers have done exceedingly well. They have maintained a happy balance between popular summer taste and good music. Several notable productions have been interspersed with works of lesser merit but popular appeal. All music is more or less educational to varying elements of the people and a fair blend has been attained. The enjoyment of the public is manifest. Better things may be expected with the building up of forces suitable for the best works and familiar with good operatic scores. We may realize the benefits of exchange in productions and forces when other cities follow the example of St. Louis.

But so far, good. Our al fresco opera season is unique. It is bully. It confers distinction upon St. Louis.

OKLAHOMA'S SENATORIAL FIGHT.

The contest for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the Oklahoma primary has properly attracted more than State attention. The contestants are Senator Gore, candidate to succeed himself, and Representative Scott Ferris of the Lawton district.

Throughout the canvass Mr. Gore has been on the defensive, because of his war record, which was 100 per cent abominable. He was not only opposed to war, but long before the declaration of war he objected to our doing anything to which German Junkers might take exception. It was Mr. Gore who introduced in the Senate the companion piece of the infamous McLemore resolution in the House, which not only would have kept Americans off of armed ships, and, therefore, off the sea, but which would have taken the direction of our foreign affairs out of the hands of the President. Gore was one of the eight Senators that voted against the draft bill. He was absent from the Senate when the declaration of war was passed, but he afterwards frankly said that he would have voted against it had he been present. He voted against raising the soldier's pay to a dollar a day, and his sarcastic speech of opposition to that proposal was shockingly offensive.

The record identifies Gore with almost every effort to harass the administration and retard the Government's war preparations. Cheek by jowl with such obstructive tacticians as La Follette, Gronna, McKellar, Hardwick and Vardaman, Gore championed every plot calculated to delay our participation in the struggle and even originated a few Fabian contrivances. It was Gore who proposed to crush the Kaiser's legions with armies of Chinamen. Gore has also been an aid and comfort to Lodge in the fight on the League covenant.

Mr. Ferris has had 14 years' experience in the House. He is able and industrious. Throughout the war period he supported the President loyally. Like others, he held that private conviction should be subordinate to the general cause. He defended the policy of resolving all doubt in favor of the administration because of the administration's comprehensive knowledge of what the crises demanded.

The Hardwicks, the Vardamans, the McLemores, whose fellowship of hostility to the administration's war program included Senator Gore, have disappeared from public life, repudiated by the constituencies they so sadly misrepresented. Oklahoma will be congratulated on consigning Senator Gore to the same oblivion.

That uncompromising progressive, Frank Munsey, is going to support Senator Harding, and no one need be surprised if the Republican candidate should also be approved by that ripping old radical, Judge Gary.

KATYDID.

Seated in the barber's chair,
Snipping, snipping at my hair,
So much snipping takes me where
Katy did it! Katy did! Snip! Snip! Snip!

Ghostly woodland barbers they,
With their tireless scissors play,
Snip the summer night away—
Katy did it! Katy did! Snip! Snip! Snip!

What is it you're snipping short,
As you in the bushes sport?
And the snippers small retort—
Katy did it! Katy did! Snip! Snip! Snip!

In the forest's bosky glades,
How they ply their tiny blades,
Lurking there amid the shades—
Katy did it! Katy did! Snip! Snip! Snip!

Sultry is the summer night,
Pray what magic hid from sight
Clipped the zephyr's pinions light?
Katy did it! Katy did! Snip! Snip! Snip!

Little woodland barbers, keep Vigil in the greenery deep,
Snipping, snipping me to sleep,
Katy did it! Katy did! Snip! Snip! Snip!

SIN—ICISM.

Ego.

The egoist is merely a man who has faith in himself.

We call him an egoist because we purposely misinterpret this faith.

The egoist is merciful because he has suffered the anguish of jealousy's insult.

Attacking an egoist is the most disgusting form of egoism; attempting to reform him is sacrilegious.

The egoist is an idealist, but too often a martyr to his endurance of scorn.

The egoist thinks in terms of "I" for "WE;" the reformer thinks in terms of "WE" for "I."

The egoist is the creator. But when did the creator ever receive his just due?

Egoism should be the theme of the universal epic.

THE DOUBLE NEGATIVE.

From the New York Times.

Few linguistic phenomena are sadder than the havoc that has already been wrought by Latinistic purism. The child who says "I haven't got no pencil" is made to feel a grammatical criminal. Nothing is more remorselessly dinned into the infant mind than that two negatives make an affirmative. Yet the French, the most logical of people as we are the most illogical, say "Je n'ai pas de crayon" and are unashamed. Whatever the logic of the locution, it gives a rhythm and an emphasis that without it are impossible. And it was perfectly good English until the Latinizing purist was let loose upon us. Chaucer's Host says:

But certeinly no word ne wryteth he
Of thilke wikke ensample.

And again:

Of swiche unkinde abhominaciouns
Ne I wol noon reherse.

Is it possible that the grammarians are in the case of Chaucer's Somnour?

And whan that he wel dronken had the wyn,
He ne coude speke no word but Latyn.

"I haven't got no pencil" is wrong, not because it is illogical, but because, unfortunately, it no longer accords with good usage.

A genuinely English grammar would be comprehensible, and therefore easier to master. It would prevent, as nothing else can, the steady wearing away of the force and flavor of our mother speech. That our grammarians refuse to face this aspect of the question affords a curious commentary upon the nature of the grammatical mind.

IN WHICH WE GET OURS.

In your amusing discussion on a recent Sunday in the Just A Minute Column of Mr. Bryan's inconsistent statements on the prohibition question you use the following language: "It looks as if one side of the brother's mouth didn't know what the other side is saying."

The different sequence of tenses of the verbs in this sentence puzzles me, and I shall be greatly obliged if you will set me straight. L. C. W.

We'll set the sentence straight. It looks as if one side of the brother's mouth doesn't know what the other side is saying. Thanks.—Just A Minute.

CRIMINAL ANARCHY ACT.

FLOYD DELL in the Liberator.

THE devious and far-reaching implications which the criminal anarchy act put upon my remarks as a hypothetical Communist, compel me to show, in an equally roundabout way, what the tabooed word "revolution" really means. If I said, without explanation, that I believed in revolution, it would be legally taken to mean that I want to go out next Thursday morning in company with my fellow "reds" and stick up posters to the effect that the Co-operative Commonwealth is hereby inaugurated. But, on the other hand, if I say that I do not believe in revolution (as in this silly sense I certainly do not), then I am understood to be hypocritically pretending that I think a change from capitalist to working-class management of industry can be effected by a series of municipal ownership bills here and there. As a hypothetical Communist, let me merely say that I am prevented by the criminal anarchy act from explaining to you exactly how remote my intentions are from criminal anarchy. There are, by a generous estimate, half a dozen people in the whole country who are eager to go out and start throwing bombs. But there are several hundred thousand people who want to start the working class along the road to communism. The criminal anarchy act is not designed to restrain those six lunatics from throwing bombs; it is designed to keep the several hundred thousand Communists from explaining to the several million workingmen how much more orderly, peaceable and generally better communism will be than capitalism. That is the truth.

THE NEW DIPLOMACY.

COUNT BERNSTORFF, in Neue Freie Presse, of Vienna.

PRESIDENT WILSON was the first prominent statesman to emphasize during the war the necessity of a new and better diplomatic system, to insure the future peace of the world. It is not my intention to enter the controversy regarding Wilson's politics and personality. I have dealt with them fully in my book, "Germany and America." It is enough here merely to point out that Wilson stated problems but did not solve them. We may consider the physical breakdown of the President either the cause or the consequence of his failure However that may be, I consider it the mission of the German people to take up with peaceful means the fight for a new diplomacy where Wilson relinquished it.

ANGLO-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP.

PHILIP GIBBS in Harper's Magazine.

I HAVE not encountered a single American in Europe who has not expressed, with what I believe is absolute sincerity, a friendly and affectionate regard for England, whose people and whose ways of life they like, and whose history, literature and ideals belong to our united civilization. They have not found in England any of that hostility which they were told to expect, apart from a few blackguardly articles in low-class journals. On the contrary, they have found a friendly folk, grateful for their help in the war, full of admiration for American methods, and welcoming them to our little old island. They have gone back to the United States with the conviction, which I share with all my soul, that commercial rivalry, political differences and minor irritations inevitable between two progressive peoples of strong character, must never be allowed to divide our two nations, who fundamentally belong to the same type of civilization and to the same code of principles. Most of the so-called hostility between us is the mere froth of foul-mouthed men, on both sides, and the rest of it is due to the ignorance of the masses. We must get to know each other better. Americans in Europe have learned to know us and to like us, and all of us who have crossed the Atlantic the other way about have learned to know and like the American people. For the sake of the future of the world and all the hopes of humanity we must get to the heart of each other, and establish a lasting and unbreakable friendship. It is only folly that will prevent it.

Events in the Social World

St. Louisans Who Stayed at Home This Summer Find Season Far From Dull With Host of Dinner Dances at Country Clubs, House Parties and Picnics—Meramec Scene of Many Week-End Festivities.

WHILE it would seem that the entire social world of St. Louis had gone to summer resorts this year and that there were not enough girls in town for a foursome of bridge, there is a regular season of gaiety here as evidenced by the popularity of the dinner dances at the country clubs. With the swimming pools, open-air theaters and picture shows, al fresco cafes, picnics, country clubs and house parties, there is really plenty of entertainment for those who have preferred to stay at home.

Almost every week-end there is a large house-party or picnic at the Dick Donnelly's country home near Glencoe, and several groups have already planned for picnics on the Meramec for every Sunday in August. There are house-parties every week at Arcadia, where many St. Louisans have summer cottages, and at many summer homes on the Missouri and Meramec rivers.

At Sunset Hill there are two dinner dances every week, and all of the other clubs have Saturday night dances.

An engagement of much interest to society which has just been announced is that of Miss Prudence Zelbig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Zelbig of the Westmoreland Hotel to Oliver N. Clifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Clifford of 22 Westmoreland place. Miss Zelbig is with her parents at their summer cottage in Wequetonsing. She is a sister of Mrs. John Young Brown, Mrs. Edwin Stith and Mrs. James P. Whiteside. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville and made her debut a few seasons ago. She is an active member of the Junior League.

Mr. Clifford is a graduate of Yale and a member of the Racquet, St. Louis, Bellerive and St. Louis Country Clubs. He resides at the Racquet Club.

The wedding probably will take place in the fall.

The marriage of Miss Corinne Lois Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Fuller of 32 Washington terrace, and Joseph Glaser Jr., will take place Tuesday evening at 7:30, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride will be attended by Mrs. Leo Fuller as matron of honor, and Mr. Glaser's brother, Carl Glaser, will be best man.

There will be about 65 guests present at the ceremony, including members of the families and close friends. A dinner at the Columbian Club for the wedding guests will follow the ceremony.

Miss Fuller was graduated from Mary Institute in 1917 and attended Washington University. She did not make a formal debut, but both she and Mr. Glaser are popular members of the Columbian Club set.

Mr. Glaser is the son of Mrs. Carrie Glaser of 5116 Washington boulevard. He is a graduate of Harvard.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Harbaugh of 2 Lenox place, with their daughter, Miss Olivia Harbaugh, will depart this week for Chicago, where they will reside. Their younger daughters, who are at a summer camp in Michigan, will join them later in Chicago.

An interesting engagement which has just been announced is that of Miss Patti Ewing Teasdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Teasdale of 6160 Westminster place, to Carl P. Cannon of Rogers, Ark. The wedding will take place Aug. 25 at the Delmar Avenue Baptist Church.

Miss Teasdale is a graduate of Hosmer Hall. She is a sister of Mrs. Walter Combie, who was Miss Katherine Teasdale.

Mr. Cannon received his education at the University of Kansas and served with the army in France for two years. The couple will reside in Rogers.

Mr. Kauffman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Kauffman of "The Arches," Webster Groves.

The engagement of Miss May Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Henry P. Stewart of Kansas City, and Dalton Louis Kinsella was announced recently in Kansas City. Miss Stewart is a sister of Mrs. Edward S. Murphy of the Washington Hotel. She attended the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville. Mr. Kinsella is the son of Mrs. William J. Kinsella of 4422 Lindell boulevard. The wedding probably will take place in the fall.

The engagement of Miss Eugenia Uhrl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Uhrl of 2163 South Grand avenue, and James A. Maritz was announced Tuesday afternoon at a bridge party with which Miss Uhrl entertained at her home for about 20 guests.

CITY ENDS SECOND OPERATIC SEASON WITH A SURPLUS

After Final Performance Tonight of "Katinka" Estimated Excess Will Be $10,000.

Tonight's performance of "Katinka" brings to a close the second season of municipal entertainment at the open-air theater in Forest Park, with the assurance, according to figures given out by the management, that the enterprise has not only paid its way, but has earned a surplus.

The estimated cost of the eight weeks' season is stated at $125,000. After the receipts were counted for last Thursday night's performance, it was found, according to the figures made public, that up to that time the total income had been $128,321.50, or $3321.50 more than the estimated total cost. There still remained three performances to be given, which were expected to run the surplus up to the neighborhood of $10,000.

The management stated that during the seven weeks and the first three performances last week, the total paid admissions numbered 144,299. In addition, several thousands of persons saw the productions from the free seats.

The books of the Municipal Theater Association are said to be in the hands of public accountants, and a statement on the finances of the undertaking is promised later.

At the closing performance tonight Mayor Kiel, president of the Municipal Theater Association, is to make an address, and introduce to the public members of the committee which has been in charge of the entertainment.

Missouri Veterinary Association.

The Missouri Veterinary Medical Association will hold its 1921 convention here, following the invitation of Charles F. Hatfield, secretary of the St. Louis Convention Bureau, who spoke before the association's convention in Springfield last week.

She said that her idleness had caused her a loss of $1500 in wages and she asks $5000 punitive damages.

There are all sorts of Feather Hats—combined with hackle, cut ostrich or textiles.

Duvetyne and satin are developed into many picturesque effects—finished with embroidery, beading, quill trimming, ribbons, etc.

Copper color is a favorite, though many show preference for chow, henna, turquoise, navy or black.

"This Road to Hell," Say Signs on Highways to Lower California

EL PASO, Tex., July 31.

By the Associated Press.

GEN. P. ELIAS CALLES, Mexican Minister of War and Marine, said here yesterday:

"Cantu has never accepted the authority of the Mexican central Government, either now or under the late President Carranza.

"He attempted to run the state as separate from the balance of Mexico and for his personal ends.

"Cantu was ordered to close gambling and vice of the worst kind, which has operated under his protection," said Gen. Calles. "He refused to do so, continuing to flaunt to the world a disgraceful condition that works against Mexico as a whole. The Federal Government is determined to end vice as quickly as possible. Baja California is a territory, not a state of Mexico, and the Governor must be subservient to the wishes of the national Government. The women of California will praise us for attempting to clean up these pest holes. Highways in the United States leading to Mexican cities in Lower California have signs reading: 'This road to hell.' These signs tell the truth."

MEXICO MOBILIZES TO WREST VICE HAVEN FROM CANTU

ous drinking and gambling is done at Mexicali.

Naturally, Cantu got into trouble occasionally with the citizens of the United States, and he found it necessary to employ an American attorney. He chose Isadore Dockweiler of Los Angeles, a very capable lawyer, who chanced to be Democratic national committeeman from California and the man generally credited with carrying California for Wilson. He has handled his client's business well, both in California and Washington.

Carranza made several attempts to bring Cantu into the Mexican fold, and thereby to turn some of the revenue to the central government. Cantu treated all overtures as the last of the aristocrats, the sole reigning member of the Diaz regime, naturally would treat an upstart revolutionist. He paid no attention to him. He defied him with silent scorn.

Now the new Government is going to have its try at dethroning Cantu. The suave Centifico is not opposed this time by the stogy Carranza, but by Plutarcho Elias Calles, Minister of War, a lean man of deep-flowing energies and forward thoughts. Cantu's hour has about struck.

HOW LIQUOR TRAFFIC THRIVES HERE DESPITE PROHIBITION LAWS

sicians make an examination to determine whether a patient needs whisky. Others take the patient's word for it.

A Perilous Speculation.

Druggists are permitted 400 gallons a year. Special permits for more can be obtained if it can be shown that the volume of business justifies a more liberal allotment.

Saloonkeepers can afford to take a chance on a heavy fine because they are saving the $900 tax they used to pay and are making greater profits on the moonshine that they sell than they used to make on their general stock of wet goods. A nominal merchant's tax is all that they pay.

One hundred and twenty-five cases have been tried in St. Louis under the Volstead act. Fines aggregating $35,000 have been inflicted. Most of the penalties have been fines ranging from $100 to $500. There have been several $600 fines and one $1000 fine. Only one convicted person has been imprisoned, and that was not under the Volstead act. It was a case brought under the old law, which provided for fine and imprisonment. The jail sentence was for two weeks.

Fabulous Profiteering.

Some cases have been dismissed after hearings before a commissioner. About 150 cases are pending. Enforcement agents have made about 500 cases in all. Some have not been issued upon by Assistant Attorney-General Higgs, in charge of prosecutions here, because court is not in session.

Stories are told of prodigious profits made by persons who laid in a supply of whisky before Constitutional prohibition went into effect and have been selling it since in violation of the law. One of them is to the effect that one enterprising bellboy at a large downtown hotel invested $450 in four barrels of whisky which he proceeded to increase to eight barrels by adding Mississippi River water, which mixture he has since been selling to guests at $20 a quart. At another downtown hotel the price is $25 a quart with the degree of dilution conjectural.

DRUGGIST'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE

Tells Judge She Found Husband in Company With Another Woman.

Following the testimony of Mrs. Garland J. Maples of 5950 Waterman avenue, yesterday that she had found her husband, Murff F. Maples, a druggist, of 3901 Olive street, in company with another woman at a Delmar avenue address, a divorce was granted her by Judge Falkenhainer. They were married in December, 1912, and separated July 14.

Mrs. Maples declared that for a year and a half Maples had been cold in his attitude toward her.

"WE'LL GET 'EM," WAS REMARK OF PETAIN

French General Writes St. Louisan He Did Not Say, "They Shall Not Pass."

Postage stamps are being used for money in France, owing to a shortage of small silver and copper coins, according to L. R. Viterbo, a civil engineer in the Arcade Building, who has just returned from a three months' business trip to Paris. And, owing to the shortage of coal—Germany not yet having begun to deliver the 2,000,000 tons a month exacted from her—the lights in Paris, formerly noted for its gay night life, go out at 11 p. m.

"It was only recently that the authorities extended the period of artificial light from 9 p. m. to 11," said Viterbo. "Can you imagine Paris a 9 o'clock town? It was an unusual sight to see the lights extinguished in theaters, hotels and cafes and along boulevards when the streets and places of amusement were thronged with people.

Small Coins Are Scarce.

"There is a shortage of small coins in France. Whether it is due to speculation or hoarding, I was unable to learn. Trades people give and accept postage stamps as currency and the Chamber of Commerce of Paris is issuing its own paper substitute for the small change.

"I was surprised to see that Festus J. Wade was quoted in New York interviews as having minimized the property damage in France. I traveled from Soissons to Rheims, about 80 miles—an area occupied by some 15 or 20 villages—and saw nothing but battered walls. There formerly was a population of 120,000 in Rheims, but today there are less than 15,000 people living there, and they are occupying temporary shacks.

"There is no residential building going on in France. That is prohibited by the necessity of reconstructing the essential industrial plants. The work is going on slowly. There is a tremendous shortage of man-power over there, and it will take at least 25 years to rebuild the devastated districts.

People Live in Cellars.

"The towns of Soissons, Rheims, Chemin des Dames and Berry au Bac were practically laid bare in the war. Many people in those towns are living in cellars because there is no other shelter. The cathedral at Rheims has been patched up in spots but it will never be what it was before the war.

"There is considerable labor unrest in France due to the high cost of living, and Bolshevism is trying to get in its work, but France will never see a Soviet regime, because the land there is almost equally divided among the peasants. There are no big land owners in France as there were in Russia. Although the cost of living there is four times as great as it was before the war it is still cheaper than in America."

Viterbo said that a great many Americans are in France engaged in various profitable enterprises, and that he believes a majority of them intend to remain there.

With him Viterbo brought a letter to a St. Louisan from Marshal Petain of France. The letter was typed in French, and was in response to a request from the St. Louisan as to the true origin of the famous Verdun motto, "They shall not pass," which has been generally attributed to Petain.

Petain's Order Quoted.

The letter quotes Petain's order of April 9 (1918?), which when translated is as follows:

"April 9 is a glorious day for our armies, the furious assaults of the Crown Prince's armies having been broken everywhere; infantry, artillery, sappers, aviators of the Second Army have rivaled each other in heroism.

"Honor to all.

"The Germans will attack again without doubt; let each one work and watch in order to obtain the same success as yesterday.

"Courage! * * * We'll get 'em."

Petain signed the copy and added a postscript in his own handwriting:

"The phrase 'they shall not pass' was in the mouths of all the poilus who were on duty at Verdun; it cannot be attributed to any person individually."

Petain thus denies coining the phrase "they shall not pass," but claims ownership of the less famous expression, "We'll get 'em."

ITALIANS PLAN BENEFIT PLAY

Production to Be Given Next Saturday for War Orphans and Widows.

The Italian Dramatic Club will present a five-act drama, "La Morte Civile," at 8 p. m. next Saturday at Knights of Columbus Hall, 3549 Olive street, for the benefit of the widows and orphans of Italy. Virgil Gonan, of Gary, Ind., will take the leading part and between the acts, D. Bartolotto, a tenor, will sing grand opera selections. Dancing until 2 a. m. will follow the performance. There are said to be 400,000 widows and 1,300,000 orphans in Itay. The proceeds of this entertainment will go to the benefit of some of them, through the Italian Consul here.

OLIVE CARS TO BE RE-ROUTED

The eastbound tracks will be torn up first and while this track is being laid eastbound cars will go over Pine street from Twelfth to Fourth. When these are completed the westbound tracks will be replaced and westbound cars will go from Fourth to Thirteenth street over Pine.

All Classes Are Conroy's Customers

Today everyone recognizes the immense moral and mental benefit of good music. To paraphrase Oliver Wendell Holmes, "To hear good music daily is as essential to our spiritual health as our morning plunge for physical well being."

Pianos and Players, with typewriters, telephones and sewing machines, have long since passed out of the category of luxuries into that of indispensable necessities.

Conroy's takes pride that in this great democratization of music, the worthy instruments for which it holds exclusive representation have been no inconsiderable factor.

You will find Conroy's instruments in the workingman's cottage, in the millionaire's home, in theaters, in churches, at the movies, in the studios of great musical artists, wherever, in fact, there is a desire for the best in music.

For there is a Conroy's instrument to suit every purse, and every instrument on Conroy's list is the best in its class in tone, action, construction and finish, irrespective of price, and will give its possessor a lifetime of musical satisfaction.

TEXTILE EXHIBITION TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Two Weeks' Show at Coliseum to Show Progress in Industry.

The first textile exposition in the Mississippi Valley will be held for two weeks beginning tomorrow at the Coliseum. The formal opening will be Tuesday afternoon at 2 p. m.

The purpose of the exhibition is to show the progress of the textile industry in cotton, woolen and silk fabrics and garments, and the process of manufacturing from the raw material to the finished product. Motion pictures showing the process of textile manufacture will be shown and men familiar with the industry will explain the various methods.

All of the important textile associations will be represented and the Government will send a speaker to discuss the production of cotton and wool.

It is desired to encourage the establishment of textile mills west of the Mississippi, where the raw materials can be readily obtained. At present, only 143 of 2509 cotton textile mills in the United States are west of the river. There are also only 54 woolen and worsted mills, seven silk, and six dyeing, bleaching and finishing mills west of the river. R. L. Burch, Equitable Building, is managing director of the exposition.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

MILK AND ICE FUND HAS $4500 TO RAISE

Contributions Lagging and Friends of Babies Are Urged to Work Hard for Next 8 Weeks.

REPORTS are being made to the Post-Dispatch of children who are attempting to collect money upon the claim that they represent the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. The milk fund has no solicitors of cash contributions, and the Post-Dispatch does not authorize these collections. Friends of the babies are requested to report immediately anyone endeavoring to secure money in the name of the milk and ice fund, and are warned against giving money to aid the babies, except in connection with benefits which are being managed by persons whom they know, or by bringing or sending it direct to the Post-Dispatch cashier.

Are the people of St. Louis forgetting the poor babies?

Yesterday's contributions to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund brought the total amount in the fund to $2569.29, which is $884.27 less than the fund contained on the 1st of August last year. Until the past few days the fund has been keeping pace with the records of former years, but the temperate weather of the last few days has evidently made the friends of the babies careless, and donations have lagged.

As stated at the beginning of the campaign, the goal for this year's activities is a minimum of $7000, which will be necessary to carry on the humane work of supplying pure milk and free ice to the unfortunate children in the crowded tenement districts of the city, and does not permit of the much-needed enlargement of the work which the fund workers hope for.

$4500 Still to Be Raised.

Only about eight weeks of the campaign remain, and during this time approximately $4500 must be forthcoming if the needs of the poor children are to be met.

A show given by the Shenandoah Juniors at Shenandoah Hall, Compton and Shenandoah avenues, netted $50.50 for the Milk and Ice Fund. The enthusiastic group of children were trained by Mrs. John E. Dunn, 3302 Shenandoah avenue, and Mrs. John Lott, 2858 Russell avenue, was the pianist for the performance, which the youngsters are planning on repeating in the fall. The children who took part in the show were: Gertrude and Grace Foley, Billy and Greer Flachmeier, Dorothy Ochs, Bertha Morris, Louia Waldrin, Dorothy Gallant, Helen Clare Deveney, Dorothy Dunn, Gladys Kies and Janet and Katherine Lynch. Two professional acts were donated by a local theater manager and the costumes for the actors were designed and executed by Mrs. Dunn.

The second cash contribution of $50 received by the Milk and Ice Fund this year was made by Mrs. Anita K. May, 15 Washington terrace. Mrs. May has contributed in former years to the work and shares with P. H. Brockman of the De Luxe Automobile Co. the honor of being the largest cash contributor to the fund thus far this season.

Lawn Party Nets $25.

On July 24 a delightful lawn party was given at 3882 Windsor place, earning $25 to aid the babies. It was under the management of Miss Margaret Chambers. A program consisting of songs, recitations and dances was presented and refreshments were sold from booths. The children were: Maxine and Dorothy Chambers, Lucile and Tillie Golden, Ellen Struthers, Theresa Hisserich, Gorgien Aplin, Anna McNamara, Laura Tefonbom, Eliane and Lamon Davis, Delores Sonle, Lois Kudmor, Terrence Struthers, Martin Mullanphy and Claud Williams.

A show, followed by a sale of lemonade, candy, popcorn and peanuts, was conducted at 5529 St. Louis avenue recently, and earned $18 for the fund. Miss Dora Mays donated her lawn for the affair and Mrs. Grace Woods assisted in the management of it. The children who participated were: Frances Woods, Mary Disalvo, Marie, Frances and John Zakrzewski, Evelyn Markchelewski, Patrician Squires, Ethel Swig, Pearl Cannella and Eugenie Skupski.

The children from the 3900 block on Palm street gave an entertainment at 3943 Palm street, which made $13.69 for the fund. Irma Rudolph, Gladys and Ruth Mohr, Charles Rudolph, Margaret Milne, Mildred and Evelyn Flori, Marie Fritsch and Edna Daniel were the actors.

Show Given by Kiddies.

Bessie and Sadie Albert, Fannie and Bennie Muchnick, Alfred Silverstein and Isadore Friedman gave a show at 2816 Thomas street recently and earned $5.50 for the babies.

Miss Irene Brookshire, 4125A Chouteau avenue, disposed of a yoke and made $5.10 for the Milk and Ice Fund.

The proceeds of a show at 2552 Belt avenue, amounting to $4.90, were donated to the fund in order to help give the babies hot weather relief. Children who gave the show were: Helen Schneider, Bernice Wintergerst and Lydia and Helen Hutchins.

Another show of the past week which netted more than $4 was given at 6830 Clayton avenue under the management of Mmes. Beste, Tonn, Duffy and Reuben. The children who participated were: Josephine Duffy, Rose and Mamie Reuben, Thelma, Gertrude and Vernie Tenn, Margaret Philips and Milda Saxton.

Only one lemonade stand was reported yesterday. It was conducted at 6201 Etzel avenue by Pauline Farley, Viola Lich and Elizabeth Harral, and earned $4.05.

SUGAR FACTS

In Piggly Wiggly advertisement June 21st, we gave you all the information we had at that time and the predictions we made came true.

At that time the speculator was reaping a harvest and his price was higher than the refiner's price. Conditions have changed. For the last two or three weeks the money market has forced the speculator to turn his sugar into money. As a consequence, today the speculator's price is lower than the refiner's price, and, on account of this condition, sugar is being sold to the consumer at less than the refiner's carload price.

The largest refiner in America, who has been supplying most of the Cane Sugar to the St. Louis market, states that he will not have any more Sugar to offer St. Louis buyers this year.

With this information, we rather predict that St. Louis housewives will have to use beet sugar during September, October, November and December.

You may see slightly lower prices, depending on how long the speculators' stocks last and how much the present holders of sugar need money. You know the coal shortage situation. Don't get caught in a shortage of cane sugar. This is your opportunity.

QUALITY SUGAR—Piggly Wiggly is selling only the very best grade of WHITE CANE GRANULATED SUGAR. Piggly Wiggly has never sold anything else but the BEST GRADE of white cane granulated sugar.

If you like cane sugar, best grade, we would advise you to buy it while it is obtainable. When we are forced to sell beet sugar, we will tell you that it is beet sugar.

DANE TO USE MOTOR TRACTOR IN CROSSING GREENLAND ICE

Expedition Is in Honor of 200th Anniversary of Arrival There of Hans Egedes.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, July 31.—Lauge Koch, the Danish explorer, who heads an expedition to Northern Greenland, in an interview before his departure explained the purposes of his mission. The enterprise, he said, is in the nature of a jubilee expedition in honor of the 200th anniversary of the arrival in Greenland of Hans Egedes, the Danish missionary.

"During these 200 years Greenland has been thoroughly explored," said M. Koch. "North Greenland, however, has never been mapped out. This is the aim of the present expedition, because otherwise, Denmark would be obliged to apply sovereignty to regions which had not yet been visited by white men.

"I have already proved to the satisfaction of American and British scientists that in Northern Greenland there is a mountain range 2000 feet high, the size of the Caucasus range. I further want to penetrate the interior of Pearyland, leaving direct for Inglefield Gold, from which point I will cross inland ice on a motor tractor, establishing a depot at Warmingland. Trials conducted during the last few months prove that tractors can attain a speed of six kilometers an hour, equaling the speed of a dog sled.

"The expedition will be gone three years, at the end of which time the remaining fourth of Greenland will have been mapped. I also expect to bring back a very interesting geological collection."

WARRANT FOR STOLEN WINE HOLDER REFUSED

Withholding of Charge Against Frank Hogan Based Upon Supreme Court Decision.

A warrant was issued yesterday by Assistant Circuit Attorney Connor against Ed Taylor, said to be an ex-convict, charging burglary and larceny in connection with the theft of three barrels of port wine from the Bourbon Mercantile Co., 208 Walnut street.

Connor refused, at the same time, to make a charge of receiving stolen property against Frank Hogan, a former saloonkeeper at Jefferson and Cass avenues, in whose garage, at 2312 Cass avenue, the wine was recovered. Hogan is an uncle of E. J. Hogan, a member of the Legislature.

Several days ago three men entered the Bourbon Mercantile Co. store at noon, held up employes there, and removed the wine, valued at $650. They drove off in a truck. Later policemen arrested Taylor at Eighteenth and Market streets, when trying to sell a bottle of port to a druggist. Hogan told the police of three men seeking his aid to dispose of three barrels of wine, and of his arrangement to buy it at $300.

Connor, in refusing to issue a warrant against Hogan, said the Supreme Court has said that the finding of stolen property in one's possession is not sufficient evidence that the holder has knowledge that the property is stolen goods.

WINSTON CHURCHILL FLAYED FOR RUSSIAN PEACE STAND

A. G. Gardiner Compares Minister's Opposition to Treaty With Soldier Signaling to Enemy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 31.—A. G. Gardiner in the Daily News severely scores Winston Churchill for the latter's article in the Evening News of Thursday. He says:

"The purpose of the article thus announced was unblushing and flagrant. It was to defeat the object for which Mr. Lloyd George had gone to Boulogne. It was to prevent peace being made with Russia. It was more than this. It was an appeal to Germany—patient, industrious, virtuous Germany—to back us up in fighting Russia and sustaining Pinchbeck Imperialism in Poland.

"At the moment when Marshal Foch is employing every device to get into Ruhr in order to smash up Germany, his co-conspirators, French and English, are going down on their knees to Germany to make war for them on Russia. Was there ever such treachery? Was there ever such a spectacle of muddle-headed imbecility? The first question that presents itself in connection with this amazing incident is, why is Mr. Churchill in office today? In other days, of course, the idea of a minister in high office turning journalist and writing articles on public affairs would not have been tolerated.

"A Gladstone or a Salisbury would have sent Mr. Churchill out into the street forthwith. But this is not a matter of mere etiquette or decorum. It is a matter of open mutiny. Churchill comes out in the streets to raise a mob against his colleague and his chief, to upset his policy. And he remains in office. Such a fact is, of course, without precedent in political history. No statesman nominally the head of a Government ever received or accepted so impudent an affront in sight of the world. It would not be possible in any other walk of life.

"A Colonel who wrote an article in the public press in order to destroy his General's plans would be cashiered, a managing clerk or a barrister who was found openly instructing the other side would have short shrift, and a soldier who was found signaling to the enemy would be shot. All of these parallels are trifles with what Mr. Churchill has done for two years in secret and is now doing in broad daylight, and still he is in office."

SAILOR BURNED TO DEATH AT SAN DOMINGO BURIED HERE

Naval Recruits Escort Body of Gardner F. Grote to Grave and Fire Three Volleys.

The funeral of Gardner F. Grote, 20 years old, a sailor, who was burned to death when the United States submarine chaser No. 190 was destroyed by fire July 16 at San Domingo City, Haiti was held here yesterday afternoon. Grote was the son of George H. Grote of 3957A De Tonty street.

Services were held at an undertaking establishment and the body was buried in Valhalla Cemetery. Two squads of sailors from the recruiting station escorted the cortege and fired three volleys over the grave, following which "taps" was sounded by a bugler. The coffin was draped with a flag and was banked with flowers.

Grote enlisted in the Naval Quartermaster Corps two years ago. His body arrived here Wednesday.

The Wise Virgin by George Weston

I.

IF YOU had been in the second Pullman of the State of Maine Express that day, and had been asked to pick out the most attractive and the most aristocratic member of the human family sitting in its overstuffed chairs, there isn't much doubt that Susan Merriam would have been your choice.

But if you could have seen her thought—if there had been a screen in the back of her head, for instance, and her thoughts had been flashed upon it after the well known manner of moving pictures—you would probably have revised one-half of your verdict, meanwhile sitting on the edge of your chair, staring at her with eyes like capital O's.

"Yes, Glenn was right," Susan was thinking as the train neared Portsmouth. "I've been a wise virgin all my life. But I've simply got to find a bridegroom this year."

Calm, cool and altogether comely, she looked out of the window as Caesar's daughter might have looked over the hills of Rome.

"It's my last splurge," she told herself. "I shall never be able to afford another. And besides"——

She didn't finish that thought, even to herself. But down by the side of her chair, hidden under a wrap which was folded over her bags, one of her feet had just been slipped out of its shoe, and five pink toes in a white silk stocking were twiddling about in luxurious freedom. "Oh, lady, what relief!" they seemed to say; and, as though she heard them, Susan's thoughts turned to a play which she had heard when she was a girl.

"It's the feet that tell you first," one of the characters had said. "If you want to know how young you are, just listen to your feet."

"She was right, too," thought Susan. "I couldn't see any sense in it then—but whoever wrote that line—she had certainly been through it." And unconsciously putting her life into an epigram, she added, "It's funny how things come back to you—and plague you—after many years."

Looking at her as she sat there, you might have thought that she was wondering whether her maid had packed her apple-blossom camisole or whether the raisins should be dipped into melted butter for a moment before being dropped into the fudge.

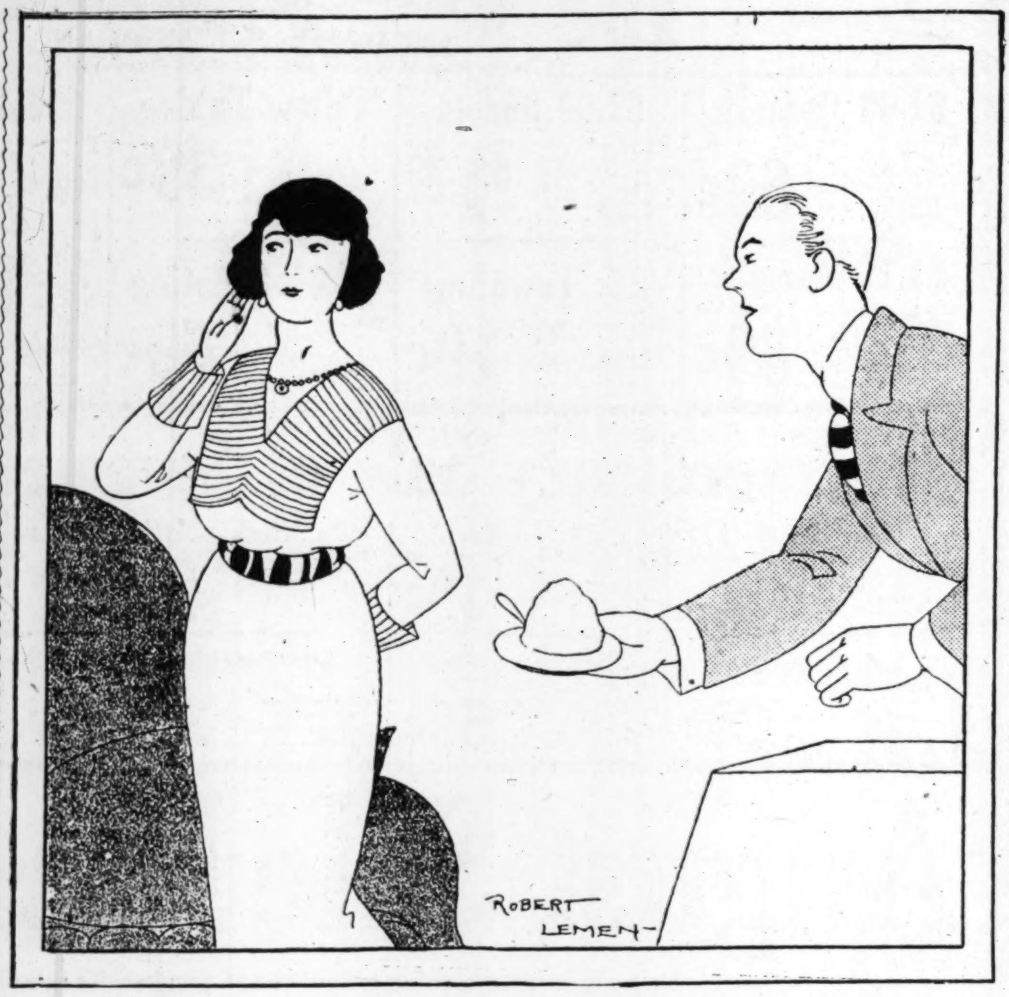
"'A wise virgin,'" she was thinking. "It's funny how that expression sticks in my mind today."

It was her brother Glenn who had first applied it to her. One day before he was married—or even showing any signs of being married—she had made some ice cream for him, but wouldn't eat any herself because, she said, it didn't suit her.

"I wouldn't look a bit nice," she had added, "if I ever got fat."

"Hear the wise virgin!" he had solemnly called the world to witness. "She's keeping her lamps trimmed, ready for the bridegroom, and doesn't care who knows it."

The term had first amused, then pleased her. "Yes, and I've been a wise one, too," she thought that day, as she looked out of the Pullman window. "I didn't throw myself away on the first man who looked at me—nor on the second—nor on the third. No, and I wouldn't marry any man, just to work hard for him all my life, like a general servant or a housekeeper—and get nothing for it but my clothes and board—and people get those, anyway, even if they are in an institution"——



"I wouldn't look a bit nice," she had added, "if I ever got fat."

As you will see, her thought was confused, as thoughts are apt to be, but you will probably catch the idea which she was trying to express. "A wise virgin, yes," she concluded with spirit, "but I'd rather be a wise one than a foolish one, any day!"

The train stopped at Portsmouth and when it started again she noticed that the seats opposite her had changed occupants. The two drummers were gone and their places had been taken by an elderly woman in gray tweeds, and a girl of about 20 with dewy eyes and a halo of fluffy hair.

Across the aisle, Susan watched them with her cool air of indifference.

"Oh, grandmere," said the girl, suddenly leaning forward and putting on the mask of youthful tragedy. "Wouldn't it be terrible if anything happened to Toto this summer. I can't understand it why that silly place won't allow dogs!"

"Oh, I think Toto will be all right, Ethel," said grandmere easily. "He always has been—other summers."

"There!" said Ethel a minute later, "I knew I had forgotten something dreadfully important!" She let the thunder of her index die away and then explained herself with a gush. "I forgot to write to Aunt 'Celia!"

"Never mind," said grandmere as easily as before. "You can write her tonight."

Keeping herself in action, Ethel crossed her knees and made a great business of pulling her skirt down, meanwhile humming the air from "Il Bacio."

"Arditi wrote that," she said, her eyes shining. "Oh, I do love it!"

Across the aisle, Susan hadn't missed a word of this. "The little fool!" she thought. "What's she going to do now?"

From her beaded bag the girl had drawn a limp leather volume.

"'Idylls of the King,'" read Susan, looking at the title. "Yes, she's just the Tennyson age. Probably imagines she's Guinevere—I remember I did once. And now she's looking over the top to see if anybody is watching her. And now she's blushing and pulling her skirt down again. It must be that boy in the cap. And just to think," she added, "that once upon a time I didn't know any more than she knows now!"

In the glow of superiority she slipped her shoe on and started toward the dining car.

"Just about time for a nice, long lunch," she thought, "and then!"——

Calm, cool and altogether queenly—in a young queen way—as she made her way up the aisle, the other passengers glanced at her with approval—that deep note of approval which seems to say, "This is the real thing coming." But if you had been following her, and if she had been fitted with one of those screens aforesaid, you would probably have opened your eyes again to have seen this message come into view, palpitant, tremulously, as though it were partly a prayer and partly a sigh:

"I've been a wise virgin all my life—but, oh, Lord! I can't wait any longer. Please send me a bridegroom now!"

II.

Of the summer resorts which she had known, Susan liked Gosnell Harbor the best. Wherefore she had chosen it as the scene for her last splurge.

For one thing, it was exclusive; and she liked exclusive things.

For another thing, it was dear; and although she really couldn't afford dear things, they gave her that quiet satisfaction which cream gives to a kitten. Indeed, that year she had to begin planning at Christmas in order to acquire a sufficient balance, both in clothes and money, to see her through those idyllic—and dynamic—eight weeks which she expected to spend on the coast of Maine.

"But it's worth it," she said with content, as she left the train at East Gosnell. "And anyhow, this year I simply had to come."

A 12-cylinder bus, bearing the inn's monogram, was waiting, and she entered it, with the feeling of adventure which had recently fallen upon her. Seven other passengers followed.

First came Commodore Michelin and his wife. Susan had seen them on the train, but she bowed and smiled again. With his pink and white face the Commodore was as handsome as ever—and as full of his stories and gossip.

Next came a matron of distinction.

"First year, I guess," thought Susan. "I never saw her before."

After the matron came a bearded gentleman with dark hair and liquid eyes, who looked as though he could sing with passion to the moonlight.

"The Spanish Ambassador must be coming again," she smiled, but the next moment her smile turned to an unconscious frown. Grandmere had entered and directly behind her, "rising from the platform like a young princess, and modestly dropping her eyes before the glances of masculine admiration which were showered upon her," came the dewy-eyed Ethel.

"Silly little fool!" though Miss Merriam, "blushing and talking excited, just because those men looked at her. If I were her grandmother I'd have sent her to a camp for girls!"

They were already in the ground of the inn—a perfect road winding among perfect trees. Here and there could be seen glimpses of a golf course, a polo field, red-topped stables. The sharp, intoxicating smell of the sea grew sharper as they breasted the rise of the road.

"It's like an overture," thought Susan, her spirits rising, too. "One by one the instruments join in—till here at last"——

The inn had been built in Elizabethan style and stood in a lawn made magnificent by distances and trees. On three sides were the sea.

Susan's old room was waiting for her.

"I wish I could live like this always," she thought; and slipping off both her shoes with a sigh of relief, she sat at the window for a long time, staring out at the distant blue and feeling within her those dreams which often seem to come with the whisper of waves, and that vague echo of eternity which only the ocean and the stars can bring.

"All the same," she said at last, "it was a mean thing for Glenn to do—to go and get married like that. Still," she added, always trying to excuse the brother whom she had loved so deeply, "I don't suppose I'd mind it—if I weren't getting on."

If you had been there, though, you wouldn't have thought that she was getting on. Her figure was youthful, her features delicate. Only Susan knew what it cost her to keep that contour and expression—to keep herself a 36 and the reflection of worldly wisdom from her eyes.

"I never thought I'd feel like this," she told herself, "but lately I've been so lonely. I did think once that Glenn loved me the best, but since the children came he hardly notices me any more."

A sob arose from her breast, and for the next few minutes she shed those tears which the lonely sisters of the world have known ever since the first brother let his thoughts and his glances wander away from home—and presently sent his heart out after them.

Instead of bringing her comfort, however, her tears only disconcerted her, who had always prided herself upon her will. To be unmarried—until lately she had regarded it with equanimity—as a consummation most devoutly to be wished.

"When a girl marries," Glenn had told her one day, when he was in the process of breaking off her first love affair, "she puts all her chances behind her. But if she stays single, and keeps attractive, she has all the world to choose from yet. Don't you see she has?"

Susan had shyly stood before him—an imitation pearl necklace in her hand. For all its cheapness, it glowed with the tenderest, softest shades.

"Would you send it back then?" she had asked.

"Suit yourself," he had told her. "I don't think you'd lose much," he added, smiling at the beads. "And that's another thing, Sue. The older you grow, the more sense you'll have to pick a good one when you see one."

She half smiled at the memory of her brother's words. He had certainly picked a good one.

"And now I must do the same; that's all," she bravely told herself. "I'm not the first woman who started out to look for a husband, and I guess I won't be the last."

She dressed herself with the care which the years had taught her, and when the last mysteries were completed, even she was satisfied.

"There!" she said, locking the door of her room behind her. "Now we'll see what there is to see!"

But though she walked along the hall with the cool outward tranquility of a vestal on her way to keep alight that lamp of the world which must never go out, within her glowed the feeling of adventure which had warmed her more than once that day.

She tried to put this feeling into words.

"I do feel lucky," she thought, "as though something awfully nice is going to happen."

Her next reflection was more obscure.

"Always before I've had to be careful. This time, though, it's different. I shall be able to let go."

Records of Democratic and Republican Candidates for United States Senator

Long, Priest and Hay Chief Democratic Aspirants; Spencer, Davis and Minnis, Republicans

How They Stand on Prohibition, the League of Nations and Other Important Campaign Issues as Revealed by Their Campaign Utterances.

THE Post-Dispatch herewith presents for the consideration of voters brief biographies of the Republican and Democratic candidates for the nominations for United States Senator, and the outstanding facts in their public and semipublic careers:

Selden P. Spencer (Rep.)

Senator Selden P. Spencer, in his candidacy for renomination on the Republican ticket, faces criticism by both the advocates and the opponents of prohibition, and by both the advocates and opponents of the League of Nations because of his record in the Senate, which Republicans frequently have branded as "wobbly."

In his campaign in 1918, when he defeated Joseph W. Folk, Democrat, by 35,283, the largest majority ever obtained by a Republican in a state-wide election in Missouri, Spencer had the united support of the Republican organization in St. Louis and in the State. This year the majority of the city organization is supporting Lieutenant-Colonel Dwight F. Davis, while the majority of the members of the State organization is standing with Spencer.

The first break in the Spencer following in St. Louis came as a result of his attitude on the League of Nations. At the outset of the Senate consideration of the question Spencer took a position in favor of the league with reservations which would guarantee the United States the right to withdraw from the league, which would declare the supremacy of the Constitution of the United States over the treaty agreement, which would declare the tariff and immigration to be domestic questions with which the league would have no concern, and which would provide for the preservation of the Monroe doctrine.

The general trend among organization Republican politicians in Missouri was against any League of Nations, though no official action of the organization went further than to declare against the ratification of the peace treaty unless "Americanizing reservations" were adopted.

Dissatisfaction with the stand taken by Spencer was frequently expressed by Republicans, who took the position that Spencer had adopted a "wobbly" attitude which in effect was a middle ground, by which he hoped to satisfy both the opponents and the advocates of the league. In support of this criticism James L. Minnis, one of his opponents, in a recent speech produced two letters written by Spencer, one to a constituent who was friendly to the league and the other to a constituent who was opposed to the league.

In the first Spencer declared positively that he "was for a league with Americanizing reservations." In the second he declared in equally positive language that he "never would vote for the ratification of the treaty unless Americanizing reservations were adopted. Minnis insisted that while the two letters meant the same the apparent purpose of the writer was to convince his correspondents of directly opposite views that he stood with both.

As early as March, 1919, Spencer in an interview in the Post-Dispatch said: "I am heart and soul for a League of Nations," but at that time suggested amendments. Shortly before that interview he had joined with 38 other Senators in signing a resolution prepared by Senator Lodge and which declared the League of Nations covenant as proposed by President Wilson was unacceptable.

On the final vote Spencer voted for the ratification of the treaty with the Lodge reservations.

While this was in line with the policy of the Republican party, it was not satisfactory to all so-called Republican leaders in St. Louis, many of whom had been strongly supporting Senator Reed in his campaign to defeat the ratification, or at least to so amend the treaty that all of the purposes of the league would be defeated.

On his prohibition record the Senator has to even a greater extent failed to satisfy either element of his constituents. In 1918 he received the support of both the Anti-Saloon League and the Liquor Dealers' Association, the former assuming that because of Spencer's widely known church activities he would be for prohibition, and the latter having been assured by Republican politicians that Spencer would oppose prohibition and an enforcement law which the liquor dealers thought to be more severe than justified by the constitutional amendment.

A question as to the Senator's position first arose in the minds of those interested in the question in December, 1918, when Spencer was absent from roll call on a bill to make the District of Columbia "bone dry." He was accused of dodging a vote. The records of the Senate disclosed that Spencer answered to his name on roll calls immediately preceding that on the prohibition measure, and that he answered to his name on roll calls immediately following it, but he did not answer on that particular bill.

The Senator explained that he had had no knowledge that the bill was to be called up and that he had absented himself from his seat for only a few minutes to keep an appointment to accompany his wife to the railway station. After attention had been called to his absence he said he would have voted for the bill if he had been present.

This explanation apparently did not entirely satisfy either the wets or the drys, the wets, while being somewhat satisfied because he did not vote for the bill, objecting to his statement that he would have voted for it had he been present, and the drys taking the position that his intentions, however good, did not mean a vote for the bill.

He voted, however, on a motion by Senator Phelan of California to suspend the rules for consideration of an amendment to exclude beer and wine from the provisions of the war-time prohibition act, voting against it. This time he was with the drys. His explanation was that very few Senators voted for the motion and that Senator Phelan had no expectation it would carry.

In August, 1919, and in September, 1919, in interviews and speeches he became slightly moist again, announcing his belief that the continuance of war time prohibition was a breach of faith with the liquor interests, in that they had been promised a year after the adoption of national prohibition amendment before it went into effect and the war time prohibition law was depriving them of that year. There were some demands from St. Louis organizations that he promote legislation which would do away with the war time prohibition, but he failed to do so.

Spencer's capital crime, as viewed by wet Republicans in St. Louis, however, was his vote with the drys to override the President's veto of the prohibition enforcement law. He was denounced by nearly all the leaders of the Republican organization in St. Louis, and Chairman John Schmoll of the City Committee went to Washington to talk to him. Schmoll returned with the statement that Spencer would not have voted to override the President if he had received a telegram Schmoll had sent to him urging to vote to sustain the President. In this connection Spencer explained that the Republican leaders in the Senate asked all Republicans to vote to override the veto and that all except nine did so.

He also said that the President had attempted to "pass the buck to Congress" for political purposes.

Spencer succeeded in avoiding any very definite position on the recent proposed ousting of Jacob L. Babler from his position as member of the Republican National Committee from Missouri, and on the attempt to clean house generally of the Republicans who had participated in the distribution of Lowden campaign moneys in Missouri.

When the Missouri delegation to the Republican national convention met in Chicago to reconsider its action taken in St. Louis re-electing Babler, Spencer refused to vote on important motions, taking the stand that as a member of the Senate committee which was engaged in investigating expenditures of candidates, he could not "prejudge" the case. The "housecleaning" element of the party and Babler's friends, also, accused him of sidestepping.

During the Lowden fund inquiry it developed that Spencer had received $300 from Babler, who distributed a large part of the Lowden fund. Spencer returned $100 of the amount after the criticism of the use of Lowden money became general. This $100, he said, had been contributed by Babler personally. He retained the other $200, saying it had been contributed to his campaign by other friends through Babler and could not possibly have any connection with the Lowden fund.

Chief among Spencer's supporters on the Republican City Committee are Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein and Robert E. Moore, "the $2500 pair" of delegates to the Republican national convention, each of whom received $2500 direct from Lowden's manager. When they were summoned before the Senate committee, Spencer, a member of the committee, consulted with them before they testified. They afterward returned the money. Spencer repeatedly refused to make any statement in the nature of censure of them for taking the money, declaring the propriety of taking it was solely a question for them to decide.

Another of the active supporters of Senator Spencer within the St. Louis Republican organization is Henry L. (Hank) Weeke, who was forced to resign as a member of the City Committee two years ago when it was discovered that he was an enemy alien, having been born in Germany and never having been naturalized. Weeke made application for citizenship, and as an outgrowth of his testimony at the naturalization hearing, was indicted for perjury. The indictment was dismissed several weeks ago on instructions from the Department of Justice in Washington.

Senator Spencer presented to the department a plea for the dismissal of the case, which was brought to his attention by Goldstein, Weeke and other St. Louis politicians. Spencer said the matter came to his office as routine business and that he "merely passed it on" to the proper department as he had done in many other similar cases.

The Retail Liquor Dealers' Association at a recent meeting which passed upon the candidates the organization would support or oppose, issued no recommendation to its members regarding Spencer, although it approved his opponents, Davis and Minnis. John P. Pensa, head of the organization, told a Post-Dispatch reporter who asked what was its attitude toward Spencer: "Oh, we know he is against us."

Spencer is 58 years old and was born in Erie, Pa. He received his collegiate education at Yale and his law education at the St. Louis Law School. He was admitted to the practice of law in St. Louis in 1884, a year prior to his graduation from law school.

He was elected a member of the Missouri Legislature in 1894 and a Circuit Judge in St. Louis in 1896. He has served as president of the Missouri Bar Association. He has been active in the Presbyterian Church and in Y. M. C. A. work.

RECORD OF CANDIDATES WHO ARE LOOKING FOR SENATORIAL HONORS

June 1, 1920: Voted for the resolution declining to give the President power to accept a mandate over Armenia.

Spencer, in his official campaign financial statement required by law to be made to the secretary of the Senate within 10 days prior to the primary, gave his total campaign receipts as $3000 and his total expenditures as $1515.

James L. Minnis (Rep.)

James L. Minnis, in his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, has taken a positive position in opposition to the League of Nations, in favor of amendments to the Volstead law "to permit the courts to determine the amount of alcohol which is legal in a non-intoxicating drink," and in favor of ousting Jacob L. Babler from his position as Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, and W. L. Cole from his position as chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Minnis from the beginning of his campaign has attacked the Republican organization in the city and State. The organization has been divided in its support between his opponents, Senator Spencer and Lieutenant-Colonel Dwight F. Davis.

On the League of Nations Minnis has opposed any kind of a league. He has attacked England because of its control over Ireland.

His position on the Volstead law has been that a greater amount of alcohol than one-half of one per cent could be permitted in beverages without making them intoxicating, and that the law should leave the question of alcoholic content as a matter of fact to be decided by the courts than a fixed per cent established by Congress.

Minnis is 53 years old and was born in Carroll County, where he resided until he moved to St. Louis as attorney for the Wabash Railroad in 1900. He was a member of the Missouri Legislature from Carroll County in 1895. He filled various positions in the legal department of the Wabash until 1916, when he became general solicitor and vice president. He resigned in May, 1919.

After retiring from active practice Minnis went to California, where he remained until a few months ago when he returned to St. Louis and announced his candidacy for the Senate. His candidacy has been indorsed by the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association.

Minnis reported campaign receipts as $300 and expenditures $3911.44.

Henry S. Priest (Dem.)

Former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator on a platform containing three major issues: Defense of Senator Reed, opposition to the League of Nations and opposition to constitutional prohibition.

His entry into the senatorial race just before the last filing day as a decisively "wet" candidate at a time when it appeared that Breckinridge Long, who had taken no positive stand on the wet and dry issue, would be the only candidate, served to also bring out Charles M. Hay as a "dry" candidate.

The result has been that the contest has centered very largely between Priest and Hay with Senator Reed stumping the State against the League of Nations, and thus stumping it for Priest, while Hay has taken the position that Priest is Reed's candidate and has been directing his fight more against Reed than Priest.

Judge Priest long has been in the public eye in Missouri, and particularly in St. Louis, where, for many years, he has been a corporation lawyer, with his employment by railroads, street railroads and other public utility companies as the outstanding feature of his practice. He is known as resourceful in the extreme in the conduct of his cases.

He Handled Mill Tax Case.

One of the most widely known of his cases and one which has seldom been approached in length of delay was the United Railways mill tax case, which Priest, by appeals to the United States Supreme Court and by resort to many technicalities, succeeded in keeping in the courts for 12 years, notwithstanding that the Missouri Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court twice decided the case against him.

Priest is a product of Missouri. He was born in Ralls County, 125 miles north of St. Louis, Feb. 7, 1853. He was educated at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. He was admitted to the bar in 1873, and in 1894 was appointed by President Cleveland to the position of United States District Judge in St. Louis. He resigned a year later to become a member of the law firm of Boyle & Priest, of which he is now the sole member. In his earlier years Priest was active in Democratic politics in Missouri, but for several years prior to 1919 he had no public part in internal party affairs. After Senator Reed had begun a campaign of the country against the League of Nations, however, Priest joined with him in opposition to the league, taking a leading part in arranging meetings not only for Reed, a Democrat, but also for Senator Hiram Johnson, a Republican. Priest's office was used as a sort of anti-League of Nations headquarters for a time, and he issued frequent anti-league statements for publication. His name was included among the sponsors for the anti-league meetings and he occupied a place on the platform at the Reed and Johnson meetings and at the speakers' table at the banquet given Senator Reed at the Planters Hotel, at which most of the guests were men active in Republican politics in St. Louis.

Stands With Reed Against League.

Priest's position on the League of Nations was explained by him in a speech at Fulton, Mo., June 19 at the opening of his campaign. In reality it is in opposition to any league. At Fulton he said:

"It would be idle for me to attempt to enlighten you upon this subject after you have read the masterful analysis of it by Senator Reed.

"Senator Reed's sharp words in the discussion of this proposition are prompted by intense earnestness and a burning patriotism, and not by malice, as his enemies charge. I say to you that there is not an abler statesman in the United States today than Senator James A. Reed.

"It is now proposed to establish at Geneva a super empire and to build palaces and mansions there in a great seat of power.' Every bushel of wheat that you sell, every hog or cow that you sell, will be taxed, directly or indirectly, to construct and maintain this establishment.

"We have become a great nation by attending to our own business while treating other nations with due courtesy. Shall we now abandon the policy laid down by Washington and Jefferson, so successful in the past, to embrace the possibility of national extinction?"

Having thus followed the line of argument advanced by Reed, Priest has since replied to Reed's six questions on the league, propounded by him to all candidates for the Senate. In each instance Priest answered the question as Reed would would have answered it, accepting the Reed analysis as the true analysis of the league covenant and supporting Reed's position on it.

Opposed to Eighteenth Amendment.

Priest's position on prohibition is not limited to opposition to the Volstead law. He has declared himself opposed to the national prohibition amendment. On this subject he said in his Fulton speech:

"The Federal Government was formed by the several sovereign states to supervise our foreign relations and our interstate relations. The states retained in themselves exclusively the right to exercise local police power and that right has been jealously guarded.

"But this prohibition was shackled upon us in the guise of a war measure when you and I and millions of the most patriotic men in America had our entire attention and all of our efforts and resources centered upon the repulsion of a savage foe and the vindication of our national honor.

"Soon they will be passing laws to tell you what church you shall attend; then will say to you: 'You shall cultivate this farm and no other.' "

The Rule of the Soviets.

In other speeches he has compared the prohibition amendment to the rule of the Soviets in Russia, in that he said it was a violation of the right of the people to conduct their local affairs.

As a lawyer Priest has had a part in much of the more important litigation in St. Louis in more than 25 years. He was attorney for Robert M. Snyder, who was tried in St. Louis for bribery in the Central Traction franchise case. The State's chief witness, a member of the City Council, who testified he had received a bribe, admitted under cross-examination by Priest that in accepting the bribe he violated his oath of office.

From this Priest in his argument to the jury constructed the crime of perjury. In this connection he gave utterance to his famous expression that "bribery is a conventional offense."

"Bribery," he said, "is a conventional offense. In former times only the bribe-taker was considered an offender. But perjury is a crime which only the atoning blood of Christ can wash away."

In 1908 in a controversy between President Roosevelt and William J. Bryan as to the relative support given the two candidates by corporations, Roosevelt called attention to Priest's connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. and the North American Co., and named him as one of Bryan's supporters. Priest at the time contended that Roosevelt's statement was unfair.

Represented U. R. Against City.

During the years in which St. Louis fought with the street railway interests for adequate service, and during the great street car strike in St. Louis, Priest represented the street railway company. He planned the consolidation of the several street railway companies, which was accomplished by an act of the Legislature, the passage of which was brought about through political and financial influence, and under the representation that consolidation of the lines meant that universal transfers would be issued. Even the present system of transfers was not obtained until many years afterward, and then only through court proceedings.

Prior to the consolidation Priest was attorney for the old Lindell Railway. The advantages of the consolidation accrued chiefly to the Brown Brothers holding syndicate, which overcapitalized the system heavily.

The 1899 Legislature passed another measure, of which, it has been charged, Priest also was the author, though that never has been definitely established. It provided that any street railway company seeking a franchise to construct a street railway line must obtain the signatures of a majority of the property owners along each mile of the proposed line. That this established a monopoly for the consolidated system was demonstrated when the St. Louis & Suburban, which since has been absorbed by the consolidation, attempted to extend its lines. The law was invoked, the St. Louis & Suburban being unable to obtain the signers. The United Railways, as the consoli-

August Sale Plush Coats

Starting tomorrow we are going to inaugurate a underprice sale of Plush Coats. Our buyer just back from New York found many coat houses who specialize in Plush Coats only, very much in need of cash owing to many cancellations from houses who placed their orders early in the year, but refused to take these Coats as prices dropped down the same as in any other women's garments. We bought these Coats at the most opportune time, as we are positive that prices, as soon as the present stock is exhausted, will be a great deal higher again. August, as a rule, is a quiet month for the retail store, and in order to stimulate big business, we are going to put these Plush Coats on sale at dated system, became, has also used it for a defense in pursuing its policy of building no extensions.

Originated Tripartite Agreement.

Priest was the author of the tripartite agreement of 1904 when the control of the United Railways properties was taken out of the hands of the stockholders and placed in the hands of Brown Bros., financial agents. It was through this agreement that the St. Louis Transit Co. became the United Railways, and one of its purposes was to avoid payment of the personal damage claims which had accrued against the Transit Company. Of this agreement Judge Lamm, then a member of the Supreme Court, said in an opinion:

"Everyone profited thereby except the miserable ones who suffered the wrongs of negligent personal injuries at its hands. Every interested party seems to have been represented except these. The debts of the Transit company, with this exception, were taken care of. * * * It is argued that what was done was necessity. Whatever the play of necessity, there was none calling for the United Railways Co., taking over all the properties of the Transit company, and at the same time letting those persons the Transit Company had injured whistle for compensation."

Priest conducted the defense in the cases in which the United Railways sought to escape payment of the personal damage suits on the technical ground that the United Railways was not responsible for the acts of the Transit Co., though as a matter of fact it was only the same company under a different name.

In 1903 the city passed an ordinance taxing the street railway company one mill per passenger carried, the tax taking the place of a former license tax of $25 a car, and therefrom resulted the long drawn out fight to collect the tax, Priest representing the company. He kept the case in the courts for 12 years. The Circuit Court in St. Louis found against the company. Priest appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, which found against the company, and then Priest appealed to the United States Supreme Court which likewise found against the company.

Case Finally Decided Against Him.

Taking advantage of a technical opening Priest got the case before the Missouri Supreme Court a second time, and a second time carried it to the United States Supreme Court, where he again lost. He sought to renew the fight again, but the court refused to reopen the proceedings.

Following this decision the company paid to the city $1,839,205.

Priest, after the decision, contended that he should not be blamed for the delay, and that it was due to delays in the trial courts and to the city's legal advisers. He said the collection of the tax would harm the city as it "would discourage capital from coming here."

Priest's salary from the United Railways, as disclosed in the evidence in the receivership case, was $40,000 a year, though he said that he paid office expenses and other attorneys from this fund so that in reality he received little more than $7500 for himself. He testified that he was paid $35,000 for his work on the mill tax case in addition to his salary.

He said he told the directors he meant to charge the company $100,000 if he won the case, but that they fixed his extra compensation at $35,000, win or lose.

Priest was attorney for the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. in the suit brought by Attorney-General Hadley to oust the Standard Oil Co. from Missouri and to revoke the charter of the Waters-Pierce company. Hadley contended the Standard, Republic and Waters-Pierce companies operated under a joint agreement in violation of the anti-trust laws. The companies were found guilty by the Supreme Court and fined $50,000 each. The Standard was ousted and the Waters-Pierce was ordered to reorganize independent of the Standard or be ousted.

Represented Pierce Oil Interests.

Four years later Priest represented the Pierce interest when the Standard attempted to gain control of the Waters-Pierce company, and filed the incoporation papers for the Pierce Oil Corporation, which took over the Waters-Pierce assets.

Priest was a large stockholder in the Frisco Railroad at the time it went into receivership. He represented the New York bankers, J. & W. Seligman and Speyer & Co., and submitted for them a plan of reorganization of the company, which was attacked by B. F. Yoakum, former president of the Frisco, David R. Francis and others having interests in the company.

The Priest plan provided for a voting trust of seven members to control the company for five years. The State Public Service Commission refused to approve this feature of the plan, and also refused to approve the issuance of income bonds convertible into preferred stock.

Yoakum charged at the time that Priest would obtain a fee of $100,000 if the reorganization plan went through. Priest denied that, saying the fee had not been fixed. He received $12,000 a year, he said, as counsel for the receivers.

In the Frisco receivership Priest occupied a unique position for an attorney. He assisted in framing the petition for the appointment of receivers; he was attorney for the railroad; attorney for James Campbell, who signed the petition, and who was one of a group of Frisco officials who had made deals personally profitable between the railroad and themselves; attorney for the North American Co., in whose behalf the receivership petition was filed; attorney for the receivers, and signed the petition asking permission to sue officers and directors who profited by deals with the road.

In 1901 Priest joined with representatives of other public service corporations in appearing before committees of the Missouri Legislature in opposition to the franchise tax law, which sought to tax franchises of railroads and other utilities on the same basis as other property. Previously only physical property of such corporations had been taxed. The late William H. Phelps, who long was known in Jefferson City as "the king of the lobby," aided Priest in opposing the bill, but it was passed over their opposition.

Priest was one of five wealthy St. Louisans against whom warrants were issued in 1910 for failure to make sworn personal tax returns. Priest obtained dismissal of the case, the contention which the Court sustained being that the power to assess property rested with the District Assessor and not with the City Assessor. Assessor Brinkop testified that Priest had made no return, that he had made only one personal return in 11 years, and that he estimated the value of Priest's personal property at $50,000, made that assessment and then doubled it as a penalty for failure to make a return, as provided by law.

Priest reported that the sole contributor to his campaign was C. A. (Cap) Tilles, former bookmaker and large stockholder in the United Railways. Tilles, he said, contributed $5000. Priest gave his expenditures as $2335.

Dwight F. Davis (Rep.)

Dwight F. Davis, who was a Lieutenant-Colonel in the A. E. F., candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, has the support of Collector Koeln and Mayor Kiel, leaders of the rival factions in St. Louis Republican politics.

Col. Davis has been talked of among business men of St. Louis for several months prior to the announcement of his candidacy as a probable candidate, but he took the position that he did not feel that he cared to become a candidate for office. Some of his close friends said he would rather be a delegate at large to the Republican National Convention.

Finally Koeln took notice of the Davis talk and announced that he would support him for Senator, and from that time it generally was understood Davis would file. Kiel joined with Koeln in support of Davis. The Kiel support has been attributed by politicians to two facts, one that business men which have supported Kiel are interested in Davis' success, and another that Davis as a candidate for the Senate with Kiel's support would be eliminated as a possible candidate against Kiel for the nomination for Mayor next spring.

With the exception of Circuit Clerk Goldstein, Robert E. Moore and possibly two or three other committeemen, who are for Spencer, the entire St. Louis organization is understood to be for Davis.

In announcing his candidacy Davis issued a comprehensive program or platform, though as the campaign has progressed the public has appeared to be principally interested in his opposition to the League of Nations covenant as written and his opposition to prohibition. He has received the indorsement of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association.

His Position on Liquor Question.

Davis' position on the liquor question as set forth in a statement given to the Post-Dispatch at his campaign headquarters in St. Louis during the past week, is as follows:

"Davis was opposed to the principle of the Eighteenth Amendment, but believes since the Supreme Court of the United States has held that it was legally adopted, the law should be enforced.

"He believes that the will of the people with respect to the prohibition question, as with respect to all other questions, should govern. He announced in his platform, which was written before the Supreme Court decision, that he would abide by the Missouri referendum on the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment. This referendum was knocked out by the decision of the Supreme Court on the legality of the ratification of the amendment.

"Col. Davis does not favor saloons, as run in the past, but believes the question of saloons is a state matter, as they are not prohibited by the Volstead act. He has declared that the Volstead act is too harsh in its provisions, and favors modifications within the limits of the Eighteenth Amendment."

His Comprehensive Platform.

Davis' platform included: Stamping out Bolshevism; creation of a national budget; repeal of excess profits tax; protective tariff; charges of Democratic extravagance in the conduct of the war; bonus for ex-soldiers; preference for ex-soldiers in the civil service; a small army; an adequate navy for defense; reasonable preparedness; equal rights for women and men; control of child labor and compulsory education; fair and impartial instrumentalities to protect the public in controversies between capital and labor; improved living and recreational facilities for farmers; improved marketing conditions; more efficient crop reports; better educational facilities in rural districts; good roads, and liberal interpretation of the farm loan act.

On the League of Nations Davis has taken a position in favor of the League with the Lodge reservations. In reply to six questions recently asked senatorial candidates by Senator Reed, Davis replied that he would not vote for ratification of the peace treaty unless it was amended in manner to conform to the spirit of Reed's questions, though he stipulated in his reply that he understood the Lodge reservations covered the points raised by Reed.

Davis was born in St. Louis 41 years ago. He is the son of John T. Davis, and a grandson of the late Samuel C. Davis, founder of the wholesale dry goods firm of Samuel C. Davis & Co., now out of business.

He was educated at Smith Academy and Harvard University and took a law course in Washington University, not with the intention of practicing law but to equip himself for a business career.

His Public Service Began at 24.

When 24 years old Davis was appointed chairman of the Public Baths Commission of St. Louis, the appointment marking the beginning of a number of years' public service in the line of helpfulness for the children and their parents in the more crowded sections of the city. The commission established and supervised public baths and public playgrounds, and conducted band concerts and lectures in the community centers.

Three years later the work of the commission was transferred to the Public Recreation Commission and Davis continued a member of the organization two years more. There was no salary attached to the position.

In 1911 he was appointed Park Commissioner, a position he retained until the expiration of his term in 1916. It was in this office that he demonstrated an independence of ward politics, which members of the City Committee had rarely encountered in any officer, elective or appointive. Davis was known as a man who could not be controlled by the political organization. He refused to hire and fire at the behest of the politicians.

From 1907 to 1909 Davis was a member of the House of Delegates; from 1904 to 1907 he was a member of the Public Library Board, and from 1911 to 1916 a member of the City Plan Commission.

Attended Plattsburg Training Camp.

In 1916 he attended the Military Training Camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., and afterward went to Europe as a member of the War Relief Commission, returned to St. Louis and volunteered as a member of the Fifth Regiment of the Missouri National Guard, then being organized. He was elected Captain of Company L. The Fifth later became a part of the 138th Infantry. Davis won promotion to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

He saw active service in France, being in the battles of St. Mihiel and the Argonne. He twice was cited for bravery. One citation was:

"He carried out the orders of his brigade commander in a manner utterly devoid of fear, under the most intense artillery and machine gun fire. At Baulny on Sept. 29 and 30, he recklessly exposed himself to the enemy fire in order to obtain information of great value to his brigade and division commander."

The other citation was:

"For gallantry in action near Baulny, France, Sept. 29, 1918, in assisting in the reorganization and replacing of various detachments under severe machine gun and shell fire."

Davis participated in the organization of the American Legion and was elected first commander of St. Louis Post No. 4. He resigned when he announced his candidacy for the Senate.

Davis reported he had received no contributions, and that his expenditures had been $3007.72.

Charles M. Hay (Dem.)

Charles M. Hay is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator on two main issues: Ratification of the treaty of peace with the League of Nations covenant unchanged by any amendments or reservations "which would destroy its purposes," and enforcement of the national prohibition amendment in letter and spirit.

The Hay platform is:

"I'm for America, safe, sane and sober; kept safe through a League of Nations, maintaining peace and security for all by arbitration and disarmament; kept sane by holding fast to our democracy as the golden mean between autocracy and anarchy; kept sober by preserving the integrity of the eighteenth amendment without repeal, nullification or evasion."

Hay is a native of Missouri. He was born in Wayne County, 40 years ago, and was educated in Marvin College, Fredericktown, at Central College, Fayette, and in the law school of Washington University. From his school days he has been an orator and debater of note, having been class orator of his graduating class at Washington University, and having won first honors in the national oratorical contest at the Buffalo Exposition in 1901.

He first attracted statewide attention in Missouri in 1913 when as a member of the Legislature from Callaway County, he was the leader of the "dry" forces and the leader in the fight for woman suffrage. He has maintained a consistent record as a "dry" and has participated in every prohibition campaign in the State in the past 15 years.

Against Amending Volstead Act.

In announcing his stand for the preservation of the Eighteenth Amendment, Hay has declared his opposition to amendments of the Volstead law, his position being that the only possible purpose of amendments would be to permit the sale of intoxicating liquors.

An early advocate of the League of Nations, Hay has been occupied much of the time for more than a year in advocating the ratification of the peace treaty with the league covenant unchanged. Last summer he followed Senator Hiram Johnson through Eastern states, answering Johnson's anti-league speeches. He made this tour at the request of the League to Enforce Peace.

Hay has been the active leader of the opposition to Senator Reed in Missouri because of Reed's attacks on President Wilson and the League of Nations. He led the fight for the repudiation of Reed at the Democratic State convention in Joplin, and accomplished his purpose, though, through a combination of delegates against him, he was defeated for election as delegate-at-large to the Democratic national convention.

When Reed came to Missouri to deliver anti-league speeches last year Hay challenged him to debate the issue. Reed refused. Hay renewed the challenge within the past two weeks and again Reed refused, even changing the date of a meeting he had arranged for Fayette, Mo., upon learning that unwittingly he and Hay had selected the same day to speak in Fayette.

Hay became a candidate for the Senate only after Henry S. Priest, avowedly a wet and avowedly against the League of Nations, had announced his candidacy.

Hay is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and is active in church affairs, having held many church offices. In 1913 he was a member of the General Conference, the highest body in the church. He is supported by the Anti-Saloon League and opposed by the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association.

Hay reported campaign contributions totaling $1787 and expenditures $1904.58.

would be the only formidable candidate. At the last minute, however, three others filed against him. Long is 40 years old and was born in St. Louis.

Long has conducted his campaign principally along the line that he is in thorough accord with the administration of President Wilson, and he has advocated ratification of the peace treaty with the League of Nations covenant unchanged.

He was active in the 1912 and 1916 campaigns and had a principal part in obtaining campaign funds in St. Louis. He was a student under President Wilson when Wilson was a professor in Princeton University, and after Wilson's second election Long was appointed Third Assistant Secretary of State. In that position he was the Government's representative in welcoming and entertaining members of royalty and official visitors from foreign countries.

While Long has made very clear his support of the League of Nations, his position on prohibition has not been so clearly defined. At the opening of his campaign at a dinner at the Planters Hotel three months ago Long announced that he favored enforcement of the law and was against the saloon and followed that statement with a declaration that he was in favor of amendments to the Volstead law which would give to the states greater power in its enforcement.

His Stand on Prohibition.

At this dinner Long said:

"I am sure that the Democratic party, and equally sure that I, cannot take a stand in opposition to law enforcement. Furthermore, I am unalterably opposed to the reopening of the saloon and against the influence of the saloon, and will be opposed to any scheme which has that as its object, or which will reinstate those interests in control of our politics.

"My personal opinion is that certain features of the enforcement act are not in conformity with our form of government and if the act should be held constitutional would be in favor of amending such provisions as in their operation might prove an unnecessary hardship and develop to be unnecessary to carry out the provisions of the Constitution.

"I believe the Court will hold that there are certain residuary powers in the states not delegated to the Federal Government in the exercise of which each State can define for itself an intoxicant, provided always that the letter and the spirit of the constitutional amendment are observed."

Following disclosures at a Senate committee hearing into print paper costs that the Graham Paper Co., in which Long's wife owns an interest, had for several years paid 120 per cent on a common stock issue of $500,000, there was an effort from some political quarters to arouse antagonism to Long among owners of country newspapers. Investigation, however, developed that Mr. Long owned none of the common stock, and that as the holder of 2240 shares of preferred stock she received a dividend of only 7 per cent. amounting to $15,680 a year. It also was disclosed that the preferred stockholders have no voice in the management of the company.

Long is a lawyer and practiced in St. Louis before receiving his appointment in the State Department.

Long reported contributions to his campaign of $8500, all from his wife and himself, and his expenditures as $5953.78.

George H. Scruton (Dem.)

George H. Scruton of Sedalia, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, is editor of the Sedalia Democrat. He is 58 years old.

Scruton, notwithstanding he was 55 years old when the United States entered the war and thus was beyond the age limit for volunteers, succeeded in getting into the army. He went abroad as a captain and while abroad was promoted to the rank of Major and then to Lieutenant-Colonel. Three of his four sons also were in the military service, and a fourth, too young for army service, was active in Boy Scout work.

Scruton was educated at the University of Georgia and before going to Sedalia in 1901 had been engaged in newspaper work in Atlanta Ga.; Cincinnati, Chicago, Worcester, Mass.; New York, Orkland, Cal.; Fort Smith, Ark., and Springfield, Mo.

The Rev. Arthur N. Lindsey (Dem.)

The Rev. Arthur N. Lindsey, pastor of the Christian Church in Clinton, and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States cal race in Missouri. In 1916 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, running fourth in a field of seven candidates. He received 25,591 votes of a total of 234,812 cast in the Democratic primary.

He was born in Kentucky and is 47 years old. In addition to his church work in Clinton he has served as president of the People's National Bank there. He also has been secretary of the Missouri Senator, is making his second politi- Federation of Commercial Clubs and of the Missouri State Good Roads Association. He has been a member of the Board of Managers of the State Hospital for the Insane at Nevada for eight years.

Lindsey reported contributions totaling $35 and no expenditures.

John C. Higdon (Dem.)

John C. Higdon of St. Louis, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, is a lawyer. He is 60 years old, was born in Pike County, Mo., and educated at William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo. He has announced himself opposed to prohibition and in favor of amendments to the Volstead law which would permit the sale of wine and beer. He sought the nomination for Senator two years ago receiving only 7907 votes of a total of 195,606 cast in the primary.

Higdon reported contributions of $25 and expenditures of $621 in his campaign.

Announcing an Importation of Beautiful Irish Linens—Reasonably Priced

THE scarcity of Irish Linen bids fair to continue, due in turn to the scarcity of flax, which Ireland has formerly obtained in large quantities from Russia. Russia's state of general unrest is responsible for her low production of flax, and we have reasons to believe that future prices will be much higher.

We are fortunate to have secured these pure Irish Linens, for which we negotiated just one year ago. We will offer them at last year's prices, which are noticeably lower than present prices.

Premier Quality is the predominant feature of this snowy Irish Linen, which is wholly exquisite in its satiny texture and marvelous weave. Pattern Cloths and Napkins to match are offered in floral designs of unusual beauty.

Turk Capital Under Allies Wildest City West of Suez

Town Wide Open in Every Respect and Filled With Painted Women and Liquor.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 7.—Constantinople now combines all the frenzy of a new mining camp and a world seaport. It's "the end of the trail" for all the Balkan states and everything west of Suez on the Mediterranean. Caucasian oil men, Donetz Basin miners, Anatolian sheep and cattle kings, Greek war millionaires and Syrian merchants rush to Constantinople to pop champagne in proof of their success. Soldiers and sailors of half a dozen nations swell the population and add to the cosmopolitan aspect of the streets and pleasure resorts.

Under allied occupation the city has become a wilder place than it was under the Turks. There are no civil courts. None of the allies desire to assume responsibility for reforms other than are necessary to safeguard life. Italian, French and British troops co-operate with the Turkish gendarmerie in keeping order. But everybody's job is nobody's job. Consequently Constantinople is a very wide-open town. Midnight closing is enforced pretty generally, but until that hour there is little interference with dance halls, gambling dives and redlight districts unless murder is committed.

Leadville Not in It.

Leadville and Goldfield in their dizziest days never offered anything wilder than certain sections of Constantinople, where jazz bands vie with Neapolitan orchestras and singers in their efforts to attract wayfarers into the beer tunnels and dance halls filled to overflowing with the painted women of many nationalities.

Half a dozen summer gardens offer vaudeville programs which attract thousands of persons every night who seem to have far more interest in the drinks and restless crowds than in the Russian prima donnas and bare-legged dancers whose art is usually as meager as their attire. Turks, Arabs, Bedouins, Egyptians and Assyrians, gorgeously clad in native costumes, elbow their way among Cossacks and Georgians whose uniforms are far more brilliant than their recent military achievements.

Coal-black French colonials, resplendent in red fezzes and green khaki, mingle with Sikhs and Punjabi whose long hair and many-colored headdresses are wrapped in somber brown. Civilians, soldiers and sailors from all parts of the world are hopelessly jumbled together in Constantinople crowds and are so busy looking at each other that tenors from the Petrograd opera, naughty French singers from Montmarte and Austrian strong-jawed ladies claim slight attention.

City Itself a Grand Pageant.

Constantinople itself is a grand pageant every day. Its main thoroughfare, Rue Grand Pera, is more fascinating than any scene which producers can ever hope to stage. Camel drivers lead their patient trains, burdened with charcoal, through the maze of street cars, shrieking army motor cars and carriages, piloted over the rough paving at breakneck speed by Turkish hostlers who crack their whips and shout constantly at high pitch to pedestrians who venture off the narrow sidewalks. Turks mounted on tiny donkeys move indifferently through this maelstrom. Occasionally Turkish peasants drive a flock of sheep or turkeys into this swirl of traffic, and serene oxen draw heavy carts along at a pace so slow that drivers of military camions curse them in 10 different languages.

The narrow, crooked streets of Constantinople are ill-suited to motor traffic and the slow-going fatalistic Turk is little inclined to change his pace. Consequently there are many accidents, and the indifference with which foreign military cars are driven has done much to intensify Turkish hatred of foreigners.

MRS. MARION HARRIS KILLED BY TRUCK

Wife of Former St. Louis Real Estate Man Run Down in Los Angeles Street.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 31.—Mrs. Marion Harris, 29 years old, a former resident of St. Louis, and wife of John S. Harris, who established a real estate agency here recently, was killed by a motor truck when she was waiting to board a street car at Rosewood and Western avenues today.

The truck was being driven at high speed, witnesses told the police. The chauffeur was arrested.

Mrs. Harris resided with her family at 4811 Rosewood avenue.

John S. Harris is a brother of Fletcher R. Harris of St. Louis, president of the real estate company bearing his name. John S. Harris and his family left here about two years ago and resided in several Ohio cities. They went to Los Angeles about three weeks ago. Harris was secretary of the Fletcher R. Harris Real Estate Co. about four years ago, but later was connected with the John H. Farish and other companies.

They have two children, a boy, Vanness, 10 years old, and a girl, Marion, 8. Mrs. Harris was a Kentucky girl. They lived at 5943 Cates avenue here.

When John S. Harris was selling real estate in St. Louis he made a specialty of taking prospective customers out on Sundays and holidays to view property. At such times his wife would assist him by taking care of telephone inquiries at his home that resulted from the use of his home address in advertising. She exhibited much interest in his work.

Fletcher R. Harris has received only brief notice of the accident and the funeral arrangements are unknown here.

SPECULATION FOR RISES NOW UNDER SEVERE HANDICAP

Fact Emphasized by Price Movement on Stock Exchange Past Week.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"In the light of the very plain influences at work on the financial situation, there was little to cause surprise in this week's return of weakness to the stock market. Prices had been advanced on the Stock Exchange a fortnight ago without the least warrant in visible conditions. They were bid up artificially. When the market relapsed into inactivity, with the outside public holding entirely aloof, the time arrived when the stocks bought for rise were either sold from choice or were dislodged by speculative selling. The present week's movement is not of great importance, except as it emphasizes the fact that this is a time when speculation for the rise, whether in the stock market or in the markets for commodities, is under a formidable handicap. The causes which are back of the falling prices in commodities are to a very great extent at work on the stock market also. Throughout the country the banking community now realizes that it has a trying season ahead of it in meeting the requirements of legitimate autumn trade. It has come to understand how greatly the present situation has been aggravated by the utterly reckless absorption of credit in speculation during 1919, and it has adopted to some purpose the program of restricting further grant of credit to 'essential' purposes.

Liquidation Aided Situation.

"The reassuring consideration is the quite undisputed fact that the speculative liquidation, which has already been forced on the Stock Exchange as in the markets for grain and cotton and in the mercantile industry, has prepared for conditions which otherwise might have seriously upset the country's economic position. On the other hand, a good many people are doubtless asking what is being foreshadowed in the movement of general industry by this week's developments in Wall Street. Thus far in the present chapter of events the stock market has indicated with remarkable accuracy what was destined to happen later in the commercial markets. Not only did the 'November break' pretty safely prophesy the hysterical price cutting of April at the retail stores, but the February recovery on the Stock Exchange, with the renewed declarations of absolute speculative confidence which attended it, was fairly matched by the action of mercantile prices and the mercantile trade when the first frightened selling of goods had spent its force. The present condition of trade resembles that in which the Stock Exchange was in, when the market broke again, in the face of the Wall Street assurances that it could not break.

"Under ordinary circumstances, the very great change in the harvest outlook would have altogether dominated the situation both in financial markets and in general trade. The reversal of conditions in the grain and cotton belts has been such as has not often been witnessed in our agricultural history. The Government's monthly grain and cotton estimates of next Monday and the Monday following will show exactly what the result has been in July, but it is already known that a saason of almost perfect growing weather has so far altered the expectations of two months ago that instead of a distinctly deficient wheat crop on the diminished acreage, and a cotton crop with the worst recorded condition and an indicated yield the smallest in a decade, the country is now looking forward to an abundant surplus of wheat and to possibly the largest cotton crop since 1914.

Crop Outlook Improves.

"Such results, if actually achieved in the final out-turn, cannot fail to exert beneficial influence on the country's general situation. Their effect can hardly be the same, however, as it would have been if the turn of agricultural expectations from scarcity to relative abundance had not occurred with all markets jacked up to the basis of outright scarcity. Judged by the present outlook and recent action of grain and cotton prices the obstinate efforts to prevent readjustment in prices of food and clothing will be rendered far more difficult. The average citizen will unquestionably benefit. But it is not so evident how the producers and middlemen, who have been using credit in a tightening money market to sustain the extravagant prices of three or four months ago will be affected in their business calculations. The most that can be said, perhaps, is that an all-around lowering of the cost of living, primarily achieved through contraction of credit and refusal of consumers to buy at the old prices, but emphasized by increased production, was bound to disturb one part of the community while it greatly relieved another. As to which class had the paramount right, this year, to hope for a turn of events in its own favor, there is not the slightest question.

BRITISH CARRYING GOODS DESPITE HIGH MONEY RATE

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, July 31.—Our internal trade position is interesting as demonstrating the connection of money rates and the prices of commodities. Thus the present increased trade demands for loans are not due to an actual increase in commercial activity, but to disposition among manufacturers to carry accumulated goods on borrowed money in spite of high rates.

A few weeks ago the fall in silver and the demoralization of the Eastern exchanges imparted such a check to Eastern orders that manufacturers were on the point of cutting prices to get rid of their stock in other directions. The recovery in silver has caused hopes of a revival of Eastern demand and prompted a policy of carrying goods on loans. Hence the interesting question arises whether lower prices should be forced by yet dearer money.

Railroad Attitude Approved.

In spite of Northcliffe's attack on the Government's policy of higher railway fares, the best quarters support that policy, recognizing it as the only logical sequence of higher wages. If industry is to be self-supporting, moreover, the Government's attitude, together with the recent refusal of the miners' fresh demands, apparently represent a tardy recognition of the fact that there will be no permanent improvement of the economic situation here until the extravagance of the whole community and the socialistic demands of labor are checked by a clear recognition that salvation lies in economy of consumption and increased output.

The "equilibrium" established by your national budget excites much approval and interest here and quick were the demands for a reduction of our expenditure, which at present is wholly inconvenient with the position of this country.

Capital flotations here during the closing months of the year will necessarily be large, while the Government has to meet large amounts of maturing debt.

Says Co-operation Needed.

In the view of our leading financial people here, a consideration of the general outlook requires a clearer recognition of the political and social unrest prevailing throughout the world. There has been too much disposition hitherto to regard our liberties as necessarily secured by the recent war and to believe that only time is required for recuperating.

The real facts are that a permanent financial recuperation is impossible until the political and social outlook is clearer. Lloyd George's appeal to America on the occasion of the Lincoln statue unveiling was justified, because just as co-operation between America and England could have prevented war, and just as it is necessary for the League of Nations, so a similar co-operation is needed to suppress Bolshevism in the widest aspect and give true liberty, not license.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The important development in the financial situation this week has been the reassuring statements from banking quarters regarding the credit outlook. There could be no better informed authority than Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board. His opinions are worth far more than those of any individual banker because the individual banker sees only a small part of what is going on, while the head of the Federal Reserve System views the whole picture. When Mr. Harding says that the credit position has improved decidedly and more than could have been possibly hoped for a few months ago, when he says that the banks of the country have never been better situated to meet the crop moving demands and expressed himself as an optimist on the future, his observations must carry very great weight. It is not only the Reserve Board Sovernor who has spoken on the subject. Banking representatives from the Middlewest have added their testimony and it is all to the effect that no serious difficulty is to be apprehended in providing the harvest requirements.

Up to three weeks ago there was a very general feeling that whatever the stock market had to hope for in the way of better things would have to be realized in July and August. After that the idea was that the money market, influenced by the flow of funds to the agricultural regions, would shut down tighter than ever upon Wall Street demands and there was much uneasiness as to whether we would get through the autumn without some sort of a money crisis. The first part of the program has gone astray and it now begins to look as if the second part will likewise belie the forecasts. Instead of a rising market with its incentive to speculative activity as was predicted a month ago, we have seen the abortive upward movement at the start of July quickly undone and followed by a decline which has brought the general average of prices back almost to the low of May, which means almost the lowest of the year.

Constructive Factors.

The market has failed to show any enthusiasm over the expected rate increase, has not responded to the excellent progress of the crops, has even not been helped by the expressions of confidence regarding the credit position. But while extremely discouraging as this is on the surface of things there is a solid basis for the view that the downward movement in stocks reducing stock exchange loans to as near an absolute minimum as is conceivable is putting the market in shape to meet any possible exigencies of the autumn money strain, as would not have been the case had there been a midsummer speculation for the rise. The most reassuring feature of the money situation is that the banks, under the urging of the Federal Reserve heads, have started to get ready for the crop demands fully a month and a half before the accustomed time.

Credit Situation.

The stock market is evidently doing the same thing and so are the commodity markets. The enormous declines which have occurred in the speculative wheat, corn, cotton and provision options during the last month or six weeks is a very important consideration for the credit outlook. It means a really vast reduction in the amount of credit that will be required to move the harvest as compared with what had been figured upon two months ago.

It would be fortunate indeed if conditions everywhere were like they are in the Cleveland district, where bank borrowings are less than half their normal. In this section deflation of credit has made all the progress that could be asked for, but Gov. Harding, in quoting the Cleveland case, also indicates that other districts are falling into line and that every step that is taken toward relieving railway congestion and releasing goods in warehouses is an equal step toward settling the credit difficulties. Complete solution of the railway problem would bring complete solution of the credit problem. This fact stands out more certainly than ever all the time.

Buying Power Absent.

Part of the recent decline is assignable not so much to the credit stringency as to the reduction in profit and general slow-down in various industrial lines. This factor has counted in the weakness of the woolen, leather and some of the motor shares. But industrial reaction cannot be introduced as an explanation for the weakness in other industrial stocks which have been publishing fine earnings statements and which have a recognized splendid outlook. Stocks of this kind are simply suffering from the general market condition, which is one of timidity on the part of outside investors and of apathy on the part of financial interests which are usually counted upon to furnish the initiative for upward swings. The so-called big men are not selling, but they are in no hurry to buy until they can see a more immediate promise of a freer supply of funds for Wall Street purposes. There has been a heavy speculation on the short side and all signs point to the existence of an unusually large short interest. But with the public and the rich capitalists both holding aloof there is very little buying power and bear traders are able to get prices down even in stocks which are obviously very cheap on the known facts regarding earnings.

The history of such situations is that the market after a while becomes oversold. But in the present conditions it is hard to see where there will be any fundamental change until crop moving needs have been met.

The hope is that having begun so far ahead of time the peak of these demands will be reached earlier than usual, perhaps in time to allow the market to follow the tradition of presidential years and have an October rise.

A Business Man's Investment Yielding 10½ Per Cent

Investors who purchased of us stock of the Manhattan Electric Supply Company a few years ago have been generously rewarded by cash and stock dividends and by increase in market value.

Those who now purchase the new stock of this strong, well-managed and progressive company will, in our judgment, be equally well repaid.

The company is a leader in its line; has no bonded debt nor preferred stock. There is only one class of stock and the net tangible assets behind each share amount to more than the price at which the stock is offered. To be listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

CURB TRADING SMALL, TONE GENERALLY HEAVY

Oil List Neglected — Mining Shares Steady—Few Outsiders Interested.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Trading on the Curb Market today was smaller than in any previous session in several months. The tone generally was heavy, although there were one or two exceptions which recorded advances during the covering of shorts. These were stocks like General Asphalt, which had been under severe pressure at previous times during the past week.

So far as could be learned there was little outside participation and the bulk of the business was done by the professionals, who continued bearish on the average.

Chicago Nipple attracted considerable attention. The bids in this stock seemed to have been withdrawn and moderate selling pressure caused a drop of several points. According to those in the crowd, the demand came entirely from traders who covered shorts which were put out some time ago, while the sharp advance in the stock was in progress.

General Asphalt was in demand from the professionals and recorded an upturn. United States Steamship was quite active, with quotations about unchanged. International Products held steady. There was some pressure against United Retail Candy which resulted in a decline of a substantial fraction.

Little can be said of the oil list. The majority of the recent speculative favorites were neglected and there were no transactions in many of these until just before the end of the day. Several of the low-priced shares were comparatively active, Leetone being one of the leaders and holding about unchanged.

A fairly tseady tone was displayed in the mining shares, but outside interest was negligible and the movements were in the control of the specialists and the professionals.

GRAIN PRICES SET BACK SHARPLY DURING WEEK

Financial Situation and Improved Crop Outlook Prime Factors Used by Bears.

Severe slashing of grain prices during the past week resulted to a considerable degree from tight money conditions. Compared with a week ago, wheat quotations are down 42½c to 46c a bushel, corn off 14⅝c to 18½c, oats 6¼c to 7c.

Disturbing financial and industrial developments, notably indications of strains in the automobile business, had such a bearish effect on cereals that the week started with an immediate cut of several cents in the value of wheat. Next day the wheat market suffered a nearly complete collapse accompanied by evidence of distress selling largely due to heavy margin calls. Then export buying gave temporary relief, but talk of borrowers' difficulties in obtaining money again became a depressing influence and with a setback in foreign exchange did much to bring about radical falling off in demand. Chief among other bearish factors were reports that contrary to recent widespread belief no great impairment of the spring wheat crop this season would result from black rust.

Despite excessive dry weather in Illinois, Missouri and Iowa, the corn and oats market gave way with wheat, though to a less sensational extent. Reports of showers Saturday added to break of midweek.

December wheat on Saturday was offered down to $2.14. This was the first time since the trading in futures was resumed, following the expiration of the food control act, that the price of wheat got below the old guaranteed minimum of $2.21 for No. 1 red winter wheat. The break in wheat since opening day has been 61 cents.

FURTHER SEVERE DROP IN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Cutting of prices seems to be the favorite indoor pastime of the grain trade just now and the slashing is most severe in wheat. The only buying power in this market is from short sellers who want to collect profits and even the much reduced prices fails to stimulate any investment buying.

Prices today were the lowest posted since Government guaranteed prices were fixed about three years ago.

An idea of the cut is illustrated by a sale of wheat to exporters today at $2.45 track New York compared with a sale of two days ago made at $2.79. Cash wheat today was 15c lower and this caused a late bear drive on the market. The close showed losses of 11c to 13c.

Liquidation by belated longs caused a sharp break in July corn early.

The deferred months were under pressure most of the session because of the break in wheat and the disturbed financial situation. The buying was mainly by shorts, but even this was not sufficient to hold the decline in check, closing prices being ⅝c to 6½c. Rains were reported over parts of Illinois and heavy over Nebraska and this has improved the crop outlook. Cash corn was 2½c to 4c lower. Shipping sales were 25,000 bushels.

In oats, the feature was the liquidation in July and that month closed 9½c lower. Late months were receiving some support from Eastern interests, but losses of ⅞@1¼c were sustained. Cash oats were 3c lower. Crop reports favorable. Shipping sales were 110,000 bushels.

Provisions were quiet and without feature. Weakness in grain offset the firmer hog market. Pork closed 67½c lower, lard 32½ to 45c off and ribs 15c to 50c lower.

Closing prices on provisions with high, low and previous close follow:

HOG MARKET RECOVERS AFTER SHARP BREAK

Lamb Prices Decline, While Sheep Are Steady—Good Cows in Demand.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., July 31.—Cattle receipts at the St. Louis National Stockyards for the week just closed totaled 32,000 head, one of the heaviest supplies seen here so far the current year. Previous week, 29,000 cattle and calves got in and corresponding days a year ago arrivals were 26,000.

St. Louis has been in a dry pocket, this market being the center of a drouth area within a radius of perhaps 150 miles. Pastures are gone in some localities and as a result there have been a world of little, light, immature cattle seen here the past week, the market being overloaded with that class. Serictly prime corn fed beeves have been conspicuous for their absence. Such kinds are quotably steady or not over 25c lower at most. The week's top was $16, paid for good but not choice Benton County, Mo., steers of 1300 pounds weight. Mixed Linn County, Mo., yearlings cleared at the same figure. Illinois light butcher yearlings brought $15.50.

On the medium to plain grass steers market was dull in the extreme and offerings difficult to move from day to day. Prices are off from 50c to $1 generally and more than that in spots.

About 250 loads of Texas and Oklahoma range steers arrived during the week. Best heavy stocks sold steady to 25c lower, bringing $12 to $12.75. Plain to commoner grassers from the Southwest dropped 50c to 75c for the week.

Prime beef cows dropped about 25c the past week and they were scarce. Medium to common butcher cows were hard hit, breaking 75c to $1.50. In fact it was practically a demoralized market for the plainer cows. Canners weer 25c to 50c lower, selling largely at $4 near the week's close.

Bulls were draggy and steady early in the week but dropped 50c to 75c by the finish. Good weighty bologna bulls sold late at $6 to $6.50. Bull top on best beef grades was $9.50.

Veal calves sold well throughout the week. Total calf offering for the six-day period was 5500 head, a good supply. By Thursday the veal market had advanced 50c to 75c, with a $16.50 top, the highest paid since early in May. On Friday, however, this advance was wiped out, the market closing about like the week's opening.

Stocker and feeder market quiet with country demand light. Prices about 50c lower and down at the year's bottom ebb. In fact, stock cattle are back to pre-war prices. Best heavy feeders cleared at $10 to $10.75. Stock cows cleared at $4.50 to $5.25.

Following a severe break Tuesday, which sent values down to a $15.50 basis on close of that day, or a decline of an even dollar, the market started back up and on Friday showed a full recovery. On the closing day a slight weakness set in and market closed off 10 to 15 cents lower for the week. Sharp breaks in the provision and grain markets were largely responsible for the severe slump early in the week, while light runs and active order buying contributed to the later recovery. Receipts for the period stand at 37,825, as against 45,871 last week. Best prices were paid for light and handyweight hogs not to exceed 210 pounds, and over that weight the price tapered downward. Bulk of the hogs sold within a range of $15.50@16.50 per cwt. Pig market was so erratic as to be almost unquotable. The high spot was reached on Friday when best pigs brought $16, or a good 50c higher than a week ago. This advance was lost in a dull market at the close.

Lamb Prices Drop.

No material change was noted during the past week in the market for sheep, all kinds selling readily at steady prices, but the trade for lambs was quite difefrent. The supply was liberal and as a result buyers forced the market down until the close of the week found lambs selling at the lowest prices of the year and buyers sorting their purchases heavy.

On Tuesday best lambs sold at $14.50@14.75, but at the end of the week the same kinds were worth only $12.50@13.50, after close sorting. Fair and common grade lambs were very dull all week and as a result some were sent back to the country. It took a good grade to bring $13 and better the last two days of the week, while fair kinds went at $12@12.75, poor $10@11.50, and culls $4@6.

All week about all the mutton sheep offered brought $7.50, while breeding ewes sold largely at $8, with choice young ones as high as $10, choppers $4.50@5.50, canners $1.50@2, and bucks $5.

Good Southern Horses in General Demand.

Over 3500 horses, about 2900 bronchos and 600 natives were handled the past week and dealers were well satisfied with the condition of the trade. Market was strong on southern horses of the better class and prices were as high as they have ever been this early in the season. Thin, common, unbroke horses with big heads, however, were not wanted and were not worth 50 cents on the dollar, to use the expression of one authority. Eastern trade has not entirely ceased but the demand is of little importance. There is some trade for real work horses but they must be real work horses.

Cotton Mule Trade Inactive.

The run of mules was heavier, but there were too many misfits and not enough of the right kind. Consequently there was more looking than buying and the trade was anything but active. Big mules and miners are slower than they have been, but there has been some development in the cotton mule trade to take the place. Cotton mules must be fat, well broke and from 15 to 16¼ hinds high.

TRADE REPORTS AND WEATHER BREAK COTTON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—In further efforts to adjust itself to the very bearish weather and textile conditions, the cotton market this morning sustained another severe break, losing 32 to 42 points shortly after the opening, with October going through 32 cents, the level at which heretofore there always was a good deal of trade buying and local covering. Even week-end covering in late months failed to hold the market, which appeared to have practically no support from outside sources. Additional impetus was given the decline by prospects for a bearish crop on Monday, as indicated by private condition figures this week, the average of which is 75, compared with the 10-year average of 75.6. A prominent firm in Waco, Tex., estimated condition for the State at 76, but said that during August heavy deterioration is likely on account of shedding, es young cotton does not have a good tap root.

Further heavy selling occurred in the final hour under which October declined to 31.27c and December to 30 cents, closing at practically the lowest of the day and 45 to 80 points under the previous night.

Cotton futures closed irregular; October, 31.27c; December, 30.00c; January, 29.18c; March, 28.90c; May, 28.50c.

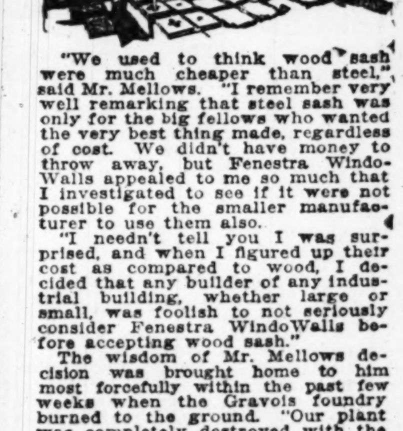
LOW COMPARATIVE COST OF FENESTRA WAS SURPRISING

Wm. Mellows, Manager of St. Louis Foundries, Found Fenestra the Best and Most Economical.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 1.—Will Mellows, Manager of the Liberty Foundry and the Gravois Foundry, St. Louis, was not content with guess work as to the cost of steel sash. He secured facts about Fenestra WindoWalls, with the result that he specified them in both foundries under his control.



"We used to think wood sash were much cheaper than steel," said Mr. Mellows. "I remember very well remarking that steel sash was only for the big fellows who wanted the very best thing made, regardless of cost. We didn't have money to throw away, but Fenestra WindoWalls appealed to me so much that I investigated to see if it were not possible for the smaller manufacturer to use them also.

"I needn't tell you I was surprised, and when I figured up their cost as compared to wood, I decided that any builder of any industrial building, whether large or small, was foolish to not seriously consider Fenestra WindoWalls before accepting wood sash."

The wisdom of Mr. Mellows decision was brought home to him most forcefully within the past few weeks when the Gravois foundry burned to the ground. "Our plant was completely destroyed with the exception of the Fenestra sash," writes Mr. Gundelfinger, Superintendent at the Gravois Foundry.

"These sash were some of them rather badly bent, but we were able to straighten them, and we will be able to use 95 per cent of them over again when we rebuild. We must say we were very well satisfied with the sash, and it is our intention in the future to use Fenestra in preference to any other."

OTIS ELEVATOR CO. SAW THE ECONOMY IN USING FENESTRA

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 1.—The Otis Elevator Company of this city, one of the largest elevator manufacturing concerns in the world, specified Fenestra WindoWalls recently when an addition to their factory was needed in record time.

The Otis people have gone into the question of steel sash very thoroughly, and are thoroughly conversant with the advantages of this type of building material over the old-fashioned wooden windows. They know the relative cost figures on both materials, and the approximate time required for shipment. Therefore, when they needed the most modern factory wall material on the market in the shortest possible time, they naturally specified Fenestra Sash, in standard types and sizes.

Superintendent Baer says they have had no occasion to regret their decision. The building, which is now completed and occupied, measures up to their expectations entirely.

SOME people think that steel sash is more expensive than wood sash.
That idea is wrong.
Fenestra costs less than wood sash—in the first place—and reduces the cost of maintenance.

HYDE AND FARRIS FOR THE COMPENSATION LAW

McJimsey Fails to Make Direct Reply to Question Put to Gubernatorial Candidates.

The Associated Industries of Missouri, an employers' organization, announced yesterday that it had received replies from three candidates for Governor to its letter asking the candidates to state their position on the subject of a workmen's compensation law for Missouri.

The letter requested candidates to "kindly advise—yes or no—if you favor the ratification, at the general election in November, of the workmen's compensation law passed at the last session of the Legislature." This law is to be submitted to the voters under the referendum.

The letter stated that the replies would be sent to the executives of 2500 business concerns in the state, to reach them the day before the primary.

Two of the candidates replying, Arthur M. Hyde, Republican, and Frank H. Farris, Democrat, said they favored the ratification of the law to be voted on in November. The third, E. E. E. McJimsey, Republican, did not make a direct reply to the question. The replies were:

Hyde: "I am in favor of a fair workmen's compensation law in Missouri. Due to the press of events in this campaign, I am unable to find time to go into all the features of the present law, but would favor its ratification in November, leaving any obnoxious features, if such exist, to be changed by the Legislature."

Farris: "I was a member of the last General Assembly, which passed a workmen's compensation law, and I did what I could to secure the passage of a bill that was equitable and fair to the laborers and the employers of labor in Missouri. I voted for the bill which was passed and which has subsequently been referred by the referendum to the people of Missouri for their approval and I am heartily in favor of and hope that the people of Missouri will approve the same, for we must have some beginning, and, while time may demonstrate inequalities in the present law, yet it is a start in the right direction, and in my judgment as a whole a very fair and equitable measure. If it should be defeated, however, I shall still stand for an equitable and just compensation law."

McJimsey: "I am heartily in favor of a fair and workable Workmen's Compensation Law. Whether the proposed law in Missouri embodies all and only such provisions as in my judgment would constitute a just and workable measure I am not in position at this time to say, as I have had neither the time nor the opportunity for a careful study thereof. The principle is, in my judgment, sound."

As the letter was not sent out until Wednesday, it is supposed that some of the candidates did not receive it in time to reply, some of them being in different parts of the state campaigning.

BROTHERS KILLED BY TRAIN

While Grazing Horse, They Probably Fell Asleep on Tracks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 31.—Two boys, 14 and 11 years old, only sons of Mrs. Arnetta Sexton, widow, residing near Louisa, Ky., were killed by a freight train near there last night, according to reports brought here. Mrs. Sexton lost her husband in a similar manner several years ago.

The mother had sent the boys to graze a horse on the railroad right of way near home. They had worked hard during the day, and it is supposed they sat down on the track and fell asleep. When they did not return the mother went to look for them two hours later and found their mangled bodies scattered along the track.

Sinn Fein Courts Displacing British Authority in Almost All Parts of "Irish Republic"

Republican Tribunals, by Common Consent Settle All Kinds of Civil Disputes—Punish Criminals English Cannot Touch.

By ERNEST A. BOYD.

WHEN Ireland is seen from a distance, only the glamour of patriotism can make the spectacle tolerable or even comprehensible. A heavy cloud of controversy and disputed facts obstructs the vision of the outside observer, and the obscurity is lighted up only by the flashes of crime and violence on both sides which are regularly reported in the daily press. Is it any wonder that the average citizen of the world is baffled by the attempt to get the true perspective of the Irish situation? There is a remote island abandoned apparently to Prussianism and anarchy, alternately or simultaneously, and its inhabitants seem perversely to acquiesce in a regime of terrorism. Why should one waste time in trying to understand so monstrous a paradox as this idealization of what seems to be an armed dictatorship?

Perhaps another aspect of the case will emerge from a consideration of that side of Sinn Fein which is not lurid enough to capture headlines and does not stir the imagination of the war correspondents on the "Irish front."

Shortly before leaving Dublin a couple of weeks ago I was in the office of an important commercial organization, one of whose employes had threatened legal proceedings for what he considered a breach of contract. On the desk of the chief of the department lay a document which he handed to me, saying: "What do you think of that?" Omitting the names and dates, the document ran as follows:

IRISH
REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT
........AREA
SUMMONS

Complainant.......................
Defendant.......................
Date of Issue.......................

This is to notify you under the above authority to appear as........ at........on.........day of...... to............the following charge ....before such REPUBLICAN JUSTICE as shall be there.

IRISH
REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT
.........AREA

I, or we, the undersigned, do hereby agree to abide by the decision of the Arbitration Court for the.... Area recognized by Dail Eireann, and in this case will not appeal from the Irish Republican Authority to a British Court of Law.

Signed.......................
Witnesses.......................
Date.......................

The case in question had been brought by the plaintiff to a Sinn Fein court of justice, and this was the first step on the part of the republican authorities towards settling the dispute. No case can be heard until both parties have subscribed to the declaration that they will abide by the decision of the Republican authority and will not appear to what is regarded as an alien tribunal. There is no intimidation. These tribunals work only by mutual agreement between all concerned. They are functioning so successfully that the London Daily News reported on June 24 that "there is a nearer approach to settled order in districts where the writ of the Sinn Fein court runs than anywhere else in the island."

Method if Elected.

These courts are constituted nuder the authority of the Department of Justice of Dail Eireann, the Republican Parliament. There are two classes of civil and criminal courts: Paris courts and and district courts. Steps are being taken to appoint the Judges by popular election in the area in which their jurisdiction will be exercised. Pending these elections the judges are elected by conferences composed of represntative officials and public men, such as the member of Dail Eireann for the constituency, the members of the local County Council, the clergymen of all denominations from each parish, the members of the Urban and Rural District Councils and others, including one representative from each trades union. The judges of a Parish Court number three. The judges of a District Court are five in number, and are elected by members of all the parish courts in the district. Women and clergymen are eligible for judicial appointments. All judges and court officials must take an oath of allegiance to the Irish republic and its Government, Dail Eireann.

The parish civil courts deal only with minor disputes. Claims to the value of more than $50 must be heard by the district courts. The parish criminal courts are courts of summary jurisdiction, before which all minor offenses are tried. The jurisdiction of the district courts is much wider. There is one in every parliamentary constituency. All important claims and cases of titles to land are decided by these district courts. The district criminal courts try all serious offenses and have as I shall show, the power to enforce adequate punishment. Within four days an appeal may be made against the decision of a Parish Court in a District Court, whose ruling is final. Judges specially appointed by the Republican Minister of Justice hear appeals against the district courts. Fees and costs are met out of deposits lodged by the litigants. Where the case relates to property, a certain percentage of the value of the claim or property is demanded, 10 per cent in claims not exceeding $250 and an increasing percentage as the value in dispute is greater. Unless the court decides otherwise, the successful litigant is refunded his deposit. Where the action is considered to be merely frivolous and vexatious, the deposit of the plaintiff is confiscated.

Universally Functioning.

The Sinn Fein courts are functioning universally throughout Ireland, including all the Ulster counties except the northeast corner. During the first fortnight of last month alone, 41 Republican courts sat in 24 of the 33 counties of Ireland. Eighty-four arrests were reported in that period, and the varied nature of the cases tried showed how widespread is the recognition of these tribunals, and their scrupulous impartiality. Ex-soldiers and policemen, British excise officers and British noblemen, were protected without any reference to their political affiliations. At Cork City an arbitration court presided over by the Mayor settled a trade dispute between the local bakers and the drivers of their delivery wagons. In the County Louth two ex-soldiers, charged with the misappropriation of $2535, were extricated from the charge by their Republican counsel, and released by the court. At Foynes, County Limerick, five men were arrested by the Sinn Fein police for the theft of $410 from the residence of Lord Monteagle, who recently introduced the Dominion Home Rule Bill into the House of Lords. The money was recovered and restored to the owner. In a town in Galway an overzealous Sinn Fein patriot was charged with making false accusations of spying for the British Government against certain residents. The Republican Court ordered him to make a public apology, and then released him. In County Monaghan two farmers, one a Sinn Feiner and the other a Unionist, were arrested and tried by a Republican Court for manufacturing illicit whisky. Their stills were confiscated and each was fined $50.

Such are a few typical minor instances of the sort of cases with which the Sinn Fein courts are dealing all over the country, where the British authorities have failed to bring offenders to justice. The number could be extended to wearisome lengths without throwing any more light on the essential fact,

Missouri's Safest 7 Per Cent

Honest capitalization, sound management, constant solid growth and ample earnings based on low rates and good service under State regulation—these factors make Union Electric's 7 per cent preferred stock, in our judgment, the safest 7 per cent investment in Missouri.

There is more than $100 worth of State-appraised, income-producing public service property back of each $100 share of this stock.

Its yearly income of $7 cash on each share, payable in quarterly installments, is regular and dependable.

Many Missouri men and women invest their savings in this stock regularly, to get 7 per cent a year, paid quarterly, instead of 3 or 4 per cent a year paid semi-annually. They appreciate the chance here given them to share the earnings of Missouri's largest and strongest electric service company.

Issuance and sale of this stock was authorized by the State to finance growth of the Company's public service properties.

Price: $100 a share for cash; $102 on a ten-payment plan, under which buyers draw 5 per cent interest on installment payments, and can withdraw all payments, with interest, any time before final installment is paid.

Sales Offices: Room 201 Union Electric Building, 12th and Locust streets, St. Louis, and Union Electric's offices in St. Louis, St. Charles, Franklin, Perry and Jefferson Counties.

Mail Orders: Bank draft, certified check, postoffice or express money order should be sent with mail orders. Prompt delivery of shares will be made by registered mail.

SINN FEIN COURTS DISPLACING BRITISH AUTHORITY IN IRELAND

namely, that the Irish Republic is discharging some of the functions of a government, as well as discharging the rifles and revolvers of which we hear so much. The greatest coup, however, remains to be told, and it is worth telling, for it is the story of the Republican cause celebre.

The Great "Coup.'

Last November the representatives of the Munster and Leinster and of the National Bank left their branch offices at Millstreet, County Cork, to attend a cattle fair in the district. They carried with them some $83,500 in notes and silver. They drove to the fair in two parties, and when they were about three miles from the town of Millstreet they were held up by five armed and disguised men, who relieved the first party of $33,500 and then took $50,000 from the second. The drivers of the two cars were tied to a tree, as were the bank officials, and the bandits disappeared. After some time the victims extricated themselves and returned to report the occurrence to the police, who did not even visit the scene of the action, but subsequently reported that no trace of the robbers could be found. In due course the crime was announced as the work of Sinn Fein, and, as usual, no further action was taken.

Meanwhile the Republican police gat busy and detachments of Irish Volunteers were sent out to scour the country for the missing criminals. Last April, five months after the robbery, they came into possession of the necessary evidence and descended upon their quarry. Fifty armed Volunteers assembled in Millstreet and scouts were placed to watch the houses of the robbers. When these had reported that the men wanted were in their houses, the Volunteers occupied the town. The suspected houses were isolated and surrounded, and the thieves, with the exception of two, who escaped, were all arrested. After many hearings and prolonged deliberations the facts were elicited, showing how the hold-up had been planned and where the money was hidden. The greater part of this was recovered and returned to the banks.

The Punishment.

The following sentences were pronounced:

Daniel Buckley, publican, ex-soldier, ex-convict, a man with many years of evil-doing to his credit, known to have been implicated in many minor robberies, was sentenced to 15 years' transportation. During that period he was warned against entering Ireland without permission of the Volunteers.

Michael O'Connor, laborer, who was convicted of aiding the hold-up and whose record was very bad, was sentenced to 15 years' transportation.

Patrick Carmody, baker, motor-car proprietor and general merchant, who was convicted of complicity, but who was shown to be largely under the influence of others who had employed him because he was the driver of the bankers' car, was sentenced to ten years' transportation.

Michael Murphy, small farmer, who was convicted of complicity, but whose record was not bad, was sentenced to eight years' transportation.

John Buckley, brother of Daniel Buckley, who took no part in the robbery, but was convicted of accepting $5000, was sentenced to 12 months' transportation.

James Cotter, laborer, who took no part in the robbery, but who was aware of the conspiracy and accepted hush money, was sentenced to five years' deportation from the County of Cork.

Daniel Sullivan, laborer, who was convicted of receiving a small sum of the stolen money, was sentenced to leave Millstreet within 24 hours.

During all this time, according to the press reports of the proceedings, the British authorities seemed far more concerned to discover and arrest the members of the Sinn Fein police and tribunal than to assist in running the men to earth who had escaped. Several times the places of trial and imprisonment had to be changed when it became known that the military authorities had received information as to their whereabouts. The sequel was that the ringleader of the gang returned to Ireland in

CHANCE ON ANYTHING BUT FIRE

Government Says It Never Pays to Gamble With Flames.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Seldom if ever, does the Government advise speculation, but the Department of Agriculture says:

"If you have got to gamble, take a 'flyer' on the stock market or play the ponies, but don't take a chances on fire." It gives this advice in a circular in its campaign against forest fires. "It never pays to take a chance with fire," says the circular. "The biggest fires in history were started by those who didn't think the woods would burn. Be as careful of fire as you are of powder; it's just as dangerous."

FIRE LOSS IN ILLINOIS JUMPS 30 PER CENT OVER LAST YEAR

Increase, However, Is Believed to Be Due Mostly to Advance in Valuations Rather Than Actual Destruction.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 31.—The fire loss in Illinois the first six months of 1920 ran 30 per cent higher than for the first half of the previous year, according to figures of Fire Marshal John G. Gamber. The 1920 figure was $10,022,987, as against $7,369,988 in 1919.

The Fire Marshal regards the jump in fire losses as due to increase in valuations rather than to increase in fires.

June contributed 20 per cent of the fire loss of the half year. The chief factor in swelling last month's figures was a fire in the Cicero yards of the Burlington Railroad which destroyed 127 loaded freight cars with a loss of more than $1,000,000.

The largest loss from known causes aside from the Cicero item was done by lightning which was credited with 63 fires, with a total loss of $156,026. The Fire Marshal reports that only one of the buildings was rodded.

X-RAY EXPERT LOSES HANDS

Right Arm and Left Wrist Amputated Because of Burns.

PARIS, July 31.—A man who will figure high in the record of those who have sacrificed themselves to science is M. Charles Infroit, who has been the head of the Government X-Ray Department since 1898. After undergoing 20 operations occasioned by research work, he was obliged to have his right arm amputated two years ago, and now he has had his left wrist taken off.

This latest operation is the result of old burns caused by X-rays, together with the experiences he underwent in the army laboratories during the war, when installations were necessarily of an elementary description. M. Infroit, who is only 45, is having an artificial arm fitted, which will enable him to continue the work to which he is so passionately devoted.

WOMAN SMUGGLER SENTENCED

GENEVA, July 31.—Mme. Bella Hartmann, young widow of an Austrian officer, has been sentenced at Lindau to pay a fine of 50,000 marks and serve one month in jail for smuggling.

It is said she defrauded the Berlin and Vienna authorities out of more than $3,000,000 by means of a small army of employes at Lake Constance who used six automobiles, three motorboats and other paraphernalia in their illicit business.

SINN FEIN COURTS DISPLACING BRITISH AUTHORITY IN IRELAND

defiance of the sentence passed upon him. After two days he was rearrested and condemned to 20 years' deportation. On the following night he was sent out of the country under an armed guard. Finally the following notice was circulated by Sinn Fein:

WANTED BY REPUBLICAN POLICE.

Bank Robbers Who May Make Armed Resistance to Arrest.

"Hugh O'Brien of Inchamay, Lyre, Banteer, County Cork. Height, 6 feet 1 inch, athletic and well built; has all the appearances of a drilled man. Eyes sparkling and of a restless disposition; wore a well-cared-for moustache which might now be shaved off; appears to be a highly strung temperament; speaks with a peculiar accent. From information on hand he seems to be an adept at disguising his identity. No risks should be taken in connection with the arrest of this man, as it is likely that he might defend himself with firearms.

"Daniel O'Brien of Inchamay, Lyre, Banteer, County Cork. Height about 6 feet 1 inch and built in proportion. Features brownish-red, of a hardy nature, walks with a loose gait and is a typical countryman. He has a peculiar habit of opening his eyes extra wide when looking at any person. A powerfully built man. All precautions should be taken when placing him under arrest.

"The arrest of the above-mentioned two brothers has been ordered by the officer commanding Millstreet Battalion, Cork Second Brigade, on the instructions of the Minister of Justice, Dail Eireann. It is of the utmost importance that should these men be found in your area they should be immediately placed under arrest and you should communicate at once with above officer."

British Broken Down.

There, in the merest outline, is a sketch of some of the activities of those who are at present in control of the greater part of Ireland. What I have described is an indication of the extent to which British Government in that country has broken down. It also explains, as the spasmodic reports of murder and disorder do not, why it is mere blindness to pretend that Sinn Fein is the force of a handful of fanatics and desperados. During the last two years and a half there have been three occasions on which the attitude of the Irish people towards Sinn Fein was tested. At the general election of December, 1918, 79 per cent of the entire electorate declared in its favor. At the municipal elections in January, 1920, 77 per cent of the towns and cities returned majorities in favor of Sinn Fein. At the County Council election last month 80 per cent of the rural districts voted in the same sense. The entire local administration of Ireland, outside northeast Ulster, is now controlled, in town and country, by Sinn Fein. I need hardly point out that, in the circumstances the constructive, obstructive and destructive elements in the movement can, and do, come into full play.

Keeping Healthy in the Broiling Sun

When head feels heavy or stomach is acidy, get prompt relief with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

IN spite of the lighter foods we eat during summer months, it is the season of greatest dyspepsia and constipation. Many find it difficult to stand the heat. They exercise little and are always tired and half-sick.

It is good policy to take plenty of ripe fruit and vegetables, lots of cool, clear water and walks when the sun has set. But with all these precautions it is often impossible to regulate the daily elimination, with the result that thousands suffer from constipation, indigestion and similar ills.

There is nothing better for clogged-up bowels, for a stomach that refuses to work, than that well-known combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is America's standard relief for constipation. It has the great merit of being sure to act, yet acting mildly and without griping.

Thousands of mothers give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to infants, and it is especially popular in hot weather. Mrs. E. C. Wilson, who lives in Hugo, Okla., where the heat in summer is intense, is the mother of eight children. All of them, and including herself, maintain their health in spite of enervating heat by frequent use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See what it will do for you.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

Louise Glaum, the Famous Actress, Says Show Me a Homely Girl or Woman and I'll Show You a Neglected Complexion

MISS LOUISE GLAUM

With a Soft, Peach-Like Velvety Skin Every Woman Would Be Attractive. Nothing So Good for the Skin as Ordinary Oatmeal.

New York—"The girl or woman who is passed by without a glance of admiration has only herself to blame," says Louise Glaum, the beautiful actress now starring in the J. Parker Reed Jr. Productions. Through following the simple combination given below it is now possible for every girl and woman to have an attractive, rosy-white, beautiful complexion, free from freckles, wrinkles, blackheads, pimples, coarse or large pores, tan, dark skin, sallowness or roughness. A few minutes night and morning is all the time required. Just follow the advice of Louise Glaum and the wonderful effect of this simple combination will please and surprise you. This method may be used without the least fear of harmful results and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Here is the formula: Go to any grocery store and get 10 cents worth of oatmeal and from any drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Then cleanse your skin with a good cold cream (Liska Cold Cream I have found to be the best). Put a little of the oatmeal in a bag made of cheese cloth, drop on or into the bag ten to twenty drops of Derwillo and use this the same as you would a wash cloth. Use in combination regularly. A large number of the leading actresses of this country now use Derwillo in preference to all other beautifiers. Many preparations contain bismuth, pearl white and other dangerous drugs, which dry out the skin and clog the pores, thus preventing them from doing the work nature intended them to do. Derwillo contains nothing of this kind and is prepared under scientific sterilized sanitary conditions by an expert who has had years of experience in manufacturing beauty producers. Measured by results you get more for your money by using Derwillo than any other beautifier. Oatmeal when used with Derwillo has an astonishing effect. It softens, cleanses and makes strong, healthy skin tissues. It brings back to the skin that youthful, peach-like coloring every normal woman craves. Now that short sleeves are in vogue you will want beautiful hands and arms. There is nothing like oatmeal and Derwillo for this purpose. A few weeks' use of this combination and your friends will comment favorably on your improved appearance. Those who look old are those with a haggard, loose, wrinkled, muddy skin. Miss Louise Glaum follows this method herself and recommends it to her most intimate friends who are just as enthusiastic over it as she is. You can well afford to devote a few minutes each day to the care of your skin and if you do you will soon notice a wonderful improvement in your appearance. Just try it once and note the difference. Its use will make you look ten years younger.

NOTE—When asked about Derwillo, one of our leading druggists said, "It is truly a wonderful beautifier, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied. This guarantee would not be possible unless the product possessed unusual merit." It is sold in this city under the money-back guarantee by all department stores and druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Stores.

It is a daily occurrence in my office for one or more clients to tell me that the glasses which I have prescribed have given them the first complete freedom from headaches that they have ever had.
This is because there is no hit or miss method in the service which I render.
I don't have you try a number of stock lenses in the hope of finding one to help your vision. Your eyes are first carefully examined and the exact degree of deflection from normal vision is ascertained with scientific precision, then the lenses are selected and ground to fit your particular requirements and no other.
The complete satisfaction of thousands of clients during my 15 years of practice is a most important testimonial to the value of my services.

CHINA BEST BET AS WORLD REDEEMER, OBSERVER SAYS

With Europe Helpless and U. S. Hopeless, Orient Is Building Up "New Social Order to Save Civilization."

PLAN TO ESTABLISH "HEAVEN ON EARTH

Far Eastern Student Move Is Based Upon Simplicity, New Testament Teachings and Service as Aim.

BY DR. LOUIS LEVINE,
Former Professor of Political Economy in the University of Montana.

NEW YORK, July 31.—"All signs point to world redemption as an accomplished fact in the near future. How near depends largely upon America, but America will not play the leading part. The hope of the world today is China. Europe is helpless. America is hopeless. China is the world's one best bet, and out of China we shall soon see a new social order rising, more radical than Socialism, more revolutionary than Bolshevism, but presenting such a complete solution of earth's overwhelming problems that all humanity will rally to its banner."

Any acquaintance of Charles M. Wood in America would hardly expect him to make statements like that. Wood is, first of all, a newspaper man, and newspaper men do not make such statements. It simply isn't done. If they want to get any prophecies off their inspired chests, they look up some professional prophet who is willing to underwrite the risk. As for saying that America is hopeless—well, anyone who volunteers such a remark is subject to cross-examination.

"What do you mean hopeless?" I asked.

"Hopeless," he said. "Hope-less. Less hope. Lacking hope. We have almost everything that we ever had in America today except hope. We are supposed to have conservatives and radicals; but all we have are two different breeds of pessimists. The conservatives are forever pointing out that things can never be as good as they were in the unhappy days before the war, while the radicals are hoping for the worst. Let anybody assume that the world in our lifetime can be made fit to live in and he is set down as a nut. 'Utopian,' is our utmost term of contempt.

Utopia Not Enough in China.

"In China," he added, "they haven't the slightest notion of stopping with Utopia. Utopia is not good enough for them. Utopia is too dull; they want something with more life and go and zip. In China they are actually thinking of establishing the kingdom of heaven on earth. They are inclined to be sympathetic toward Bolshevism, but Bolshevism isn't revolutionary enough. The propaganda which is making most headway in China today is the revolutionary gospel of Jesus Christ."

"Christianity isn't supposed to be very revolutionary in America," I ventured.

"Christianity in America is not revolutionary," he answered, "but the gospel of Jesus is. Christianity, as I have known it here isn't making any particular progress in China; but the gospel of Jesus preached by Christian missionaries is. It is the storm center of the student movement in China. It is the life and soul of the revolution in Korea. The gospel of Jesus will win out in the world at large, because it contains the solution of the world's problems; but when it does win out, Christianity as we know it is likely to disappear."

Do you get him? I didn't. This sounded like news, I must admit, but it sounded a lot more like preaching. I asked Wood to what church he belonged.

"None," he said.

"Why not?"

"There isn't a church that I know of," he said, "that will let me join, unless it is Dr. Holmes' church here in New York, and I have never happened to attend that."

"Do you believe in the gospel of Jesus?" I asked.

"I believe that Jesus was right," he said. "Unfortunately, I believe in the gospel of Jesus as it is preached and practiced in China, not because it happens to be the gospel of Jesus, but because it is the complete solution of the world crisis of today. That lets me out of church membership. If I should become convinced, for instance, that the preaching of the Rev. William Sunday is a real interpretation of the gospel of Jesus, then I would be compelled to disagree with Jesus."

Sent to Interpret China.

Wood was sent to China by the Centenary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was not, however, sent as a press agent, but to interpret China and the Christian missionary movement from the standpoint of a rank outsider.

"How do the Methodists like your interpretation?" I asked.

"They liked it in China," he said. "I haven't the slightest idea yet as to how they will take it here. It is rather easy to understand what the church in China is driving at, but can anybody tell where the church in America stands? That is not a special criticism of the church. It is

Cured of Piles 20 Years' Standing by Dr. Henrich's Method, Feels Like a New Man Now

W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D. R. 2, Trenton, Ill., May 5, 1920.

Dear Doctor:—I want to tell all sufferers from Piles to take your wonderful treatment and be cured of their Piles for life.

I had been suffering from Bleeding and Protruding Piles for over 20 years and feel now like a new man. I was just down and out, so I could not do any work on the farm and was always constipated so I had to take pills regularly to have my bowels act. Now no medicine is necessary since my Piles are cured; I am as regular as a clock.

I know a neighbor of mine, Mr. John Clark, whom you also cured over 9 years ago, and he told me he is still cured. I also know many others you cured without the knife. I did not have to go to any hospital, so I did not have to take any of that dangerous chloroform or ether. It did not cause me any pain, so I was not laid up from your wonderful treatment. I improved right after the first treatment and am a well man now and expect to be always.

Sincerely yours,
MIKE KRUMP.

I would also like to make you healthy and happy as I did Mr. Krump and hundreds of others. Don't wait until you have Cancer of the Bowels or Consumption, then it's too late.

They end corns
now in this scientific way

People who know—millions of them—now end all corns in this way.

They apply Blue-jay, either in liquid or in plaster form. It means but a touch and takes but a jiffy.

The corn pain stops. Then the Blue-jay gently undermines the corn so it loosens and comes out.

The modern way

Blue-jay was invented by a chemist who studied corns.

It is made by a laboratory of world-wide repute.

Old-time treatments were harsh and inefficient. Blue-jay is gentle, quick and sure.

Now all corns are needless. All these pains can be avoided. To let corns remain while you pare and pad them is folly.

You can stop a corn ache the moment it appears. You can end a corn completely before it can develop.

Blue-jay has proved these facts to millions. It will prove them to you—and tonight—if you let it.

Quit the old methods of dealing with corns and see what this new way means. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

a comment on America at large. No one can tell what anybody wants in America. I was asked a hundred times in China to explain the difference between the Republican and Democratic aims in this country; and although I am a professional explainer, I was stumped.

"I had a queer idea of missionaries when I went over," he added. "I thought they were a sanctimonious, solemncholy, sacrificial crew, fanatically intent upon enlightening the 'heathen' concerning the only true formula for the forgiveness of sins. I didn't hear anything, however, about the 'heathen' when I was in China, and I didn't hear anything about the 'Christian civilization' of the West. Not a word either concerning the naughtiness of idol worship—none of that holier-than-thou Phariseeism with which we sinners are so commonly insulted here.

"What I heard mostly from the missionaries were plain talks about conditions of today. I heard about the unhappiness of life, how human hopes are so generally defeated and human aspirations mocked. And this applied, they said, not only to China but to the world in general—to a world which had gone wrong because all life was organized to get and not to give.

Saw World at Large in China.

"In China I saw the world at large much more clearly than I ever saw it from a New York newspaper desk. I saw it in a better prospective. I saw it as one might see it if permitted to stand with Jesus and his disciples in Galilee and see 20 centuries of the future unfold before him.

"The conditions of life in China today are almost the same in all essential respects as they were throughout all Asia when Jesus preached his gospel of service. The world crucified Jesus, however, and organized its activities upon different principles.

"'He that saveth life shall lose it!' said Jesus. But we went on the theory that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

"'It is more blessed to give than to receive,' he contended. But we organized our lives not for service but for gain.

"He warned us not to lay up treasures on earth, but we made a religion out of thrift. He told us to give to every man that asked from us and from him that took away our goods to ask them not again. We, on the contrary, made private property our guiding principle and established all sorts of institutions to see that our goods remained our own.

"Jesus preached to the poor, the oppressed, the imprisoned and the bruised, and everlastingly denounced those who sat in the high places. We—and this applies to no country more than to America—evolved a gospel of success and warned the poor not to listen to any 'class appeals.'

"We always maintained that we stood for exact justice; which, being interpreted, an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. Jesus denounced that doctrine in toto, and, instead of appealing to men's reasons to offset their greed and hatred, he appealed to their most fundamental passions. He said: 'Love your enemies.' Can you imagine it? Do you wonder that he was crucified? Suppose some of us had been caught loving the Germans during the late war.

"Yet it is that very gospel which is being preached in China today—by missionaries sent from America and by thousands of young Chinese. And it is being preached to people who live just as folks did live in Jesus' time, when he was apprehended by the department of justice for 'stirring up the people'.

Japan Arresting Missionaries.

"Can you wonder that Japan is arresting Christian ministers and shutting up our mission schools all through Korea? If you do wonder, it is because you haven't heard the gospel of Jesus in its simplicity;

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

"Can't Cut Off My Leg" Says Railroad Engineer

"I am a railroad engineer; about 20 years ago my leg was seriously injured in an accident out West. Upon my refusing to allow the doctor to amputate it I was told it would be impossible to heal the wound. I have tried all kinds of salves and had many doctors in the past 20 years, but to no avail. Finally I resolved to use PETERSON'S OINTMENT on my leg. You cannot imagine my astonishment when I found it was doing what over 100 things had failed to do. My leg is now completely cured."—Gus Hauft, 799 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"It makes me feel proud to be able to produce an ointment like that," says Peterson of Buffalo. "Not only do I guarantee Peterson's Ointment for old sores and wounds, but for eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, chafing, itching skin and blind, bleeding or itching piles, and I put up a big box for 60 cents at all druggists, a price all can afford to pay, and money back if not satisfied." because you have confused it with the attitude of church members whom you know or with the traditions of our religious institutions in the West.

"This gospel is all new over there; and in China, especially, they are in a better position to understand than Americans ever were. For in America, which organized around the motive of gain, we always seemed to be succeeding—right up to the present time. Anything that works is pretty sure to be retained, in spite of all prophetic outbursts. Just now, however, the system of Mammon isn't working very well. In Europe it seems to have collapsed entirely, and in America we haven't any human happiness to spare. In the meantime for 2000 years—China has just been looking on. It hasn't 'progressed' as we have; it hasn't gone through with the experiment to its final findings. One-quarter of the world, which we know as China, has waited patiently for twenty centuries—to find out whether the principles of Jesus or the principles of Mammon are correct.

"The Chinese people," Wood added, "are wonderfully open-minded. They are simpler than we, and consequently more intelligent. I shall be surprised, in view of the mess that the whole world of Mammon has got into, if the Chinese do not reach the conclusion that Jesus was right.

"It is easy for us in America to prove that Jesus was unreasonable, but that isn't the point. The Chinese are beginning to see that the reasonable schemes have all failed while the gospel of Jesus has never been tried."

I wondered—and I have no doubt that the reader wonders—what Mr. Wood meant by 'trying' the gospel of Jesus.

Too Simple for Explanation.

"It is too simple for explanation," he answered. "In a factory operated on the Jesus principle no worker would work for wages and none of the product would be sold. The worker would work for the joy of the service he was rendering and for the expression of his own creative powers. The product, of course, would all be given away, because it is more blessed to give than to receive. If it were found that the factory did not produce enough under such a regime, we would call upon our engineering experts to make the work more attractive.

"A nation organized on the Jesus principle would not be interested in its own protection. It would be looking for ways in which to serve the nations roundabout. No good citizen of such a nation would want his property protected from any other citizen, or from any invader from abroad. In fact, no one would think of property as his. People would be free from property and lay up treasures in heaven; in the heaven that will come to earth just as soon as we organize to give and not to get."

"Wouldn't this mean," I asked, "that everybody would starve to death?"

"I don't know," he answered. "It has never been tried. Jesus was quite sure that it wouldn't, however. Remember, He said: 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.'

"Does this sound crazy?" Wood asked. "Does it sound like a lot of metaphysical dope? Does it make you feel that you expect to see the sky opened one of these days and a white-robed monarch float down to separate the profits from the profiteers? I am an American with an American education, and I can't for the life of me visualize anything of the sort. But as for letting the 'Kingdom of God' take the place of our present world order—well, those who have followed my interviews in the Sunday Post-Dispatch with such top notch industrial experts as Gaunt, Polokov, Wolf and other, will not object to the term 'Kingdom of God' as contrasted with our present kingdom of mammon.

Service Not Our Aim.

"These men tell us that we have industrial disorder because we make business, not service the aim of our industrial enterprise. They say that men are discontented, not merely because of low wages but because they do not find adequate self-expression in their employment. They say that men are fundamentally creative, and that any job which appeals to their creative instead of merely to their acquisitive instincts will keep them working happy and continuously, and that when all our workers are set at these creative tasks production will be so increased that poverty will disappear.

"What difference does it make whether we say 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you,' or 'Concentrate on releasing the creative energy in every worker and you will not be troubled with the problems of production?' I don't know whether Robert Wolf is a professing Christian or not, and I do not care, but he is preaching practically the same gospel to American engineers that Bishop Wilson S. Lewis is preaching in China.

"Bishop Lewis, with hundreds of other missionaries and thousands and thousands of Chinese, is looking for the coming of the 'Kingdom.' But he explained to me that he did not expect to see it come from the sky. 'The kingdom of heaven is within you,' he said, 'but not until it grows out and becomes the conscious will of man will its glory be realized.'

"That is why the churches in China are looking not so much for more preachers from America as for missionary engineers—men who will know how to organize an industrial system among the people, not for business purposes, but for 'the more abundant life.' Strange to say, they haven't asked for missionary lawyers or missionary politicians. In order to carry out this most unworld dream they are appealing to the most matter-of-fact, hard-head-

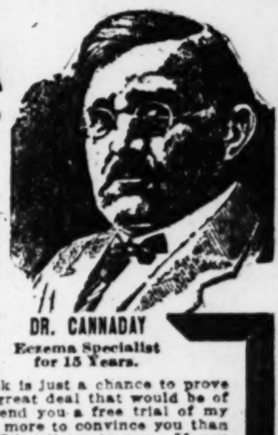
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

Interpretation of Ario Flamma's "William Kent" Will Be in English by Miss Marie Isola.

Ario Flamma, an interesting young dramatist of Italy, will be present at a reading of his three-act play, "William Kent," at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, at Hotel Statler. The drama is intended as a rebuke to those who would seek to belittle America's effort in the war. The interpreter will be Miss Marie Isola, and the reading will be given in an English translation.

Flamma has been encouraged by no less a personage than Anatole France, who wrote to the author concerning two of his plays. "'Don Luca Sperante' is a vivid representation of customs, and 'Il Pazzo' has a dramatic effectiveness out of the common. Both have a rare value and add two pearls to the contemporary drama."

The famous French novelist added: "This is my dispassionate judgment."

Several of Flamma's plays, including "Don Luca Sperante," have been Englished and privately printed in New York, with a dedication to the memory of Mark Twain.

ed and sternly practical people that America has produced. And although I said that Americans generally will view the whole scheme as visionary, it is my guess that our engineers will answer the call. I have talked with a good many of them personally and I know."

"Could such a change come to the world," I asked unless human nature is changed first?"

Change in Human Nature.

"I don't know," he answered. "The missionaries seem to think that there must be a change in human nature; but the religion of Jesus makes provision for that. For myself, it seems more a case of giving human nature a chance to assert itself. For, after all, the big things in history have not been done for profit, but for self-expression; and the greatest self-expression has always been found in service.

"Jesus didn't preach for a living and never thought of getting a copyright on the Sermon on the Mount. If Shakspeare's income had equaled Charlie Chaplin's it is doubtful if he could have turned out better stuff than 'Hamlet' and 'Macbeth.' You don't have to go to exceptional cases either. When the average American business man does a really big thing, like falling in love, he doesn't think of how much he can make on the deal. The oldest and most important industry on earth, in fact, has always been carried on without any thought of profits or of wages."

"The oldest and most important industry?"

"Yes. The production of babies. Some of the war depleted countries, to be sure, have placed a bonus upon motherhood; but the idea of becoming a mother in order to get the bonus is, thank God, still unthinkable. I hope that it will soon be quite as unthinkable for men to do any creative work for wages, salaries or profits. America, however, does not yet share this hope. America, as I said, is hopeless. But watch China. The Chinese are a serious people; and if they do decide that Jesus was right they will set about seriously to inaugurate the Kingdom of Heaven. You can't bluff the Chinese out of a good notion by calling it Utopian."

INFLUX OF IMMIGRANTS AT NEW YORK EQUALS, IF NOT EXCEEDS, PRE-WAR ARRIVALS

Ellis Island Swarms With New-Comers Seeking Work in America; Type of Foreigners Higher; Few Found Unfit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 29.—In the war days, when to glance harborward was to lay one's self open to the suspicion that he was hostile to America and the allies, none who was not bent on most official business could begin to approach the island down the bay which serves as the gateway to the new world.

Today, however, Ellis Island is a beehive of swarming visitors and access is reasonably easy.

During the war, of course, immigration almost ceased. With the conflict done and Europe's rehabilitation on its way the port of New York has resumed its daily business of gathering into America's folds the vast outpourings of the old world.

For a time it had been expected that immigration would not for many years attain the high totals that prevailed in the years immediately preceding the opening of hostilities. This country and that, it was predicted, would issue most stringent edicts prohibiting emigration on the ground that all its manhood would be required to sow the seeds of a new crop of prosperity. All hands, it was believed, would be compelled to remain at home to till and plow and weave and accomplish this part or that in the mighty game of bringing back Europe to its feet.

But Europe, though still far removed from its former economic stability, did not deem it necessary to bar outlet to those whose purpose it was to shake the old ground of political bickerings and of battle.

Today the influx to America is, if anything, in excess of the rate in the peak days of pre-war immigration. For months ahead the transatlantic steamship lines have booked their steerage accommodations to the full. Each day brings new tasks for the handful of Ellis Island inspectors and the totals at the week end show that there has been no let up, but often a piling up, in the incoming tide of nations.

Immigrant Type Better.

Several questions arose in the mind of the Post-Dispatch correspondent who undertook to look over the situation. Why were these men and women, with their families, forsaking the lands for which they had fought and bled and sacrificed? What was their hope in America? Were they of a high type that the United States would be happy to assimilate, or a mediocre crew whose advent meant little profit to the New World's purposes and ideals? Or were they riffraff with the discontent that breeds Bolshevism and makes for trouble in our industrial centers and eventuate in deportation? Would the more stringent literary test balk the newcomers?

To these and other queries that he pondered on the ferryboat taking him to Ellis Island the correspondent found sufficient and contenting answers in Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis and Supt. P. A. Baker and in a study of the immigrants themselves.

Crest Not Yet Reached.

He found that:

1. This port is in the midst of an immigration wave that has not yet hit its crest, and that it probably will be months before there is any marked decrease in the number of arrivals.

2. An unusually large number of Spaniards are coming to America as mechanics and farm hands, many of them with cash in pocket for the purchase of land, thsu lending encouragement to the Department of the Interior, which for a long time has been warning that theer must be a back-to-the-land movement.

3. Italy is sending the largest number of immigrants. Ireland is contributing a considerable total. Eastern Europe is flocking to America in large groups. The Scandinavian countries are sending a substantial number. Russia, Germany and Austria are, of course, in a position making it impossible for their inhabitants to swell our immigration totals.

4. Many of the Italians arriving are reservists who went to war from this country and are now back for good, bringing the families that were stranded at home during the war.

5. The type of the new immigrant is high, and there are comparatively few rejections because of the literary test. There is little of radicalism among the newcomers.

6. Stowaways are coming in increasing numbers, an indication of the determination of even the poorest to get to America.

7. Emigration from America has been heavy, but is exceeded by immigration, and most of those departing plan to return shortly with their families and take up permanent residence in the United States.

8. Most of the immigrants are attracted in no small measure by the fact that America's entry into the war was in the pursuit of demo-

First it was a plain statement of fact

Now it's a challenge!

"No one can tell the difference"

There is only one phonograph in the world which the artist willingly sings with in a comparison proof; it is

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Do you ask for better proof? Attend any of our tone tests and your ears will convince you that the re-creating of an original sound has been mastered, and it took a Thomas Edison to accomplish this wonderful result.

Prices May Rise

The price of the New Edison has advanced less than 15% since 1914. Most of the increased costs of manufacture are borne personally by Mr. Edison. But conditions may yet force a price advance. Get your New Edison now. Our Budget Plan— a little common sense applied to spending, pays for it. Ask.

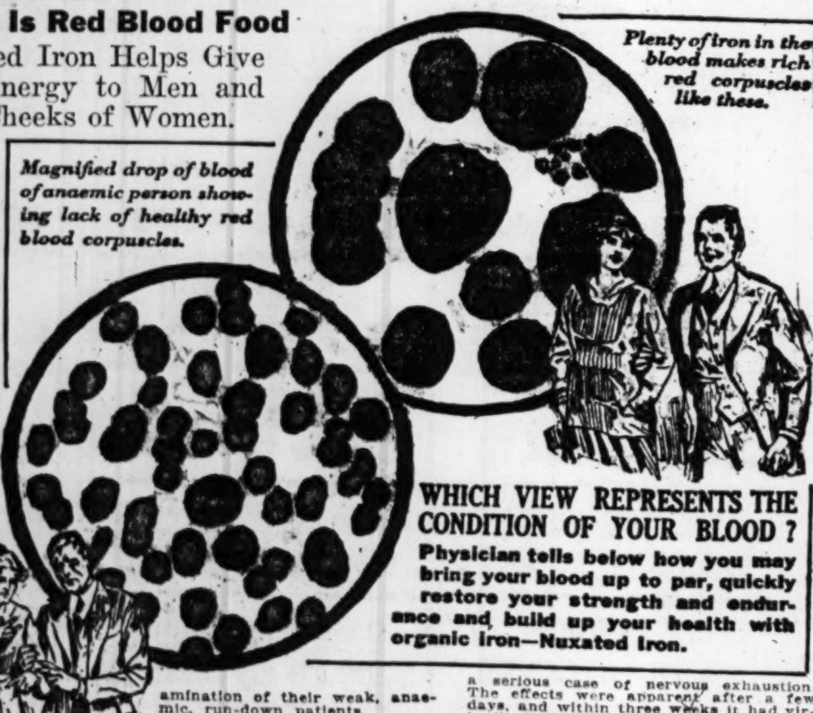
What Kind of Blood Have You?

Thin, Pale and Watery—Keeping You Weak, Nervous and Run-Down or Rich, Red, Healthy Blood With Plenty of Iron In It To Give You Strength, Energy, Power and Endurance

Physician Says Iron Is Red Blood Food

Explains How Nuxated Iron Helps Give Renewed Vim and Energy to Men and Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women.



Magnified drop of blood of anaemic person showing lack of healthy red blood corpuscles.

Plenty of iron in the blood makes rich red corpuscles like these.

WHICH VIEW REPRESENTS THE CONDITION OF YOUR BLOOD?

Physician tells below how you may bring your blood up to par, quickly restore your strength and endurance and build up your health with organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

If you tire easily, if you look pale, haggard and worn, if you feel generally weak, nervous and run down, it would probably astonish you to look at a drop of your own blood under a powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood—rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes healthy, energetic action, pulls down the whole organism and weakens the entire system.

There are thousands whose bodies are ageing and breaking down at a time when they should be enjoying that perfect bodily health which cries defiance to disease simply because they are not awake to the condition of their blood. By allowing it to remain thin, pale and watery they are not giving the natural life forces of the body a chance to do their work. Yet others go through life apparently possessing, year after year, the elasticity, the strength and the energy of earlier years, for through their bodies courses the energy and power that comes from plenty of red blood—filled with strength-giving iron. Iron is red blood food, and physicians explain below why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron to build up the red blood corpuscles and give increased power and endurance.

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic strength and bloodbuilder by over four million people annually, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood—and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examination of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients.

"Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real cause of their trouble. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package."

Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner, says: "Throughout my experience on Hospital Staffs and as a Medical Examiner, I have been astonished at the number of patients who have vainly doctored for various diseases, when in reality their delicate, run-down state was simply the result of lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility was replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality. I took Nuxated Iron myself to build me up after a serious case of nervous exhaustion. The effects were apparent after a few days, and within three weeks it had virtually revitalized my whole system and put me in a superb physical condition."

Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace a physician of many years' experience, and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service, says: "I do not make a practice of recommending advertised medicinal products, but I have found Nuxated Iron so potent in nervous, run-down conditions that I believe all should know it. The men and women of today need more iron in their blood than was the case twenty or thirty years ago. This because of the demineralized diet which now is served daily in thousands of homes and also because of the demand for great resistance necessary to offset the greater number of health hazards to be met at every turn."

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows, and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in tablet form only.

INFLUX OF IMMIGRANTS AT NEW YORK EQUALS THE PRE-WAR TIDE

Inspectors Are Overworked.

The accommodations at Ellis Island, both as to quarters in which to facilitate the inspection of arrivals and as to the number of inspectors employed, are entirely inadequate to give sufficient and proper attention to the congestion of immigrants, and in this shortage of accommodations lies the danger of skimping examinations and of affording the arrivals a poor introduction to the new land, obstacles that Commissioner Wallis is strenuously endeavoring to eliminate.

Every possible health precaution is being taken because of the advent of large numbers from the Eastern Europe districts in which epidemics have been prevalent. As a safeguard the authorities at Quarantine are each day transferring to Hoffman and Swinburne Islands, in the lower bay, thousands of steerage passengers for observation periods often lasting ten days, and, in addition, are fumigating the steerage quarters of every liner before the vessel is permitted to proceed on its way.

To assure the speedier assimilation of foreigners and their ready acquaintance with American institutions and ideals, the State of New York has established a registration system which is to lead to the compulsory education of all arriving aliens taking up residence in this state.

Began Last March.

From July 1 of last year to June 30 of this year the departure of aliens from this port aggregated 334,254, as against an inflow in the same period amounting to 314,468, or almost 20,000 departures in excess of arrivals. However, it must be recalled that the normal departure each year before the war were about 350,000 to 500,000 with the inflow averaging almost a million. Many of those leaving in the past year have gone merely to see the folks at home, to supervise the renewals of family fortunes destroyed by the war and to bring back their relatives.

Furthermore, and even more important, it was not until March of this year that Ellis Island resumed a prewar basis and the full swarm of immigration was possible. Since then the totals have been:

	Arrivals	Departures
March	29,098	26,169
April	36,958	26,058
May	40,048	21,162
June	44,715	37,584

Fast as Ships Can Bring Them.

"We are getting immigrants just as fast as the limited number of ships and their limited capacities can bring them," said Commissioner Wallis. "Few realize how short we are of immigrant bearing vessels. Some 20 large carriers have been missing from this port since the war. Some were sunk by torpedoes, others have been placed in service elsewhere.

"Not a ship comes from Europe that isn't loaded to full capacity. This, too, despite the strict passport requirements of the war which are still enforced here. Agents of the steamship lines tell me that they have full bookings far in advance, and that nine out of ten aliens going out of the country are doing so to bring back relatives. We see evidence of that every day at Ellis Island. A whole family arrives, some members of which was until recently a resident here.

"Steamship agents who have returned from abroad inform me that in many countries the desire of hundreds of thousands to come here has reached the stage of a burning fever."

From Spain's Vinyards.

Each liner from Spain is crowded with immigrants. Some of them are grape growers who fear that the drought will spread throughout the world and that prohibition will become the rule rather than the exception. They have sold out their plants and have come here to engage in business. Many are Spanish landowners who desire to transfer their agrarian endeavors to American fields, having read of the high prices paid for crops and of the need here in the last four months. Many, however, are skilled mechanics or farm workers. All have come because they believe they wil get better pay here, and all intend to take out citizenship papers. Then, too, some have said that the Spanish Government is not averse to the presence in America of large numbers of its people, as a means of establishing close relations between the two countries.

As just before the war, there is a preponderence of Italians among the immigrants. Not only men, but thousands of women and children. Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia, attracted by America's high wage ideals, are heavily represented in the arrival of lists. Not a few of these, as is the case frequently with the Italians, resided in the United States and returned to their native lands to fight under their old standards, planning now, however, to remain here permanently.

Rejections Are Few.

Commissioner Wallis paid high tribute to the new type of immigrant. Most of the callers have found the literacy test not too arduous, being able to read the 40 words required and pass the other requirements, though here and there rejections are necessary for failure to meet literacy tests. The number of failures on this score is comparatively low because of precautions by steamship companies, who see to it, so far as they can, their patrons will measure up to America's standards. In explanation it may be said that deporta-

REO

FROM THE VERY FIRST

Reo was the first to prove the superiority of the pneumatic tired motor truck. Reo was the first to make exhaustive experiments along this line—and as a result of the lessons then learned, to make and offer for sale a pneumatic tired truck.

That first Reo was also equipped with electric starter and lights, a thing unheard of up to that time.

As a result of the wonderful performance of that Reo type of motor truck—which we designated as a "Speed Wagon"—there are now more than 32,000 of them in use. And the demand has always exceeded the supply.

MARSHAL FOCH REMINDS SENTRY TO REFER TO HIM BY RANK

Man Replies: "One Never Says 'Marshal Caesar or Marshal Napoleon,' Monsieur le Marechal."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 15.—"Foch will keep us waiting 15 or 20 minutes," said the sentry at the Gare du Nord recently while the special train that was to bear the French delegation to Spa was being shunted on the siding.

An elderly man, wearing the undress uniform of a general of division, Military Medal, War Cross and Legion of Honor, sauntered up and quite amiably said: "You might at least call him 'Marshal Foch.' " tions are at the expense of the carrying steamship company.

The soldier took one glance at the General, then standing rigid at attention, replied: "One never says 'Marshal Caesar or Marshal Napoleon,' Monsieur le Marechal."

Recently there arrived from Mexico a wealthy merchant and his wife, both of whom were able to produce an abundance of cash, but neither of whom could measure up to the literacy requirements. The ironic feature is that they have in a private school in Massachusetts a 15-year-old daughter who is regarded as the most apt pupil in that institution, and who was able to present to the immigration authorities heated arguments in most fluent though unconvincing English.

A problem that has caused the authorities no small concern is that of the heavy number of stowaways. It is unusual when a liner fails to develop at least one such arrival, and three or four stowaways per vessel are not uncommon. On the steamship France there came two months ago 20 stowaways. Stowaways are unpopular with steamship companies, for their deportation involves an extra expense to the lines. To make up some of this expense the stowaways are compelled to work their home passage. Occasionally some of them remain at the Ellis Island station for indefinite periods because relatives or friends have appealed their cases to Washington. As a rule, however, the decision is i nthe negative and they go back.

Congestion Is Problem.

Congestion and insufficient facilities are the main difficulties that confront the immigration authorities. For instance, in one day the Kroonland brought to the port 521 immigrants, the Philadelphia 437, the Regina d'Italia 1600, La Lorraine 512. On another day of the same week the total topped 6000. The Olympic alone brought 1100 one day, and a few hours later came the Dante Alighiere with 1700. The Rotterdam last week brought 1683 steerage passengers, of whom almost one-third were children from Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

FIRST DEAF AND DUMB PRIEST

BORDEAUX, France, July 31.—Jean Marie Joseph Charles la Fonta, novice of the Order of the Assumption, who has just been ordained priset, is, according to church authorities, the first person deaf and dumb from birth received into the Roman Catholic priesthood in history.

During two years of study at Rome the Abbe la Fonta was given special examinations and finally the way into the church was opened for him by order of the Pope.

A New PISTON RING Service

When installing new piston rings, it is extremely important that they be of the right oversize to give a snug fit. This point cannot be emphasized too strongly.

The only really satisfactory method of determining proper oversize is to fit the rings to the cylinders after the motor is down. Therefore, we have established a special delivery service for Tell-Tale Rings, whereby an experienced piston ring man will fit new rings to each cylinder individually.

This service is available to repair shops and individual owners at no extra cost over the regular price of Tell-Tale Rings. Quick delivery service.

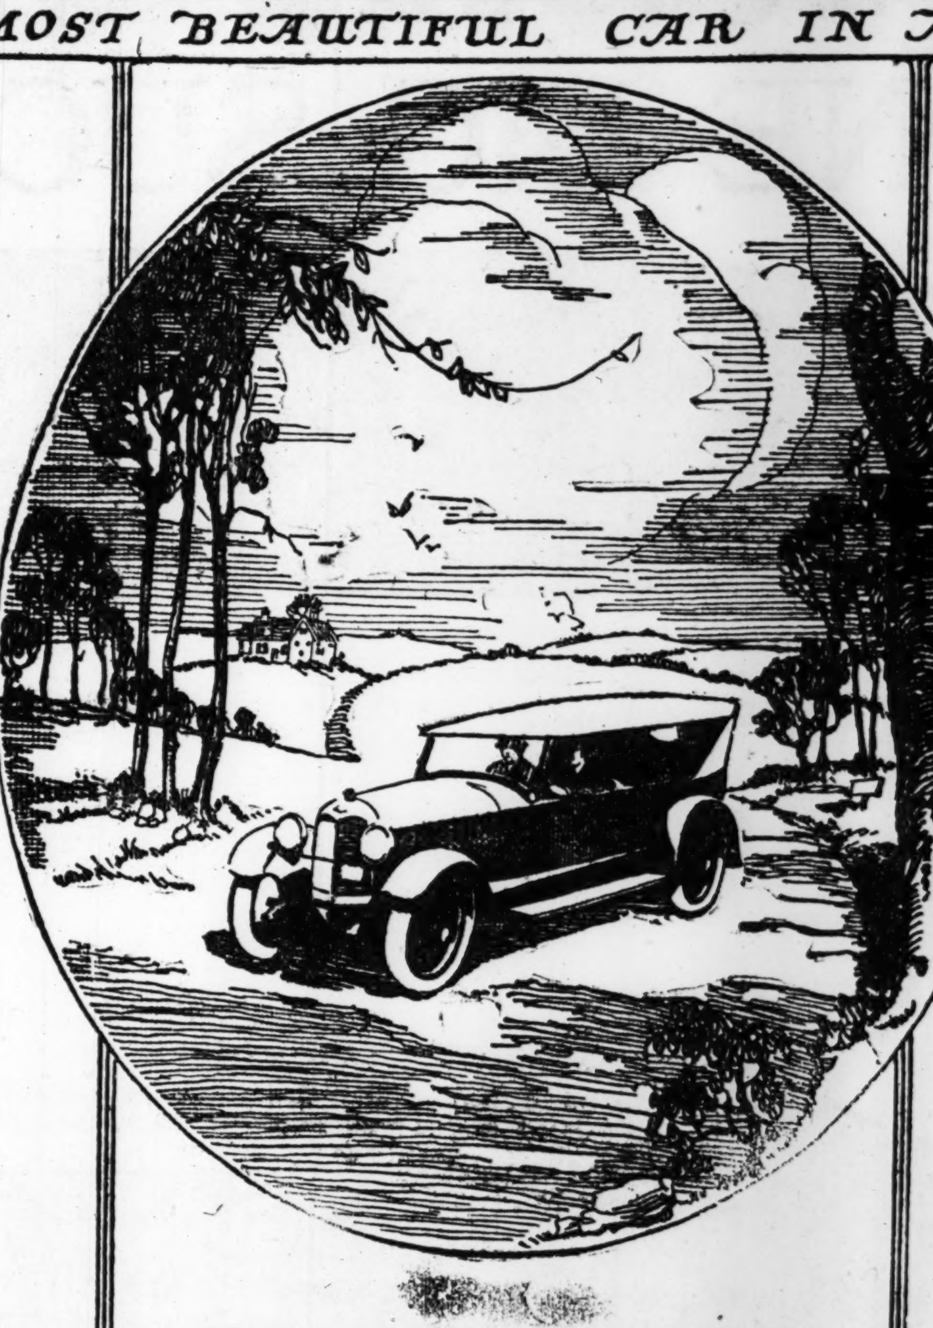
PAIGE
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA



THE first appeal of our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model is, quite properly, its exquisite beauty and distinctiveness. To merely look at the car is a pleasing experience.

The second appeal develops upon acquaintance with one of the most remarkable power plants in the entire field of six cylinder engineering. Thus admiration is supplemented by profound respect and both appeals merge into Pride of Ownership.

This new Paige motor is an unusual achievement. It is the result of more than three years of patient research and experiment. It is actually and literally a product of our war time experience.

Furthermore this power plant is an altogether distinctive product—conceived by our own engineers and built in our own plants by our own workmen. It represents in fullest measure all that the Paige nameplate implies.

LIVING MODELS IN PAGEANT TO SHOW SEASON'S STYLES

Advance Modes to Be Exhibited in Municipal Open-Air Theater Beginning on Tuesday.

The St. Louis style show will be held in the Municipal Open-Air Theater, in Forest Park, during the fall market season, Aug. 3 and 4, 10 and 11, 17 and 18. The advance styles will be displayed on living models, who have been selected not only for their personal charm, but for their ability to wear clothes.

The pageant, which will be the vehicle for the style show, consists of four episodes—wool, cotton, fur and feathers and silk—the fabrics most used in the manufacture of wearing apparel. The styles will be displayed by the models between episodes, thus classifying the styles in four groups.

Story in Pantomime.

The story of the pageant, which will be in pantomime, is of Silvius, a shepherd, who wooes the fair young Phoebe, a peasant maid. Phoebe rejects the suit of the shepherd because of her ambition for fine raiment. Silvius, dejected, seeks the solitude of the hillside, tending his sheep and falls asleep. He dreams of Phoebe and sees her clad in fine apparel. His dream is interpreted through pantomime, augmented by esthetic dancing. The dance of this episode is "Silvius and His Sheep," solo and ballet. The little dancers—16 children—are clothed to impersonate sheep. Miss Mae Green inteprets the role of Silvius.

At the close of the first episode 40 models wearing modish suits, smart coats and evening wraps of wool, appear on the stage and promenade over the runway through the audience.

The next scene is the "cotton episode." Silvius is again found sleeping, and the vision of his dream is a cotton field with dusky lovers and cotton pickers in the field at work. The dance of this episode is by children from the municipal playgrounds.

Modern Uses Shown.

At the close of this episode, the models, wearing frocks of cotton, appear and pass over the runway.

The third scene presents the "fur and feather episode," and Silvius still dreaming has a vision of a woodland forest wherein sport the creatures of the wild. There is a duo dance—"The Dance of the Forest," by Mae Green, Silvius and Jane Sante, as Phoebe, supported by a ballet. The dancers are clothed in animal skins and feathers. Immediately following the ballet are displayed fur-trimmed suits and furs by the living models.

The last scene is the "silk episode," interpreted by means of the "Ballet Moth and the Flame." Jane Sante, as Phoebe, is the Queen Butterfly. She is supported by a ballet of children dresesd as butterflies, in gorgeous colored chiffons, richly stenciled.

Immediately following this scene are displayed gowns, afternoon dresses and party frocks by the models. The garments which will be displayed by the manufacturers and wholesalers and jobbers are St. Louis made and designed.

A New Non-Skid That Won't Skid

Gillette Non-Skid Fabric Tires give the service you want—demand and need. They won't skid when new, when old or anywhere along their long life of service. They catch hold and hang on without hindering free, forward action of machine. They do away with skids and slides—and save fuel wasted by slips, suction and hard-to-keep-the-road driving. Gillette Non-Skids

Won't Waste Away

—because they are produced with the exclusive Gillette Chilled Rubber Process, a refining treatment which toughens rubber as iron is toughened when changed to steel. Gives rubber a constitution that wears like steel—that stands the constant grind—grind of gravel and sand—the pull of mud and strain of hard, unyielding pavements—that is not affected by biting cold or melting heat of sun or road. There is no fabric separation or tread separation—fewer blow-outs.

Won't Run Up Excessive Costs

No extravagance. Every ounce of fabric and rubber produce mileage—non-skid mileage—safe mileage and at a big important saving in both repair and renewal costs.

To the Jordan Distributors:

12,546 miles at 24.1 miles per gallon. Congratulations and three cheers! Here are final results your country-wide three day economy test. Total mileage covered by 27 cars 12,546 miles. Average miles per gallon 24.1 miles. This proves owners claim that Jordan is most economical car on the road. Certainly the day of economy is here.

Jordan Motor Car Company

12,546 Miles at 24.1 Miles Per Gallon

Twenty-seven stock Jordan cars in twenty-seven different sections of the United States, traveled 12,546 miles averaging 24.1 miles per gallon in a big country-wide three day economy test last week.

The run was staged by Jordan distributors under the supervision of official observers, chosen by the local newspapers.

Here is how it came about. Jordan built the lightest car on the road for its wheelbase—2800 pounds—superbly balanced—1400 pounds forward—1400 pounds astern.

Jordan owners at once began making startling claims of economy.

Jordan dealers were incredulous at first. The Jordan factory waited. The owners furnished more proof.

Then the run was organized. Note in the telegrams reproduced below the striking similarity of averages under favorabe road conditions. The day of economy has dawned at last.

The hour of the light-weight, compact, high-grade, good-looking, perfectly-balanced, rattle-proof, comfortable and economical motor car is here.

Economy with distinction—describes the Jordan perfectly. That's what lifts this car with a personality so far above the mass.

FARRINGTON TELLS ILLINOIS MINERS TO GO BACK TO WORK TOMORROW

President Says Men Have Won Victory in Recognition of Right to Negotiate for Correction of Inequalities in Recent Wage Award.

OPERATORS DECIDE TO REMIT PENALTIES

President Lewis Sends Orders to All Locals to Return — President to Convene Commission When Men Have Resumed Work.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 31.—Not waiting for the order of International President John L. Lewis, to reach the 80,000 striking miners in Illinois, State President Frank Farrington this afternoon issued an order himself commanding them to return to work Monday.

"The strike ends with a great victory for Illinois' miners," said President Farrington. "The pledge of President Wilson that a scale meeting will be called and wage inequalities adjusted, satisfies the miners' demands."

The strike in this state lasted about two weeks and resulted from demands of more pay for "shiftmen." All but 500 workers joined the strike.

Word that the strike was to be ended was dispatched by President Farrington to Secretary of Labor Wilson.

To the presidents of local unions a telegram was forwarded saying:

"We are advised that President Wilson has given his pledge that just as soon as mining operations are resumed he will convene miners and operators in joint wage scale conference for the purpose of settling inequalities in wage agreements. We understand this to mean that the Illinois miners have won their fight for the right to negotiate with the operators to repair certain wrongs imposed by the award of the President's Bituminous Coal Commission.

"In view of this, a delay in returning to work only means a delay in the convening of a wage scale conference. Therefore, you are authorized to promptly instruct your members to return to work Monday morning or as soon thereafter as possible."

End of the strike will not save Illinois from the rigors predicted, although they will be short-lived. Railroads, brought down to a day's supply of coal, have annulled nearly all freight trains through here, and tonight have in prospect curtailment of passenger service.

Strike penalties imposed upon strikers will be remitted. President Adams of the Central Illinois Coal Operators' Association said that, although the operators were justified in taking the strike penalty, it would be ordered returned for the sake of peace.

Lewis Wires Local Unions Ordering men to Return.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 31.—Striking mine workers in Indiana and Illinois today were ordered back to work by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America. In a telegram directed to every local union in the affected districts, he instructed that immediate meetings be called and steps taken to get the men back to work.

Full authority to deal with the strike situation has been vested in President Lewis by the executive board of the miners, which has been in session here for the last week. Should the strikers refuse to obey the order it is expected that disciplinary action will be brought against offending members of the unions.

The telegrams directing the men to return to work were sent out from national headquarters of the miners this morning.

In his message to the local unions, Lewis repeated the telegram he received last night from President Wilson. Lewis' wire follows:

"In consideration of the request of the President, as contained in the foregoing, and acting in accordance with the authority vested in me as president of the United Mine Workers, I herewith order and direct all members of our organization who may be idle or on strike, contrary to the provisions of the interstate joint agreement, to immediately return to their employment and permit the normal operation of the mines. Meetings of your local unions should be immediately convened and action taken to comply

RAMBUNCTIOUS RAM OF WHITE HOUSE FLOCK EXILED

Shropshire Which Deposited Her Majesty, the Cook, on Greensward, Is "Somewhere in Virginia."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The President's rambunctious ram has been exiled from his Garden of Eden, the White House grounds.

In disgrace this noble specimen of pure bred Shropshire whose ramifications upset not only the dignity but the persons of the White House police and what is worse, on one occasion deposited, not gently but exceedingly hard on the greensward of the Executive Mansion, after an ungraceful flight through the air, the person of her majesty, the White House cook, and greatly outraged every living thing that entered the grounds, has been sent "somewhere in Virginia." Just where no one will say. The exile in disgrace of the rambunctious ram is but the forerunner of the disintegration of the White House flock. Admiral Grayson, physician to the President, answering a query on the subject today, declared that every single one of the remaining sheep and lambs will be disposed of to friends of the Chief Executive in different parts of the country.

TETANUS CAUSED BY FISHBONE SCRATCH CAUSES BOY'S DEATH

Three Administrations of Serum Fail to Save East St. Louis Lad Injured Week Ago.

Tetanus, resulting from a scratch inflicted by a fishbone, caused the death last night of Zeno Riley, 7-year-old son of John Riley of 716 North Sixth street, East St. Louis.

A week ago yesterday the boy was playing in the yard and fell down, lacerating one knee on the fish bone. Antiseptic treatment was given with materials obtained from a drugstore.

Tetanus developed Friday and Dr. Oscar Klug gave three administrations of anti-tetanus serum. The boy's condition became worse, however, ending in his death.

TUSCANIA DEAD ON WAY HOME

All Bodies to Be in Liverpool by End of Week.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 31.—It is expected that by the end of this week all the bodies of American soldiers who lost their lives when the transport Tuscania sank off the Irish coast in February, 1918, will have been removed to Liverpool from the Island of Islay, where they were temporarily buried, for shipment home. The victims number approximately 300.

Two hundred and fifty of the bodies have been brought to Liverpool by the steamer Gronigen, which was chartered for the purpose. The Gronigen is now at Islay taking on the remaining bodies. All technicalities of the health ministry have been complied with.

BROKEN WHISKY BOTTLE CLEW IN S. T. LOFTIS DEATH

Police Believe Diamond Merchant May Have Been Struck After Drinking Bout With Girl.

GIRL IN CASE TOOK HIS JEWELRY HOME

Says She Was Attacked by Taxi Driver—Housekeeper Tells of Many Drunken Brawls in Apartment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Miss Ruth Woods, remarkably pretty girl, bookkeeper of the Edgewater Beach Hotel, is believed to hold the solution to the mysterious death of Sam T. Loftis, widely known diamond merchant, who was found dead in his luxurious Kenmore avenue residence last night, the heavy rugs disordered as if by a hard struggle. Miss Woods was found early today when she returned to her mother's home, dishelveled and dazed. She handed her mother a costly diamond ring and pin and told her to keep them until they were wanted, as Loftis was dead. Her mother turned them over to the Coroner today.

Cumulative evidence gathered from many sources by the police lead them to believe that Miss Woods and Loftis became involved in a scuffle following a drinking bout and that in self-defense the girl struck the diamond merchant on the head with a whisky bottle, causing him to fall. The broken neck of the bottle, with the cork intact, is held as evidence. Considerable shattered glass and the remainder of the bottle were picked up near the body.

This theory exonerates Roy M. Shayne, son of a former fur merchant who told the police he had been called to the Loftis residence by Miss Woods, his fiance, who told him over the telephone that Loftis was trying to attack her. Shayne said that when he opened the door, Loftis was leaning against it and fell to the floor, striking his head with considerable violence. The police believe Shayne was trying to take the blame to shield the girl and that Loftis was dead before he reached the flat.

Accuses Taxi Chauffeur.

Still another peculiar angle is being worked out by the police. Miss Woods says when she fled from the flat she hailed a passing taxicab and told the chauffeur to drive her to her home. Instead, she says, he drove her to the West Side and that he and his brother attacked her. This, she says, accounts for her disheveled and hysterical condition.

Herman Waxler, driver of the cab, says that Miss Woods used his car several hours. He says at her first stop she entered a house and remained nearly an hour, finally emerging with a man. He was directed to drive them to Garfield Park, but before reaching the park they became involved in a dispute and the man alighted from the car and walked away. He denies driving her to his home, or that his brother attempted to attack her. She says her torn clothes and the scratches on her face and arms were received in the fight with the chauffeur's brother.

Miss Woods has recovered from the hysteria from which she was suffering when the police found her early today. She has also recovered from the effects of the liquor consumed at the Loftis flat and the terrific excitement of the fatal evening, but her stories do not hang together well enough to satisfy the police. They will insist upon knowing why she removed Loftis' valuable diamond ring, pin and watch. They also say Loftis invariably carried approximately $1000 in currency, but that he had only $1.50 in his pockets when found. The police and the Coroner are convinced Shayne had nothing to do with the death of the diamond merchant.

According to the testimony of Hulda Johnson, who has been housekeeper for Loftis for the last five years, his luxurious bachelor quarters were simply a trap for girls. Miss Johnson said today that not fewer than 50 girls have visited the flat since last January. She said drunken brawls were frequent in the Loftis chambers and that he was seldom sober.

"Most of the girls he lured to the flat did not know what an old wretch he was when he was drunk, I am sure," she said. "When sober, he was calm and quiet, but he was seldom sober. He was a powerful man and when under the influence of liquor would attack the girls he had lured to the place. Last night's was only one of many drunken brawls staged in the flat. I sleep in a room at the rear of the apartment and many times I have been

ARCHBISHOP DEFIES ENGLAND; SAILING MARKED BY FIGHT

Longshoremen Clamber Onto Ship to Beat Englishman Hooting Those Cheering Australian Prelate.

CROWD ACCLAIMS HIM AND DE VALERA

He Defends His Utterances in Favor of Freedom for Ireland and Thanks Americans for Reception.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The scenes today on the White Star line piers when Archbishop Daniel Mannix of Australia strode the gangplank of the steamship Baltic to put Britain's order against his landing in Ireland to the test formed a portrait of how the Irish of New York speed to their kith and kin of Erin a message of "Cheero!" and to their rulers in England their hate and incensed scorn.

It was not that an emotional gasp should form on the prelate's grateful lips that 2000 seething men and women and children tortured the air with their high-throated shrieks and their raucous clamors. True, they loved Archbishop Mannix for his cloth, and more so, because of his sympathies for their struggle for freedom. And the turbulent homage they hurled from their reverent Irish hearts lost to the churchman none of their affection for him, because the vehemence of the demonstration was motived not so much by the fact that one Mannix was an Archbishop as by reason of the fact that they divined in his history of the next several days a grapple with England on which international gaze is focussed.

Longshoremen Drub Hooter.

For a time, indeed, it seemed that serious casualties would follow the few jeers risked by English passengers at the rails as the Archbishop's tall form crossed the gangplank that took him out of America to English "territory." Forty longshoremen smashed insane passage through the barrier of guards and clambered up the ship's side to drub a wealthy coal exporter who had hooted and to thrust aside with waist beribboned and hair askew the wife who valiantly struggled to defend him.

Only when four detectives, reinforced by 30 policemen and 50 pier guards, shouted threats of death did the longshoremen recede and with snarling grumbles permit the couple to be put in a deck pantry for safe keeping.

Some excited speculation was created by the story that the stewards of the Baltic, most of them English, had decided not to work if the churchman was permitted to be on the liner and that the engine room force, comprised largely of Irish, had voted to quit if the Archbishop were barred. Leaders of both groups insisted to reporters that the report was without foundation.

Nevertheless, the White Star Line for an hour prohibited reporters from boarding the ship to interview passengers. Eamon De Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," did not sail.

From Archbishop Hayes' residence, the Australian prelate was escorted by the 69th Regiment Band and by high prelates of this city in automobiles. In the thousand and more that clogged the broad doored West street entrances to Pier No. 60 were scores of priests and lawyers and doctors and others of high attainment, and with them hundreds of longshoremen, clerks and servant girls.

None, it seemed, had failed to attach at least a minute strip of most glaring green to apparel. Hundreds of the green-white-orange flags swung among hats and handkerchiefs and palms. And many wore on their breasts ribbons of tricolor. Girls perched on packing cases or trucks or were supported by men's shoulders as they leaned to fling kisses. Hundreds tried to surge to the churchman. Priests sprang from the crowd to make obeisance. The 69th Regiment Band played the "Republic's" songs. On the pier were twice the number that was in the street.

Long Passage to Gangplank.

It was a short way to the gangplank, but a long passage, for the crowd would have none of hurry. They bade the Archbishop pause to speak to them. He smiled and bowed and waved his high hat, stopping to shake a hand or pat a baby's cheek.

On an upper deck Joseph Shaw, a Leeds coal merchant, uttered a "Boo." In the fraction of a flash longshoremen had bolted, cursing, shrieking, threatening to lynch, from the pier, through the guards at the head of the gangplank and up to the deck rail.

"Constable!" cried Shaw.

The maddened crowd below consigned him to the nether regions. The longshoremen trounced him and

PICKING PRIMARY WINNERS PUZZLES POLITICAL SHARPS

Campaign Just Closing So Unusual That Election Prognosticators Have No Satisfactory Conclusions.

EACH CANDIDATE EXPECTS EASY VICTORY

Estimates on Total Vote Are That Democratic Will Not Exceed 250,000 and Republican 200,000.

Representatives of all the leading candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations for United States Senator and Governor in the primary Tuesday issued statements yesterday of their claims for their candidates. Each candidate, it was carefully set out, will win easily. In fact, in most instances the campaign managers contended that if the situation looked any better "they would be suspicious."

It is probable that the total vote in the Democratic primary will not exceed 250,000; in the Republican will not exceed 200,000, and that in St. Louis the Democratic vote will not exceed 25,000 and the Republican vote will not exceed 50,000. In 1916 the total Democratic primary vote in the state was 244,812, and the total Republican vote, 191,654. In St. Louis in 1916, the Democratic primary vote was 25,569, and the Republican vote was 45,215.

Nearly all the candidates closed their campaigns last night and returned to their homes to await announcement of the result Wednesday.

Two Principal Issues.

The campaign has been peculiar in some respects and the usual political sharps and election prognosticators have experienced difficulty in arriving at satisfactory conclusions, satisfactory even to themselves, as to the outcome of several of the contests.

There have been two principal issues brought forward by the candidates, the League of Nations and the liquor question. There have been candidates with clearly defined antagonistic views on both questions in the Democratic contest for United States Senator, and on the liquor question in the Republican and Democratic contests for Governor. There have been one or two "pussy-footers" among the candidates, running wet in the cities and dry in the country. All Republican candidates for both offices have declared against the League of Nations, though Senator Spencer's position has not been as definite as that of his opponents.

For the Democratic nomination for United States Senator the candidates are Breckinridge Long, former Third Assistant Secretary of State; Charles M. Hay, Henry S. Priest and John C. Higdon, all of St. Louis, and the Rev. A. N. Lindsey of Clinton, and Col. George H. Scruton of Sedalia. There appears little doubt that, Long, Hay and Priest are the only candidates who will be real factors in the race.

Priest Against League.

Hay has made his campaign as a dry, as an ardent advocate of the League of Nations as brought back from Europe by President Wilson and against Senator Reed. Long has evaded a positive stand on the liquor question, though he has declared for strict law enforcement, and has campaigned for the Wilson League of Nations. Priest has opposed the League of Nations and has opposed prohibition. Each has conducted a vigorous campaign of the State.

Long was a candidate many months before the others announced their candidacies, and obtained an advantage through the fact that he obtained the pledges of support from political leaders in a large number of counties at a time when they thought there would be no other candidates for the office.

Reports from out in the State have indicated that Hay in a whirlwind campaign has in many places broken into Long's strength, but there has been considerable doubt expressed that he has had sufficient time to overcome the Long lead.

The extent of Priest's strength has not appeared definitely, though it would seem to be limited to those Democrats who support Senator Reed in his opposition to the League of Nations and in his opposition to President Wilson, and possibly to the more rabid of the anti-Prohibitionists. The reports have indicated that Priest's support is confined largely to St. Louis and Kansas City and a few isolated spots out in the State.

Long Claims St. Louis.

Long's campaign managers contend that he will receive a substantial plurality in St. Louis, and that he will carry the remainder of the

MILK IS UP TODAY TO 16 CENTS A QUART AND 10 CENTS A PINT

Increase Follows Advance in Wholesale Price to $3.75 per 100 Pounds.

Commencing this morning the retail price of milk will be increased to 16 cents per quart and 10 cents per pint, an advance of a cent a bottle, as the result of a 50 cents per 100 pounds increase in the wholesale price agreed upon at a conference yesterday of the St. Louis milk distributors and representatives of the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. in East St. Louis.

The price during July was $3.25 per 100 pounds. The $3.75 is the price for milk delivered to the distributors at railroad stations, the distributor assuming the cost of transportation.

The producers will receive 38 cents a gallon for milk delivered in cans f. o. b. St. Louis. The July price for f. o. b. St. Louis milk was 33 cents a gallon.

At a conference Tuesday the producers demanded $4 per 100 pounds, explaining that the drouth had eliminated green food and pastures, and the price of dry feed had advanced. The distributors argued that an increase of 25 cents on the 100 pounds, making the price $3.50, was a sufficient advance. They adjourned until yesterday, when they compromised on $3.75. The price in August, 1919, was $3.10 per 100 pounds. One hundred pounds of milk is equal to 46 quarts.

The City Dairies Co., Jefferson and Washington avenues, which sells at wholesale only, announced last night that the new price would be 14 cents a quart and 9 cents a pint, an increase of one cent a bottle, the retailers to charge a like increase to the consumers. The price of butter will remain the same for the present.

ICE CREAM AT SOCIAL CAUSES TYPHOID EPIDEMIC IN ILLINOIS

More Than 100 Persons Seriously Ill in Hancock County—Outbreaks at Several Points.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 31.—Chocolate ice cream eaten at a church social, near Fountain Green, in the eastern part of Hancock County, of which Carthage is the county seat, has caused an extensive epidemic of para-typhoid fever, it was announced at the State Department of Health this morning. More than 100 persons are seriously ill.

Investigation of this outbreak, and also of another at Westville, near Danville, where 26 cases of typhoid are reported, is being made by department investigators. According to Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, director of the department, these outbreaks, and others at Pinckneyville, Grafton, Fielding and in White County, are indication that the people and some health officers do not see the urgent necessity of keeping typhoid patitnts in close quarantine until the convalescent period is shown to be over, Dr. Drake said.

300 SHIPS IDLE SEVERAL WEEKS

Many of Craft in Hampton Roads Area Are Coal Carriers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORFOLK, Va., July 31.—With the world need for rapid distribution of commodities as acute as at any time since 1914, about 300 cargo ships, most of them United States Shipping Board boats, have been lying at anchor in Hampton Roads and nearby waters for several weeks, representing a money wastage in loss of earnings and actual expenses of from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 a day.

Set bow to stern, the idle ships would make a bridge 12 to 15 miles long. Many of the ships and coal carriers, unable to get cargoes, while others try vainly to fill their bunkers. A considerable number are oil burners, held captive by scarcity of fuel oil, the others by the scarcity and high price of coal.

BORAH TO SPEAK FOR HARDING

Headquarters Announces Senator May Make Several Tours.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, active in the preconvention campaign for Hiram Johnson, will take an active part in the campaign for Senator Harding and probably will make several speaking tours in the interest of the Republican nominee, it was announced at Republican headquarters here tonight.

Bag With $25,000 in Jewels Found.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., July 31.—A black bag containing about $25,000 worth of jewels, which fell from the automobile of Mrs. Cecil Page of Tarrytown, was picked up here early today by Henry McGuckin. McGuckin found Mrs. Page's card in the bag and telephoned her husband, who said he will give McGuckin a reward.

Nome Airplanes Delayed.

By the Associated Press.

EDMONTON, Alberta, July 31.—All four American airplanes flying from Mineola, N. Y., to Nome, Alaska, which jumped off here today for Jasper, returned within an hour when a leak was discovered in the gasoline tank of one machine. Low hanging clouds were given as a further cause of turning back.

RATE INCREASES OF $1,500,000,000 FOR RAILROADS ORDERED

Commission Advances Freight Charges 25 to 40 Per Cent—Passenger Fares 20.

EFFECTIVE, ON FIVE DAYS' NOTICE, UNTIL MARCH, 1922

Advance Will Be Added to Commodity Tariffs —Revenue Designed to Meet Wage Increases and Provide 5 1-2 Per Cent Return—35 Per Cent for Western Roads.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Authority for the railroads of the country to increase their revenues by approximately $1,500,000,000 was granted today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Freight rates will be advanced about one-third, passenger fares one-fifth and Pullman charges one-half.

Coastwise and inland steamship lines and electric railway companies received permission to increase their freight rates in proportion to the increases granted to railroads serving the same territory. No estimate of the aggregate amount resulting from these advances has been made.

The new rates, which are to continue until March 1, 1922, will become effective upon five days' notice by the carriers to the commission and the public and they must be in operation before Jan. 1. Since the Government guarantee expires Sept. 1, the carriers are expected to bend every effort to put the advances into effect then.

Will Offset Wage Advance.

Increases granted are designed to offset the $600,000,000 wage advance awarded by the Railroad Labor Board and to provide the six per cent net income on the aggregate value of the railroad properties as permitted under the transportation act. The aggregate value of all of the railroads was estimated by the commission at $18,900,000,000, as against a book value of $20,040,000,000 given by the carriers.

The 20 per cent increase in passenger fares, excess baggage charges and milk transportation rates and the 50 per cent surcharge on Pullman fares will be general the country over. Freight rate increases will vary according to territory with 40 per cent in the East; 25 per cent in the South; 35 per cent in the West—that is from the Mississippi river to the Rocky Mountains—and 25 per cent in Mountain-Pacific territory—from East of the Rockies to the Pacific Coast, not including Alaska.

The Commission, in its 36-page decision, made no attempt to compute the amount of increased revenues the carriers would receive from the rate advances. It did say that the increases were justified in view of the rapidly changing conditions as to prices and the necessity for providing adequate transportation facilities during and after the period of readjustment.

From figures submitted by the carriers when their applications for the increases were made it was unofficially estimated that the apportionment of the advances would work out at about $1,285,300,000 on freight; $233,800,000 on passengers; $43,600,000 on Pullman; $4,500,000 on milk and $1,400,000 excess baggage charges.

On the same calculations, the eastern roads would get the greater part of the total increase, receiving approximately $873,930,000 as compared with $559,483,000 for the Western lines and $135,289,000 for the Southern carriers.

The increased charges on freight were estimated as equaling a levy of $12 per capita per annum for every man, woman, and child.

The increases in passenger, Pullman and excess baggage rates were exactly those asked for by the roads. Freight increases requested were 39.75 for the Eastern roads, 32.03 for the Western roads and 38.91 for the Southern roads, the total estimated to yield $1,356,000,000. The Eastern roads received .25 of one per cent more than they sought, the Western roads approximately what they sought, but the Southern roads received approximately 14 per cent less than they had requested.

Southern Lines in Better Shape.

The commission said that the financial condition of the Southern carriers was more favorable than that of lines in other groups. Therefore the commission held that they were better able to meet the demands upon them than some other companies and did not require as large an increase.

"The increases authorized," said the commission, "are intended to yield the additional one-half of one per cent of the aggregate value of the roads to make provisions for improvements, betterments or equipment of a character chargeable to capital account and to report semi-annually showing that portion of the increased revenues resulting from the increases here authorized has been devoted to that purpose."

This one-half of one per cent will approximate $94,000,000. The commission said that the carriers had stated specifically that they needed immediately, at least 100,000 freight cars, 2000 locomotives and 300 passenger coaches. These are to be paid for out of this fund and out of moneys advanced by the commission and borrowed by the carriers.

Commission's Orders.

The commission, in the question of aggregate values of the roads as well as their financial conditions, said:

"We conclude that increases as indicated next below may be made by all steam roads subject to our jurisdiction serving the territory embraced in the groups hereinafter designated.

"1. All passenger fares and charges may be increased 20 per cent. The term 'passenger fares' may be considered to include standard local and interline fares; excursion, convention and other fares for special occasions; commutation and other multiple forms of tickets; extra fares on limited trains, club car charges.

"2. Excess baggage rates may be increased 20 per cent, provided that where stated as a percentage of or dependent upon passenger fares the increase in the latter will automatically effect the increase in the excess baggage charges.

"3. A surcharge upon passengers in sleeping and parlor cars may be made amounting to 50 per cent of the charge for space in such cars, such charge to be collected in connection with the charge for space, and to accrue to the rail carriers.

"4. Milk and cream are usually carried in passenger trains, and the revenue therefrom is not included in freight revenue. Rates on these commodities may be increased 20 per cent."

Findings on Freight Rates.

The conclusions of the commission as to general freight increases were stated as follows:

"We are of the opinion and find that the following percentage increases in the charges for freight service, including switching and special services, together with the other increases hereinbefore approved, would, under present conditions, result in rates not unreasonable in the aggregate under section one of the (Transportation) act, and would enable the carriers in the respective groups, under honest, efficient and economical managements, and reasonable expenditures for maintenance of way, structures, and equipments, to earn an aggregate annual railway operating income equal, as nearly as may be, to a return of 5½ per cent upon the aggregate value for the purposes of this proceeding, of the railway property of such carriers held for and

HARDING BARELY TOUCHES ON POLITICS IN OPENING FRONT PORCH CAMPAIGN

Pleads That Sectionalism and Selfish Interest Be Forgotten—Favors Modification of Excess Profits Tax.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., July 31.—Turning aside from political issues, Senator Harding took for the theme of his first front porch speech today a plea for solidarity of purpose and mutual good understanding among all classes and geographical sections of the country.

Only a spirit of "commingling friendship," he said, could produce the full realization of mutual interdependence necessary to attainment of the nation's highest destinies. He pleaded that east, west, north and south and the jealousies of class and selfish interest be forgotten in peace as they had been in war.

In a passing reference to war-time taxation, the nominee declared the excess profits tax schedule should be modified to accord with peace requirements and that he would not hesitate to ask Congress for prompt action to that end. He added, however, that he "was not yet prepared to suggest an equitable substitute."

Speech Delivered From Porch.

The speech was delivered from the porch of the Harding residence to a delegation from Mansfield, O., which came up in marching order and serenaded the candidate with four brass bands. In the crowd which filled the lawn and overflowed into the street were many known personally to the candidate, and they cheered him as he held up their conception of neighborliness as a model for the nation.

In a short address of greeting E. I. Sapelier of Mansfield told Senator Harding that many Democrats were in the delegation and that hundreds more in Richland County were going to help "the boys and girls" of other counties to carry Ohio and the nation for the Republican ticket in November.

After the nominee's response he came down the steps with Mrs. Harding, and they shook hands for a half hour as the crowd filed by.

Today's speech marked the formal opening of the front porch campaign, which is expected to bring to Marion many thousands of Republican voters. Two more Ohio delegations are to be received during the coming week, and two later dates already have been announced.

Text of Address.

"It is with a keen sense of delight that I welcome your visit today," said Senator Harding.

"I am pleased that you come not only as Republicans, but as neighbors and friends. We need to cultivate friendliness and neighborliness. I sometimes think in this busy, workaday world we are neglecting those little acts of neighborliness that make life sweet and worth while. It is well enough for one to strive to get ahead in a material sense, for through that ambition human progress is wrought. To acquire and accumulate honestly is most laudable, but we should not forget that life's greatest joys lie in the social concourse of friends and neighbors. Out of such relations grow mutual respect, mutual sympathy and mutual interest, without which life holds little enjoyment.

"I feel myself almost a part of Richland County. Our people, early in the last century, settled in a section that was bounded by Richland and Crawford counties and my earliest recollections are of grists taken to Lexington for grinding. I recall distinctly the stories of my great-grandmother, who related to me how she had often gone with one bag of wheat on horseback, while the men were busy in the fields, and the cries of the wolves were a frequent accompaniment to the weary homeward journey. That was in the days when heroes were without fame's acclaim, when sturdy manhood and womanhood were battling with the wilderness to reveal Ohio as the star of the empire, westward marching.

Inspiration From the Past.

"Sometimes I am accused of living in the past, but, frankly I find the story of their making of Ohio very fascinating and drink new inspiration in recalling the paths they trod and the works they wrought. The miracle in developing America has its lessons, and emphasizes our resolution to hold fast to all the advancement they made, and go on securely toward all we hope to be.

"Having prospered materially, your county has been likewise fortunate in the quality of its people from among whom have come many notable men to write their names upon the imperishable tablets of the nation's history.

"I could multiply examples of your fellow citizens worthy of mention did time permit. But I should fail utterly in my duty to his memory and to his great achievements did I not mention that great statesman, John Sherman, one of the fathers of the Republican party. For 43 years he helped to write the glorious record of the republic in statute law and service in the Cabinet. No man in our public life has rendered more distinguished or valuable services than Senator Sherman.

"The especial thought in my mind today is the interdependence and the mutuality of interest of all our people. One could underwrite the good fortunes of mankind, if he could guarantee in prosperity that fraternity—that common interest—which is born of adversity. The Pilgrim Fathers laid their eternal foundations of new world liberty in grim necessity, and the same spirit, the same concord, the same mutuality followed every pioneering step in the development of the republic.

Class Consciousness a Menace.

"The tendency to class consciousness is a product of developing fortunes, and is both reflex of achievement and a menace to maintained progress. We must caution against class distinction and class conflict at every step.

"Here in the Middle West, where farming is free from tenantry and holds to the normal way, and manufacturing is mainly confined to the plants of that moderate size which indexes the surpassing fabric of American industry, we have the touch of intimacy and that closer understanding which emphasizes the thought I have in mind. We cannot promote agriculture alone, because the factory is necessary to the making of a market. We cannot foster the factory and ignore agriculture, because the farm is our base of food supply.

"I can readily recall 40-cent wheat, flayed from the fields of Richland and Morrow. That was before industry developed the home consumer. That was before railways and improved highways opened the way to markets. That was when farming was a fight for subsistence, instead of the present-day pursuit of attainment. That was before luxury became the by-product of farm and factory. That was before the age of agricultural machinery, when we cradled the wheat and toiled from sunrise to sunset; that was before wealth had been taken from the earth to alter the way of our civilization.

"I trust no one will misquote me as saying I believe in 40-cent wheat, because I have indulged my memory. Sometimes we are very unfair in handling the utterances of public men. I remember when the Senate was discussing the war-time guarantee on wheat, when we felt we ought to give the American farmer that assurance which would encourage a seeding to guard against war famine, a Western Senator was arguing that wheat could not be raised for less than $2.50 per bushel. I interrupted him to say that I well recalled that Ohio farmers in pre-war days had rejoiced to get a dollar for their wheat. I was speaking of normal days prior to the war. You will bear me witness that I spoke fairly and correctly. Yet there are those today who seek to convey that I said a dollar a bushel is enough for wheat today. I am not so annoyed at the silly untruth as I am distressed at the affront to ordinary intelligence.

Taxation a Colossal Burden.

"Pardon the diversion. I am recalling the old-time low level of prices. To recall at the same time the people's inability to buy, and to remind you that mounting farm prices, mounting wages, mounting expenditures—all are inseparably linked, and a grim mutuality will ultimately assert itself, no matter what we do. But a mindfulness of this mutuality will spare us the fine inequalities and the grievances which come of forced adjustment.

"There is no living today or tomorrow according to the standards of yesterday. Every normal being is looking forward. We collect more Federal taxes in one year than the entire wealth of the republic a century ago. Only a little while ago our grievances about taxes were wholly local, because a half-century of Republican control of the Federal Government held us free from direct burdens. But the changed policy, the Democratic drift of freedom of trade, which is international, rather than national, and mounting cost of Government and, finally, war burdens, turned Federal taxation to a colossal burden.

"No one seriously complained while the national crisis hung over us, but we must work a readjustment for stabilized and prosperous peace. We ought to make wealth bear its full share of tax burdens and we ever will. Having this thought in mind and also thinking of the excessive cost of living, I doubt if the excess profits tax for war precisely accomplishes the worthy intent. Its operations have been disappointing, its costs multiplied and pyramided, and righteous changes and modifications ought to be sought at an early day.

Would Recommend Change.

"I would gladly recommend a change, but I am not yet prepared to suggest an equitable substitute, though I should have no hesitancy in asking Congress to seek the earliest possible solution. The reduced cost of Government is already pledged, and reduced appropriation by Congress is already recorded. We must not paralyze American production by taxation at home or destructive competition from abroad, because our mutual interest in productivity has made us what we are.

"Despite all the deprecation, I cannot bring myself to accept the notion that the interrelation among our men and women has departed. We are a democratic people. Our State was founded by people who brought with them the ancient social customs of neighborhood confraternity—the tie that knits communities together, whose widening circle makes of the mass a homogeneous people.

"It is good that our producing interests are diversified. In that lies our great strength as a nation. The manufacturing centers and the food-producing areas complement and supplement each other. These two grand divisions are bound together by common ties of nationality, of history and of aspiration. There is not and there must be no conflict between them. Our imperial domain provides us with the material means of our greatness. There is a disposition of some to inveigh against one section or another, as selfish interest may suggest, but the broad national welfare contemplates no East and no West, no North and no South. Pride of locality is most commendable. But patriotism is not sectional. Politically we may divide as God gives us to see the right, but materially, socially and economically we must be an entity—united, harmonious and interdependent.

In the World War.

"I rejoice to recall that when the great world war summoned our sons to duty and to death, perhaps, there was no question about geography. The boys of the North 'dressed front' with the sons of the South, and all went triumphantly forward to undying fame, never questioning the origin or the environment, much less the locality, of their comrades. Upon the mossy rocks in the gloomy and fateful forest of the Argonne are commingled the blood of the plains and of the metropolis, with that of the boys of the Great Lakes and sons from the land of the palmetto and the fragrant magnolia.

"By cultivating the spirit of friendliness, by a recognition of interdependence, the problems of life are made much easier for all. There is a growing tendency to look to the Government for all remedies, forgetting there are natural laws that will operate to correct evils if given a fair chance. Oftentimes well-meaning laws defeat the very object they are designed to accomplish.

"If the great world war held for us nothing else, it did teach us that there is something more than gain to be striven for in this world. We can hail the lofty and blessed rule of commingling friendship. Having given our splendid lesson, let us present to the world another example, that of concord among ourselves, and make America safe for Americans and the loftiest example of representative democracy.

Making New Citizens.

"Our country holds out opportunity to all, but upon the supreme condition that those who would avail themselves of that opportunity shall be entirely worthy, and know and accept fully the spirit of American institutions.

"There is an example in both Richland and Marion of the making of Americans who were foreign born, which all America might well ponder. Many hundreds of your neighbors and mine came from lands across the sea. They came to become citizens and accept the obligations as well as the advantages of American citizenship. We welcomed them cordially and they became participants in our activities, sharers in our disappointment and our triumphs. They walked with us in the fraternity and mutuality of citizenship, and are of the empire builders and the republic's defenders.

"Out of varied nativity we wrought American nationality, out of old-world representatives, resolved to start anew, in supreme mutuality of interest, we wrought the loftiest example of representative democracy the world has known. I utter my gratitude as a fellow citizen and want to supplement it with my conviction as a Republican, charged with party spokesmanship, that our highest duty is to cling to the fundamentals on which we builded to world astonishment and hold fast to the nationality which inspired our onward march.

"Between Marion and Mansfield is an interesting illustration of national adjustment to the program of progress. The Erie Railroad, once the old Atlantic and Great Western, was originally broad-gauged and single track. One day it was reduced to standard gauge in a few hours. Those of you who have noted it, will recall that the original track follows one grade, the new track is builded to another.

"Is there not an application in the advancing way of America? We must cling to the sure route of splendid development and meet the new demands by so building as to eliminate the grades by which our activities are impeded."

Airplane Convoys Crowd.

Two airplanes were pilots of the pilgrimage here. G. W. Henney, vice president of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, was chosen the advance scout to fly over Marion early in the day and shower the city with Harding and Coolidge souvenirs, and Mrs. Gordon A. Farrow, vice president of the Mansfield Aero Club, had the distinction of convoying from the air the first of the front porch delegations.

A woman's Harding Club had a prominent place in the parade and one section of the parade was given over to a negro Republican club.

Harding Discusses Advantages in Fostering Spirit of Neighborliness

"By cultivating the spirit of friendliness, by a recognition of interdependence, the problems of life are made much easier for all. There is a growing tendency to look to the Government for all remedies, forgetting there are natural laws that will operate to correct evils if given a fair chance. Oftentimes well-meaning laws defeat the very object they are designed to accomplish.

"If the great world war held for us nothing else, it did teach us that there is something more than gain to be striven for in this world. We can hail the lofty and blessed rule of commingling friendship. Having given our splendid lesson, let us present to the world another example, that of concord among ourselves, and make America safe for Americans and the loftiest example of representative democracy." — From Senator Harding's first front-porch speech.

Red Cross Moving Warsaw Supplies.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—With Bolshevik armies menacing Warsaw, evacuation of warehouses where the bulk of the American Red Cross supplies are stored, is under way, according to cables today to national headquarters of the Red Cross. The supplies are being moved to Krakow. All Red Cross workers have been sent to interior points, according to advices. Thousands of refugees are fleeing into the interior without food or clothing.

COX'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH FINISHED; HAS 10,000 WORDS

Nominee Not Expected to Reply to Harding's Charges Until After Notification Ceremonies Saturday.

SPEAKING TRIP TO BEGIN IN TWO WEEKS

Moore, Pre-Convention Manager, Likely to Have Active Charge of Governor's Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., July 31.—Finishing his address for next Saturday accepting the Democratic presidential nomination, Gov. Cox today sought recreation after his hard week's work and prepared to turn to other campaign affairs.

Copies of the address tonight were in the mails for newspapers to prepare for publication Aug. 7. The speech comprises about 10,000 words, according to estimates of Charles E. Morris, the Governor's secretary, or something over a full newspaper page, and somewhat in excess of the acceptance address of Senator Harding, the Republican candidate. The Governor's address was printed in his newspaper plant here this afternoon. He spent a showery afternoon on the golf links.

There will be a short insertion to be made in the speech, which the governor will not prepare finally until the day it is delivered. The subject with which the insertion will deal is a secret, but it is promised that it will not be more than 200 words.

In addition to the copies of the speech for the newspapers, 100,000 copies will be struck off for distribution on notification day to those who attend the ceremonies.

After turning out his speech, Gov. Cox today received two visitors, Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, with whom he discussed economics, and Secretary Van Dyke of the Pennsylvania Democratic Committee. The latter had Gov. Cox approve the list of Democratic candidates for presidential electors in Pennsylvania, as required by a State law.

Gov. Cox today continued to withhold comment on the statement of Senator Harding charging the Democrats with seeking to obscure the League of Nations issue and declaring champions of the league with international interests were behind the Democratic campaign fund. It was indicated that the Governor would make no response before his address next Saturday, and also would continue his policy of refusing through exchange of statements to the press, to enter into that sort of debate. In his forthcoming speeches, however, the Governor's advisors said he would not be backward in the fighting.

Next week the Governor will dispose of several campaign matters held in abeyance while he was engaged all this week on his address. Among these is a reply to P. P. Christensen of Salt Lake City, the Farmer-Labor party candidate, regarding the request for aid in obtaining a pardon for Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate.

George White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is expected here late next week, for conferences with the Governor prior to the notification ceremonies. The special campaign committee of 15, it is believed, will be announced soon after Mr. White sees the candidate. It is understood that the direct management of the campaign, under Mr. White, will be in the hands largely of E. H. Moore of Youngstown, O., Gov. Cox's pre-convention manager; Senator Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, and Wilbur W. Marsh of Iowa, treasurer. Senator Harrison also is expected here next week to map out the Governor's speaking itinerary, beginning about Aug. 15.

In preparation for Gov. Cox's notification, Mayor Switzer today issued a proclamation declaring next Saturday a local holiday.

The League of Nations also was discussed by Gov. Cox and Professor Fisher, who said he would see Senator Harding tomorrow or Monday in an effort to learn both candidates' views.

A number of authors' publicists and scientific men, including Fisher, are forming a new league to advocate America's entrance into the League of Nations. He would not give names of persons behind the movement, but said it was hoped to announce officers in a week or ten days.

Cox to State Party's Position on League in Acceptance Speech.

By the Associated Press.

Washington, July 31.—The position of the Democratic party with reference to the League of Nations "will be made perfectly clear," when Gov. Cox delivers his speech accepting the presidential nomination August 7, George White, new national chairman, declared today in answer to the inquiry of Senator Harding as to the party's stand on the administration's foreign policy.

Chairman White declared that until Gov. Cox had delivered his speech of acceptance he did not care "to engage in a newspaper controversy with the Republican candidate."

"I might be pertinent to ask, however," he added, "whether former President Taft or Senator Johnson of California correctly represents the Republican attitude with respect to the league."

White departed from Washington today without calling at the White House. He had not received an invitation to visit the President and expected none, he said, adding that he had had an "accidental meeting" with Secretary Tumulty at a hotel and had "sent his regards to Mr. Wilson."

The appointment of William H. O'Brien of Lawrenceburg, Ind., former State Auditor, as western campaign manager, was announced. O'Brien will have headquarters at Chicago.

White made public a telegram he has sent to the Democratic members of the Tennessee Legislature, urging that Tennessee be the thirty-sixth State to ratify the Federal suffrage amendment. This would insure "the friendship of all American women," the telegram said.

How Increase in Railroad Fares Will Affect Commuters

About 10,000 commuters on the Frisco, Missouri-Pacific and Wabash railroads will be affected by the increase in railroad rates, commutation tickets having been included in the flat increase of 20 per cent on passenger tariffs. For the most used suburban stations, increases of from 11 cents to $1.32 will go into effect for 10-ride tickets, the low-rate form of transportation with which most commuters provide themselves.

The changes in rates for 10-ride tickets from some of these stations are shown in the following table:

	Present.	New.
Pacific	$6.60	$7.92
Eureka	4.95	5.94
Valley Park	2.20	2.64
Kirkwood	1.21	1.45
Webster Groves	1.21	1.45
Lindenwood	.55	.66
Maplewood	.72	.87
Creve Coeur	4.35	5.22
Ferguson	1.10	1.32

As the larger portion of these 10,000 commuters travel from Kirkwood, Webster Groves and adjacent stations, the new rates will mean an additional weekly expense to many of them of at least $2.88.

The Frisco train for Valley Park leaving Union Station at 5:27 p. m. with 12 coaches daily, carries so many passengers that it is necessary to reduce speed between Tower Grove and Gratiot in order to collect all the fares.

Roosevelt and Wife Leave Summer Home for Notification Trip.

By the Associated Press.

EASTPORT, Me., July 31.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, left his summer home on Campobello Island tonight and went to Portland. He plans to leave for Washington tomorrow night. Mrs. Roosevelt, who accompanied her husband, will go with him to Dayton, to attend the Cox notification ceremonies. Mr. Roosevelt said that he had completed the first draft of his speech of acceptance.

used in the service of transportation and one-half of one per cent in addition; Eastern group 40 per cent; Southern group 25 per cent; Western group 35 per cent and Mountain Pacific group 25 per cent."

The decision of the commission, which was unanimous, summed up as follows:

"Most of the factors with which we are dealing are constantly changing. It is impossible to forecast with any degree of certainty what the volume of traffic will be. The general price level is changing from month to month and from day to day. It is impracticable at this time to adjust all rates on individual commodities. The rates to be established on the basis hereinbefore approved must necessarily be subject to such readjustments as the facts may warrant. It is conceded by the carriers that readjustments will be necessary. It is expected that shippers will take these matters up in the first instance with the carriers, and the latter will be expected to deal promptly and effectively therewith, to the end that necessary readjustments may be made in as many instances as practicable without appeal to us."

Government operation of the railroads was brought into the rate case by Commissioner Eastman, who in an opinion in which Commissioner Woolley concurred, disapproved the method used by the commission in arriving at its conclusion. Commissioner McCord criticized Commissioner Eastman's position, declaring that he "injects into this case large political questions of governmental policy which are nowhere in issue here."

Applies to Commodity Rates.

Details of the increases were discussed by the Commission at length. Discussing provisions for rates between the various groups of roads, the Commission said that joint or single line through rates between points in one group and points in other groups should be increased 33 1-3 per cent. The Commission also said that the increases should apply to individual commodity rates now in effect, except that no increase should be made in the rates on iron ore from the Minnesota and Michigan ranges to Lake Superior and Lake Michigan ports.

As to grain rates the Commission said that it found that such rates into and out of important grain markets in the Middle West might be increased by the general percentages with the understanding that the carriers would, within 30 days after the service of this report, file tariffs restoring an equalization of the rates from important producing states to important consuming regions.

As to Eastern carriers, the Commission ruled that these rates might be increased, but that port differentials must be maintained.

The Commission on its own initiative applied the general increases to all special services performed by the carriers. It authorized the increases to apply to switching, weighing, diversion, reconsignment, lighterage, floatage, storage and transfer, and such separate charges as may be made against the shippers for any other special services.

With respect to the prevailing rates on commodities which are transported under special tariff arrangements, the Commission ordered that the general increases should be added to the present freight charges. This will include the rates on coal, lumber, cement, fruits and vegetables, petroleum, brick and other building material, livestock, packing house products, ore and fertilizers.

TERMINAL OFFICIAL TELLS OF IMPORT OF R. R. AWARD

Will Put Companies on Their Feet and Insure Adequate Service to the Nation, Henry Miller Declares.

Henry Miller, president of the Terminal Railroad Association, who was formerly vice-president and general manager of the Wabash railroad, in a statement given out last night on the Interstate Commerce Commission's action, said:

"This is a most momentous decision. Not only in its provisions for general advances, but of even greater importance is the definite statement of the Commission as to the valuation of the property, which refutes all the loose talk that has been indulged in for years by a lot of irresponsibles who assumed a knowledge of values which they never possessed. It will go far toward stabilizing the credit of the railroads for financing improvements in facilities necessary to enable the carriers to keep pace with the growth of traffic.

"The suggestion that the market price was a fair estimate of the value of railroad securities is fallacious. The market price simply reflected poor earnings, the result of transportation furnished at less than the cost of the service. The decision will permit the railroad to make substantial progress, and furnish the transportation of the nation in the future."

McChord Rebukes Two Commissioners for "Injecting Politics."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Injection of politics into the order issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission permitting an increase in railway freight rates and passenger fare is condemned by Commissioner McChord. The condemnation is directed at Commissioners Eastman and Woolley, both of whom opposed termination of Federal control of the railroads and who, while concurring in the necessity for higher rates and fares, disagreed with the methods adopted by the commission in reaching a conclusion.

In the disagreeing report, Commissioners Eastman and Woolley, after stating their opposition to "early determination of Federal control," added: "The truth in regard to Federal control was then obscured in part by natural misunderstanding of circumstances arising out of war conditions and in part by propaganda which was often deliberately mendacious."

Commissioner McChord, in rebuking the makers of the report, says: "The concurring report of Commissioners Woolley and Eastman injects into this case large political questions of governmental policy which are nowhere an issue here. The Congress has, for the time being, settled the question of Government operation of railroads by restoring them to private operation, hedged around by comprehensive laws vesting broad powers in this commission to regulate them. It is the duty of this commission to enforce the law as Congress has written it. The questions involved in this case are so great and so vital to the American people that no suggestions as are here made should be injected to further complicate the extremely delicate and vital situations that now confront this commission, the public and the railroads."

AUSTRALIAN PRELATE ON WAY TO IRELAND

mauled, pummeled and kicked the coal merchant, wrenching the glasses from his nose, brusquely removing the defending arms his wife encircled about her husband and dragging him toward the forward deck. One quick-witted steward, in a twinkling, when the assailants had drawn off to lunge again upon Shaw, yanked the passenger into a deck pantry, drew Mrs. Shaw in and locked the door. Detectives plunged into the mob of longshoremen and pressed revolvers against them. They drew off reluctantly, shouting threats to prevent the sailing unless Shaw was removed. One of the gang spied Archbishop Mannix, who had just reached the deck and was bewildered by the riot. The pier man extended a grimy hand. The Archbishop admonished, "Behave yourself; no more trouble."

A few minutes later, as they were being herded off the boat by police reserves and pier police, some longshoremen came upon another Englishman who had jeered, and immediately ensued a smaller edition of the preceding riot. A detective's arm was badly wrenched in the melee. Shaw's thigh was hurt and Mrs. Shaw was treated by the ship's surgeon for bruises and shock.

Archbishop's Statement.

For an hour and a half, as he stood baring his head to their plaudits, the crowd on the pier clamored for a speech from Archbishop Mannix, but the bedlam was too much for the most piercing sound to puncture. So the Archbishop issued this farewell statement:

"At the moment of my departure from the United States, I wish to renew my thanks to all of those who for the past ten months have been giving me such a cordial welcome in every great center from San Francisco to New York. My progress has been a series of pleasant surprises culminating in the New York demonstration and in my receiving from the Mayor and Aldermen of New York the freedom of the city.

"For some days past I seem to be one of the few at this side of the Atlantic or the other side who were not speculating about my route. At all events I am sailing as I said I would.

"I have spoken of things that I know to be true, I have done the things I believed to be right and I am unafraid of the consequences.

"I am represented in certain quarters as a promoter of strife. In fact, I am working for peace in Ireland, in the British empire and outside that empire.

"The peace that I hope for is a peace not resting on force, but on justice and the free will of the people concerned. There are those who think that an Archbishop would not speak and act as I have spoken and acted, unless perhaps he is a Belgian Cardinal.

"I cannot accept that comfortable British contention. I believe that Ireland is a nation as Belgium is a nation. I think Ireland has just the same rights as Belgium to say what form of government she will have. Further, if Ireland's cause be just and sacred, I think, although I happen to be an Archbishop, I am certainly within my rights in following in my own humble way the glorious example of Belgium's patriotic and heroic Cardinal.

"I go further and say that if the Irish people are rightly struggling to be free they have some claim to look to me for something more than tolerant and barren sympathy, for, like them, I am an Irishman, bone of their bone and flesh of their flesh.

"Again I thank my friends in America for all they have done for Ireland and I thank from the bottom of my heart the thousands who have come to wish me a safe voyage on the Baltic."

A remarkable demonstration preceded the departure of Archbishop Mannix, who stood on the afterdeck of the Baltic holding two red roses in his hands while he invoked repeatedly a silent benediction upon hundreds of cheering well-wishers, who waved scores of Irish flags.

Lying on the other side of the pier was the steamship Olympic, on which the ship's company staged a counter demonstration by waving English flags and cheering for Great Britain with an occasional hostile note directed against Ireland. The Englishmen, however, were separated by several feet of water and this probably was the only thing that prevented a clash.

awakened at 2, 3 or 4 in the morning by shouting, cursing, screams and breaking of bottles and glasses. Loftis had one of these parties Sunday morning. When I returned from church the entire place was littered with empty whisky bottles and glasses. Loftis and another man, I believe, had picked up a couple of women at the bathing beach and had taken them to his flat.

Twice Called Police.

"At times when he was intoxicated Loftis would try to attack me and twice I was compelled to call the police. Another time he attempted to attack a maid employed by a neighbor, but she escaped.

"I believe last night's party had been planned long in advance. He was very anxious to have me out of the way and had insisted that I go to Long Lake for a vacation and remain several days."

One theory was that a cerebral hemorrhage, which the coroner's physicians declared caused Loftis' death, was the result of a fall, possibly accidental. The other was that Loftis had been hit over the head with the broken whisky bottle, found near his pajama-clad figure.

The police had Miss Woods re-enact the taxicab ride she said she took after leaving Shayne with the body.

Miss Woods, who described Shayne as her fiance, said she was called by Loftis to his apartment at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon; that they danced and drank together, and Loftis attempted to attack her.

"We were having a struggle," Miss Woods declared, "and my attention was momentarily distracted from him. The next instant I was startled by the sound of his body falling to the floor. I was at a loss to know what to do and rushed to the telephone to summon Shayne."

Conflicting Stories Told.

Attempts to shake the conflicting stories of Miss Woods and the taxicab driver failed to change the statement of either.

Shayne still was held late tonight, being questioned further concerning his statement.

Police said they were satisfied that Miss Woods was alone with Loftis at the time of his death and that he had been dead for some time when the doctor called by Shayne arrived.

Loftis came here from Philadelphia with small capital and built up an enormous business selling jewelry on the installment plan. He was expelled from the South Shore Country Club for knocking his wife down upon the ballroom floor and later was arrested for breaking three of her fingers and driving her out of the house, clad only in a night garment, on a bitterly cold night. His brother shot him during a quarrel over business affairs. His wife finally sued him for divorce, waived her dower rights and accepted $125,000 and later removed to California.

Since that time he has maintained his luxurious bachelor apartments

LEAGUE MOVES TO MAKE EUROPE SAFE FOR TRAVELERS

Council Plans Action Following Complaints of Excessive Prices and Confiscation of Property at Frontiers.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, July 31.—Making all of Europe safe for legitimate travelers was one of the problems which occupied the council of the League of Nations at its first session here yesterday, presided over by Count Quinones de Leon, the Spanish Ambassador to France.

The question came up on a report of the Ambassador's Council which cited many complaints, comprising a wide range of grievances such as extortionate prices, difficulties with passport vises and the confiscation of watches, jewelry and other personal property at the frontiers of new countries in Central Europe. A case of detention of travelers, even confinement during the exercising of formalities, was mentioned in the report.

Travelers Lose on Exchange.

Crossing Europe, it was pointed out, travelers are obliged to buy new tickets and register their baggage anew at each frontier, losing money on the exchange as well as time, with each operation.

The object which the council has in view is to remove the vexations and unjustified excesses by new regulations which would make it possible for passengers to take through trains in safety and comfort. Representatives of all countries, it was decided, will be brought together in October, and the different States will be asked to harmonize their regulations with the necessities of travel.

May Stop Money Exportation.

Application of decrees prohibiting exportation of money from different European countries was also considered by the councillors.

Another question of discussion was the payment of the expenses of the Saare Basin Boundary Commission. No decision on this was reported after the meeting, but it is understood the council deems it advisable that the people of the Saare district should not be asked to continue to pay the heavy expenses of an operation which is long-drawn-out and which only interests France and Germany. These countries probably will be asked to share the expenses.

Reports on the dispute between Sweden and Finland for possession of the Aland Islands showed statements from both countries had been received. These will be examined by a commission of jurists later.

COAL FROM NEW SOURCE UNLESS MINERS RETURN

Committee's Decision in Seeking Supply in Kentucky Depends on Whether Illinois Mines Reopen.

FUEL SENT TO ESSENTIAL PLANTS

Two Cars Ordered Delivered to Brick Company to Prevent Ruination of Material in Kilns.

The Coal Committee is awaiting developments in the mine strike situation tomorrow before it sends to the Kentucky coal fields, if need be, for coal to relieve the shortage here. If it does not appear tomorrow that the miners in the adjacent Illinois fields will resume work, then attempts will be made to get a fuel supply for St. Louis elsewhere.

Chairman Wallace called Frank Farrington of Springfied, president of the Illinois Miners' Union, on the telephone yesterday afternoon and asked him if he thought it necessary to send representatives of the committee to Kentucky in the effort to get coal for the city.

"We are sending out now," Farrington replied, "telegrams to all locals in Illinois, urging the officers to get their men back to work Monday morning."

No Word From Lewis Yesterday.

James Mason, district secretary-treasurer of the Belleville district of the Illinois Miners' Union, said that the union had received no communication from President Lewis and that he was not in a position to say what the miners would do when they receive notice from Lewis to resume work under the promise of the President to reopen the wage scale affecting them. He said that his personal opinion of the matter was that the men would pay no attention to the order.

If by Wednesday the situation is not improved the committee is expected to request a voluntary shut-down of nonessential industries for a week or 10 days, as a further means of fuel conservation. The railroads will be asked to refuse delivery of coal to any of the members of the Coal Service Bureau—dealers who deliver coal to nonessential industries. The bureau, on Wednesday, voted to co-operate with the committee, the appointment of which it was instrumental in obtaining.

Two cars of coal yesterday were allotted to the Evans & Howard Fire Brick Co. to prevent ruination of two kilns of products already fired, and valued at $11,200. The Polar Wave Ice & Fuel Co., which operates four ice plants with a consumption of 420 tons of coal a day, was given eight cars. Seven cars were allotted to the William J. Lemp Brewing Co. for ice making.

Ice Factory Closed.

The ice factory at Valley Park closed Friday night for lack of coal. One mine at Edwardsville is being worked for short periods to provide coal for local ice and public utility plants.

When the United Railways reported that coal at its Salisbury street power station would last through today only, five cars were ordered sent there. A plea of 45 dyeing and cleaning concerns for coal was laid over until tomorrow.

A woman operator at Nashville, Tenn., communicated with E. J. Wallace, chairman of the Coal Committee, offering from five to 35 cars of coal at $10.50 a ton. The offer was considered at a conference of city officials and declined. It was found that the city institutions have enough coal to last two weeks and the price offered is about $6 more than the city is accustomed to paying.

The threatened shut-down of the waterworks at St. Charles last night was averted when arrangements were made by the Coal Committee to deliver two cars of coal there tomorrow and the pumping was reduced to a half-time basis, or 12 hours daily, in order to make the present supply last as long as possible. It was said the surplus in the basins would carry the town over the period when there is no pumping.

The waterworks consumes about three-quarters of a car of coal daily. Two cars of coal were delivered to the St. Charles Electric Light & Power Co. to enable that plant to keep in operation.

Managers' Pre-Primary Claims for Candidates of Both Parties for Governorship and Senate

PRE-PRIMARY claims of managers for the leading candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations for United States Senator and for Governor yesterday were:

United States Senator.

LIEUTENANT - COLONEL DWIGHT F. DAVIS (Republican): Will carry St. Louis over Senator Spencer by 20,000. Will defeat Spencer in the State outside of St. Louis, carrying 50 counties by pluralities ranging from 100 to 3000. No claim as to expected plurality in State as a whole.

SENATOR SELDEN P. SPENCER (Republican): Refused to concede a single county to Davis or James L. Minnis. Will carry St. Louis. Will get even break in Jackson County. No claim as to expected plurality in State as a whole.

JAMES L. MINNIS (Republican): Will have a substantial lead over opponents out in the State. No claims as to the vote in St. Louis, but doubt expressed that vote will be in accordance with expressed desires of committeemen supporting other candidates.

BRECKINRIDGE LONG (Democrat): Will carry St. Louis and Buchanan County. Jackson County in doubt. Will carry remainder of State by "safe plurality." No claim as to expected plurality in State as a whole.

CHARLES M. HAY (Democrat): Will carry every Congressional district in State except those in St. Louis, and possibly the Fifth (Kansas City). St. Louis conceded to Henry S. Priest. Will carry Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth wards in St. Louis. Four rural counties conceded to Priest and all remainder claimed for Hay. Will carry Buchanan County. No claim as to plurality in State as a whole.

HENRY S. PRIEST (Democrat): Will carry 46 counties. Will have a plurality of from 15,000 to 18,000 in Jackson County. Will receive 60 per cent of the vote in St. Louis. Will be in lead in State outside of St. Louis. No claim as to expected plurality in State as a whole.

Governor.

ARTHUR M. HYDE (Republican): Will carry the State outside of St. Louis by from 35,000 to 40,000, which majority given McJimsey in St. Louis cannot approach. Hyde's plurality will depend on his St. Louis vote, which is expected to be from 15,000 to 20,000. McJimsey is not conceded a St. Louis plurality in excess of 15,000.

E. E. E. McJIMSEY (Republican): Will be nominated by a plurality of between 55,000 and 75,000. Will carry St. Louis by at least 25,000. Will carry State outside of St. Louis.

JOHN M. ATKINSON (Democrat): Will carry eight Congressional districts. Will carry five St. Louis wards. Twelve wards conceded to Frank H. Farris and 11 to Charles H. Mayer. Will carry Jackson County by a plurality of 10,000. Will carry 81 counties. Will receive 110,000 votes, at least 50,000 more than his nearest competitor.

FRANK H. FARRIS (Democrat): Will carry St. Louis, and a majority of the counties out in the State. Mayer is conceded only one county, Cape Girardeau. Race is declared to be between Farris and Atkinson.

CHARLES H. MAYER (Democrat): Will carry the State by substantial plurality. Will receive more than three-fourths of the vote in St. Louis. Will receive from 65 to 75 per cent of the vote in the counties of north and central Missouri and 60 per cent of the vote in southeast Missouri.

State by a safe margin. On the other hand Priest contends he will receive 60 per cent of the St. Louis vote and that he will lead both Long and Hay out in the State. The Hay managers admit that Kansas City is in doubt and say that Priest will carry St. Louis. They contend that Hay will surprise his opponents by the size of his St. Louis vote, that he will carry the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth wards and that he will get a large vote in the other wards in which there is an honest count. They insist there has been an overwhelming drift to Hay within the last 10 days.

The talk generally heard among politicians, who are not actively identified with the candidacy of either, is that Long appears to have the better of the contest, but that they would not be surprised if Hay would be shown to have developed sufficient strength to defeat him by a small margin. Priest generally is counted third in the race.

On the Republican side for United States Senator the candidates are Lieut. Col. Dwight F. Davis, Senator Spencer and James L. Minnis. The nomination appears without much question to be between Davis and Spencer. Two months ago it was difficult to find a politician who did not believe that Spencer would win by an enormous plurality. This opinion has been gradually changing until the past few days, during which there have been many who have expressed the opinion that Davis has broken down the Spencer lead and that he has an excellent chance of winning.

Lowden Fund a Factor.

Spencer suffered from the Lowden campaign fund disclosures and from his failure to join in the movement to oust National Committeeman Babler, State Chairman Cole and others who handled presidential campaign funds. Several of Spencer's strongest supporters in St. Louis were involved in the disclosures, and while there was no showing that Spencer personally received any of the money, a considerable amount was traced into the Spencer camp.

It was shown that Babler, when spending Lowden money, was working for Spencer's renomination as well as his own re-election as national committeeman.

Spencer, known as a dry out in the State, has also suffered from the discussion of the liquor question. His opponents have sent many thousand circulars throughout the State in an effort to convince rural voters that Spencer was running wet in St. Louis and dry in the country.

That they have succeeded in more than raising a question as to Spencer's position on the liquor issue is doubtful, while the voters out in the State are convinced that Davis is wet. In fact, he has declared himself opposed to constitutional prohibition.

Spencer Had Long Lead.

Spencer unquestionably has lost ground in St. Louis, though he has the support of several members of the Republican City Committee. He carried Missouri over Folk (Democrat) in 1918 by 35,000. He is in office. He has been able to tell the rural voters that the St. Louis "machine" is supporting Davis and that the machine is wet. Davis had a long lead to overcome and if he has been successful he will have been shown to have conducted a remarkable campaign.

Spencer's campaign managers refuse to concede that Davis will carry a single county in the State, and claim Spencer will carry St. Louis, notwithstanding the opposition of the Kiel-Schmoll organization. Davis' managers, on the other hand, claim 50 counties with a plurality out in the State for Davis, and that he will carry St. Louis by at least 20,000.

For the Democratic nomination for Governor the candidates are John M. Atkinson of St. Louis, Frank H. Farris of Rolla, Charles H. Mayer of St Joseph and Robert H. Merryman of St. Louis. Atkinson, Farris and Mayer are the real contenders.

Atkinson the Favorite.

The opinion generally expressed among politicians is that Atkinson is the favorite among the three. This opinion is largely based upon the fact that he is known as a dry, while Farris is an out-and-out wet and Mayer has not taken a definite stand on the question, though his record as a State Senator a number of years ago discloses that he voted wet on virtually every liquor bill. In this connection it is pointed out that in 1916 President Wilson carried 67 Missouri counties, and thus they may be considered Democratic counties, and in 1918 these 67 counties gave the prohibition amendment a majority of 24,173.

Atkinson's friends contend these figures show that rural Missouri unquestionably is Democratic and unquestionably is dry. They contend that the liquor question is foremost in the minds of a large majority of the rural voters and that with a division of the wet vote between Farris and Mayer Atkinson is certain to win.

The Atkinson managers contend that Farris will be second in the race and that Mayer will run third. Farris, they say, will lead Mayer both in the State and in St. Louis. They predict Atkinson's nomination by at least 50,000, saying he will receive 110,000 votes, Farris 60,000 and Mayer 45,000.

Statements from the Farris and Mayer managers are to the effect that their candidates will win. Both claim St. Louis and the State outside of St. Louis.

Hyde and McJimsey Race.

For the Republican nomination for Governor the candidates are Arthur M. Hyde of Trenton and E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield. This race is expected to be a particularly close one, Hyde generally being considered the favorite out in the State, while McJimsey, it is conceded even by the Hyde supporters, will carry St. Louis approximately 2 to 1.

Hyde is a dry. McJimsey has evaded a declaration of his position on prohibition, but is considered wet. At least, he has the support of the very wet organization in St. Louis. While reports from out in the State for several months have been to the effect that Hyde has been sweeping everything before him in his campaign and his supporters have contended he would win by a huge majority, an analysis of the situation inevitably leads to the conclusion that if the wet and dry issue has much bearing on the situation, McJimsey has the better of the contest.

In 1918 the 48 counties, including St. Louis, which had been carried by Hughes in 1916, thus establishing them as Republican counties, gave a wet majority of 96,159. Most of this was in St. Louis, but the rural Republican counties gave a wet majority of 7933.

Liquor Not Only Consideration.

These figures indicate that Hyde must look to somthing besides his record as a dry to carry him through. There are other things in the campaign, however, which unquestionably will have an important bearing, possibly sufficient in the minds of the voters to make the liquor question a minor issue. McJimsey received $1000 of the Lowden money and has counted principally upon the support of the St. Louis organization to pile up the vote sufficient for him to win. The St. Louis organization is obnoxious to a large part of the rural Republican population and the Lowden campaign fund disclosures have aroused a widespread opposition to all who profited from the distribution of the fund.

Hyde's friends insist he will carry the State outside of St. Louis by between 35,000 and 40,000. If he does, there will be no question about him winning the nomination. The best estimates of the St. Louis vote have been that there will be about 45,000 votes cast. Hyde's friends say he will get a third of them, which would make McJimsey's St. Louis majority only 15,000.

McJimsey in a statement issued in Kansas City Friday said he would carry St. Louis by 25,000 and that he would carry the State outside of St. Louis by between 30,000 and 50,000.

MINNIS BONE DRY IN FINAL DAYS OF PRIMARY CAMPAIGN

Republican Candidate for Senate Writes Letter Stating His Earlier Utterances Have Been Misinterpreted.

SAYS HE FAVORS THE VOLSTEAD LAW

Would Vote for Only Such Changes as Would Be Useful in Enforcing National Prohibition.

Through letters mailed out within the last few days by James L. Minnis, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, to rural voters (but not circulated extensively in St. Louis), it has been disclosed that the popular belief that Minnis was opposed to prohibition was all a mistake. Minnis states in the letter that he is in favor of the Volstead law and favors only such amendments to the law as will be useful in enforcing the national prohibition amendment.

Minnis has written at length for St. Louis newspapers on prohibition and other subjects, and from his writing he was accepted as a wet candidate. He has declared himself in favor of amendments to the Volstead law which would do away with the one-half of one per cent limit of alcoholic content, and make the question of whether a drink was intoxicating one of fact to be determined by the court, and not determined by legislation.

Asked for No Corrections.

Notwithstanding frequent references in St. Louis newspapers to Minnis as a wet candidate, Minnis asked for no corrections, and in all probability there would have been no correction if one of the letters written to a dry out in the country had not been sent to the manager of the campaign of one of Minnis' opponents.

In the letter Minnis said:

"So far, I have been misrepresented on one question. I had assumed that the prohibition question was settled, and for that reason did not mention it on the enclosed card. On the fourth of last April I published a statement of my views on prohibition wherein I said:

"Since I have been a candidate I have made diligent inquiry with the result that I am convinced prohibition in local option counties has proven a complete success, and that national prohibition is a wise public policy which will promote the public welfare. I also believe it has come to stay.'

"I stated also that in my opinion the Volstead act was defective in some respects, and should be amended in the interest of prohibition to make it effective. This suggestion was seized upon by interested parties to misrepresent my position.

Favors Strict Enforcement.

"I am unqualifiedly in favor of a strict enforcement of th prohibition amendment, and if elected to the Senate I shall urge only such amendments to the Volstead law as experience has or may demonstrate to be useful in enforcing the amendment.

"I trust you will disregard any rumors to the contary. I am well known to a number of your leading citizens who are actively sopporting my candidacy."

Minnis said yesterday he could see no discrepancy between the statements contained in the letter and his previous announcements of his position on prohibition.

MAN WHO CALLED SHERIFF "SITTING BULL" ATTACKED

Samuel A. Dienstbach, an Original I. V. L. Member, Beaten by Son of Officer as Result of Reference.

FIGHT IN SALOON ON MARKET STREET

Piano Tuner Who Admits Authorship of "American Ballot," Arrested for Flourishing a Pistol.

A fight at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a saloon at Tenth and Market streets, was followed by the arrest of Samuel A. Dienstbach, 34 years old, of 3838 South Broadway, a piano dealer, on a charge of having flourished a deadly weapon.

A loaded revolver and a holster were turned over to a policeman who had been called to stop the fight. J. Ray Weinbrenner, an assistant Prosecuting Attorney, son of Sheriff Weinbrenner, handed the weapon to the policeman, and said that he had taken it from Dienstbach after the latter had drawn it and threatened to shoot him.

Dienstbach's face was covered with cuts and bruises. He told the police that he had been assaulted by Weinbrenner and Deputy Sheriff M. C. Lefmann. He said that he was a Deputy State Game Warden and had exercised his authority to carry a revolver when he was informed a few days ago that Weinbrenner and Lefmann were looking for him and had threatened to "get" him. He was released on an $800 bond pending action by the Circuit Attorney, to whom the facts will be submitted tomorrow.

Author of "American" Ballot.

Dienstbach told the police that he was the author of a circular letter and a sample ballot marked "American ballot" sent recently to members of the Junior Order of United Mechanics, which characterized the "Independent Voters' League," which issued an anti-Catholic sample ballot a week ago, as a group of men working in the interests of Sheriff Weinbrenner's campaign for Republican nomination for Public Administrator.

"I was one of the original members of the I. V. L., which got out a sample ballot in 1916," said Dienstbach. "The organization was disbanded shortly after the election. The Junior Order of United Mechanics, of which I am Junior Past Councilor and chairman of N. C. Lyon Council No. 21, has nothing to do with this I. V. L. that has indorsed Weinbrenner. I am supporting Mohrstadt and advising all of my friends to do the same thing."

Dienstbach had just entered the bar when Weinbrenner approached him and demanded to know why the Dienstbach circular had referred to Sheriff Weinbrenner as "alias Sitting Bull."

"What's it to you?" demanded Dienstbach. "Your name was not mentioned, was it?"

Slapped His Face.

"I have a right to defend my father," said Weinbrenner, and he slapped Dienstbach's face.

Weinbrenner's version of what followed was that Dienstbach then drew his revolver and he took it away from him.

"I sailed into him," said Weinbrenner," and gave him a good beating, and I don't regret it."

Dienstbach said he was attacked before he displayed his revolver, and that Weinbrenner and Lefmann both beat him with their fists.

"When Weinbrenner discovered the revolver strapped to my belt he demanded to know why I was armed," said Dienstbach. "I gave him the revolver and told him to quit hitting me."

Dienstbach has been active in Republican politics in the Eleventh Ward for several years. In 1918 he was defeated by Nat Goldstein for the Republican nomination for Circuit Clerk.

PRISON FOREMAN HELD FOR SMUGGLING DRUG TO CONVICTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 31.—G. W. Roedel, foreman of the broom factory at the Missouri Penitentiary, was arrested today charged with smuggling morphine into the prison. Roedel had been under suspicion by the prison authorites for six months, but they were unable to obtain sufficient evidence upon which to act.

They received information today that Roedel had agreed to deliver a bottle of morphine tablets to a convict. He was seized and searched when he entered the gate and a bottle of morphine tablets was found in his pocket.

Warden Gilvin spent the forenoon telephoning to Federal authorities in Kansas City, in an effort to have a warrant issued, but the District Attorney's office referred him to the revenue collector, who in turn referred him to the District Attorney, until he finally despaired of getting action and turned Roedel over to Prosecuting Attorney Westhues, who filed a complaint against him.

Smuggling drugs into the prison under State law is a misdemeanor and the penalty is a minimum of three months in jail and a $300 fine, or six months in jail and a fine of $500.

Circuit Judgeship Candidates Whom Republican Committee Ring Is Backing

HACKMANN OPPOSED BY GOLDSTEIN "MACHINE"

Spencer on Sample Ballot Issued by the "Courthouse Ring."

The Nat Goldstein slate, containing the names of candidates supported by Goldstein, who with Robert E. Moore, Republican City Committeeman from the Sixteenth Ward, constituted St. Louis' "$5000 pair" of Lowden delegates in the Republican National Convention, was circulated yesterday.

The ballot, which is intended as a guide for voters willing to take orders from the "machine," discloses that there is a fight on the part of the St. Louis organization on George E. Hackmann, the only Republican elected on the State ticket four years ago, who is seeking renomination for the office of State Auditor.

Hackmann's Political Crime.

Hackmann's political crime is held by the organization men to be the employment of Edward W. Foristel, who is opposing the bosses of the organization this year, as his attorney. The word has gone out that to punish Foristel, Hackmann is to be defeated. About the only place the ballot differs from most of the other ballots of the "machine" committeemen is that it favors Senator Spencer instead of Dwight F. Davis for United States Senator.

The Goldstein favorites are:

Spencer for Senator; E. E. E. McJimsey for Governor; Politte Elvins for Lieutenant-Governor; Charles U. Becker for Secretary of State; William W. Phillips for Auditor; G. D. Viles for Treasurer; Jesse W. Barrett for Attorney-General; Conway Elder, Denton Dunn and David E. Blair for Supreme Judges; Charles H. Daues for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals; Otto F. Stifel for Congressman from the Eleventh District; Charles J. Dolan for State Senator; William H. Killoren, Karl Kimmel and E. G. Ossing for Circuit Judges; Chauncey J. Krueger for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction; Charles Straub and Samuel White for members of the Legislature, Fourth District; Howard Sidener for Circuit Attorney; John Schmoll for Sheriff; Frank M. Slater for Public Administrator; Dr. T. L. Carriere for Coroner; Anton Schuler for City Treasurer; Charles J. Eisenring for member of the Board of Aldermen, and Goldstein for Committeeman.

Bears Goldstein's Name.

The ballot at the bottom has Goldstein's name and the statement that it has been indorsed by the Nineteenth Ward Precinct organizations.

A story was circulated yesterday by organization politicians that Jones H. Parker, candidate for the nomination for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, had withdrawn. Parker last night said the statement was untrue and was circulated by the "machine" in an effort to draw votes from him.

HOUSING PROBLEM SOLUTION DISCUSSED BY TENANTS' LEAGUE

Vote to Be Taken on Proposing State Law Fixing Rentals on Basis of Assessed Values.

Nineteen members of the Missouri Tenants' League of St. Louis met at the British and Canadian Club, 3522 Pine street, last night to discuss a solution of the housing problem in St. Louis.

George E. Booth, a lawyer who resides at the Washington Hotel and was active in organizing the league, suggested that a draft of the law passed a year ago in Wisconsin, which provides for a commission to fix rentals according to assessed value of property, be submitted to the Missouri Legislature at its next meeting in January. This was not put in form of a motion but will be voted on as such at a meeting next Saturday.

The league claims a membership of 300 persons and is trying to interest all renters in St. Louis in the movement.

Thief Takes $38, Leaves Watch.

A burglar stole the trousers of Lawrence Ball, 2619 Howard street, while the owner was sleeping Friday night. When Ball awoke yesterday morning he found the trousers in the front yard. A package of cigarettes and $38 were missing. Ball's gold watch was in one of the pockets, but the burglar did not take it.

Seeks Youth and Vacuum Cleaner.

Mrs. Mamie Scudder of the St. Regis Apartments has asked the police to help her recover a vacuum cleaner which she entrusted to a youth about 17 years old, July 16, and who has not been seen since by her. She reported the boy was carrying a scissors grinding outfit when he visited her apartment and she gave him a pair to sharpen. After he was through, she reported, she gave him $1, also the vacuum cleaner, which he said he could have repaired. He did not return with either the change for the $1 or the cleaner, she said.

SPRINGFIELD RAIL UNIONS UNFAVORABLE TO M'JIMSEY

Only Two of 50 Locals in That City Have Indorsed Republican Candidate for Governor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 31.—The attitude of organized labor in Springfield and of members of the various brotherhoods on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad is unfavorable to Senator Selden P. Spencer and E. E. E. McJimsey, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, according to an announcement today by J. R. Moll of Springfield, general secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks on the Frisco. Moll is a member of the system board of the brotherhood, which is conducting a campaign among railroad employes to obtain support for candidates favored by organized labor.

"Organized labor will back the men whose records show they are fair to labor," Moll said today. "We are not going by promises any more as we have listened to them for years without getting anywhere."

Representatives of the Central Trades and Labor Assembly of Springfield recently issued a statement denying a statement by McJimsey supporters that the unions of Springfield had endorsed McJimsey in his campaign for Governor.

According to the statement only two of the 50 unions in Springfield had endorsed him, the Typographical Union and the Pressmen's Union.

Members of the Typographical Union said the endorsement of the union was not unanimous. The Central Trades statement declared that "the McJimsey-for-Governor Committee was attempting to mislead the general public into believing that McJimsey is labor's candidate and that he has been endorsed by organized labor of Springfield."

CASH FOR FASTEST FLYING TIME FOR PULITZER TROPHY

Various Cities Along Route of Trans-Continental Race Expected to Offer Attractive Prizes.

LANDING REQUESTS ARE POURING IN

$5000 Trophy to Mean for America What Bennett Trophy Has to Aviation in Europe.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Cash prizes for the fastest flying time between various cities along the route of the transcontinental race for the Pulitzer trophy are practically a certainty, according to Maj. Charles J. Glidden, acting chairman of the Aero Club of America, which is sponsoring the race.

Already many requests have been received from various points on the coast-to-coast aerial mail route that the flyers stop on their landing fields. These requests, according to Maj. Glidden, are generally accompanied by the suggestion that the city or local Chamber of Commerce be permitted to offer a cash prize to the flyer making the fastest time between New York and their landing field.

Foreshadows Many Air Lines.

"This merely serves to show that all of the cities of the country are anxious for the time to come when they will have a direct air line connection to New York," said Maj. Glidden. "Within the next few years we shall see this city surrounded by landing fields which will be the terminals for airplane lines stretching to all parts of the United States.

"At the present time the tentative course of the race passes over Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City and Reno to San Francisco. We have received many letters from other cities which are slightly off the route of the flight, but we believe that proper ratio of time allowance will permit the contestants to make a zigzag journey to compete for these prizes and at the same time keep in the race.

What Trophy Means to America.

The keen competition for the possession of the Pulitzer Trophy, which is valued at $5000 and will belong to the aviator who wins it three times in succession, will do much toward keeping New York in the lead of all American cities in the field of aviation, Maj. Glidden stated. The Pulitzer Trophy, he added, will mean to American aviation what the Gordon Bennett Trophy has meant to aviation in Europe.

August Post, secretary of the Aero Club, received a telegram today from Charles Jerome Edwards, acting president of the club, who is now on his way to San Francisco. The message reads as follows:

"Immensely pleased by announcements in western newspapers that you have decided to hold a transcontinental race for the Pulitzer Trophy. Great interest in contest displayed by everyone I have talked with. Please extend my congratulations to the Contest Committee."

Monday a meeting will be held by the Contest Committee of the club to decide on the rules which will govern the race.

with this order without further delay. The President's telegram emphasizes the grave responsibility which devolves upon every member of our organization to conform to proper procedure within our union and to discharge their obligations to organized society. It furthermore provides a way to secure consideration of the inequalities in the basic interstate wage agreement. The word of the President is pledged that a joint wage conference will be reconvened when our membership demonstrates their good faith in keeping their contract. It is, therefore, apparent that immediate compliance with this order by our membership will expedite the disposition of the questions at issue. I earnestly hope that our membership will thus demonstrate the integrity of our union and the sacredness of our obligation."

Lewis today acknowledged President Wilson's message of last night in the following telegram:

"I herewith acknowledge receipt of your telegram of July 30 dealing with the state of confusion existing in the coal industry in the states of Illinois and Indiana. I am impressed with the fairness of your suggestions in the premises and have today telegraphed all local unions of mine workers in the before-mentioned states the following instructions:" The remainder of Mr. Lewis' telegram to the President is the same as that sent to the local unions.

President to Convene Commisison When Men Resume Work.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Pending formal word as to compliance of Illinois and Indiana soft coal miners with orders of their national organization to return to work, no steps were taken at the White House today toward inviting the Bituminous Coal Commission to take up the men's grievances. White House officials indicated that they expected no further action on the President's part until it was clear that the miners all had returned to work. In that event, they anticipated, he would immediately ask the commission to begin its investigation.

DEALERS' ASSOCIATION BLAMES SPECULATORS FOR COAL PRICES

Shortage of Cars and Reconsignments Also Declared to Be Factors in Market.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Blame for exorbitant coal prices was placed on speculators in a statement today by the National Coal Association. Federal Trade Commission figures giving the average sales prices at the bituminous mines during last April as $3.26, it said, "clearly indicate the slender average of profit per ton realized by the industry as a whole."

Mine cost was placed at $2.76 a ton by the commission, the statement pointed out, adding that the 50 cents margin between the cost and selling price was not net profit, for from it must be deducted interest on borrowed capital and other items of expense.

"The blame for exorbitant prices lies in the activity of a coterie of speculators who have taken advantage of an upset market," declared the operator's statement, which added that car shortage "paved the way for the play of speculative prices." Reconsignment of cars "for which the railroads are responsible," it continued, permitted exchange of coal in transit, sometimes resulting in a "higher price to be tacked on" two or three times, that the speculators have obtained only a "relatively small proportion of the coal output, but their activity further disrupts a situation that for months has affected the nation's coal output," the operators said.

WOMAN RUN DOWN BY ANOTHER IN AUTO

Mrs. Frances Leas Seriously Hurt When Struck by Car Driven by Mrs. E. E. Stone.

A woman and a boy were seriously injured, the boy perhaps fatally, in two automobile accidents which occurred in rapid succession on Walton avenue late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Frances Leas, 49, of 1003 Walton avenue, was run down and seriously injured at 5 p. m. as she was crossing Walton near McMillan avenue by an automobile driven by Mrs. E. E. Stone of 4323 De Tonty street, which, the police say, was running north on Walton on the west side of the street.

Mrs. Leas was accompanied by her son, Earl, and neither noticed the auto approaching. Mrs. Leas was knocked down and suffered a fractured arm, several fractured ribs and internal injuries. She was sent to the city hospital, where physicians pronounced her condition serious.

Woman Driver Not Arrested.

Mrs. Stone was not arrested as Mrs. Leas was able to tell the police she would not prosecute.

Herman Labb, 15 years old, of 4212 Clayton avenue, was probably fatally injured when a delivery truck in which he and another boy were riding with the driver, William Weiss of 4233 Gratiot street, overturned on Walton avenue a few feet north of Pershing. Labb was caught under the vehicle and suffered a fractured skull, a broken right leg and internal injuries. He was taken to the Barnes Hospital where his condition was said to be very critical late last night.

Arthur Brock Jr., of 723 South Boyle avenue, was thrown clear of the truck when it overturned and suffered only lacerations of the head and bruises about the body. Weiss escaped injury. The truck belonged to the Laclede Grocery and Market of 4379 Laclede avenue. Weiss said a front wheel had plunged into one of several holes in the street paving at that point and had broken the steering gear, twisting the front axle until the car overturned.

Auto Strikes Trolley Pole.

An automobile owned by George Cook, who lives near Webster and in which he and four friends were riding, struck a trolley pole when Cook attempted to drive around a truck in front and was wrecked on the tracks of the Meramec Highlands line at the Ferry road crossing outside of Webster. The occupants were not injured, but street cars were delayed half an hour until the wrecked auto could be hauled from the track.

John Clayton, 74 years old, of 713A South Fourth street, suffered internal injuries and cuts and bruises yesterday when struck by an automobile of the United States Arsenal, Second and Arsenal streets, at Fourth and Cedar streets. He was taken to his home. Lawrence Higgins, 3910 Evans avenue, chauffeur of the truck, was arrested on a charge of careless driving. He told policemen Clayton stepped directly in the path of the truck.

Two Women Hurt.

Two women who gave their names as Mrs. Louise Brown, 28, of 4705 Sacramento avenue, and Mrs. Fannie Smith, 24, of 5500 Delmar boulevard, were injured Friday night when an automobile driven by Edward Adler, 30, of 3628 Evans avenue, collided with an automobile driven by Dudley Cohen of 5739 Westminster place and caromed off against a post at Walton avenue and Westminster place.

The women were taken to a physician's office and from there to their homes, policemen reported. The doctor refused to give the police the nature of the injuries to the women. The women also refused to give any information.

Adler was arrested and charged with careless driving.

POLISH TRUCE PARTY IN CONTACT WITH REDS

Meeting Takes Place on Road Between Brest-Litovsk and Baranovichy.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, July 31.—The Polish military delegates who left Warsaw at 9 o'clock yesterday morning crossed the front line at 8 o'clock tonight. Premier Witos was informed at 9 o'clock that the delegation had established contact with the Bolshevik delegates on the road between Brest-Litovsk and Baranovitchy.

Plans for the withdrawal of all Americans from Warsaw, if necessary, owing to the advance of the Bolshevik forces, have virtually been completed.

Germany Asks for Shipping to Move Poles Crossing Frontier.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 31.—The allied troops in the plebiscite area, according to semiofficial communication, have been withdrawn from the frontier. Polish detachments which have crossed into Germany have been disarmed by the Security Police. In view of the increasing difficulty of the situation, the Government has asked the president of the peace conference in Paris to reply to its recent note seeking permission for Germany to take necessary measures to maintain neutrality on the eastern frontier, as the forces there are not sufficient for protection. The military authorities in the frontier region have been instructed to act as circumstances warrant.

The arrival of additional Polish troops and their stay in the eastern area, it is pointed out, might lead to undesirable consequences, and the entente, therefore, has been asked to place shipping at Germany's disposal to facilitate the transport of her troops.

Secret Code Message Said to Have Ordered Reds to Continue Drive.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 31.—The armistice negotiations between the Polish and Soviet Russian forces are now actually under way, according to advices reaching here, but it is said the action thus far has been restricted to the routine preliminaries.

Meanwhile, although Moscow wireless messages, filed in plain language, apparently ordered the cessation of fighting by the Soviet armies to coincide with the beginning of the armistice meeting last night, it is asserted in French quarters here that a secret code wireless order from Moscow gave instructions to the Soviet commanders to keep pushing their offensive violently.

This alleged secret order is declared to have been deciphered by the French code experts at Warsaw. It is asserted it informed the Soviet commanders that the Bolshevik negotiators would delay handing over the armistice terms until Aug. 4, and that meanwhile the armistice negotiations were to be conducted in a routine manner.

FORMER AUSTRIAN NOBLES TRY TO PERPETUATE TITLES

One Scheme to Evade the Law Is to Hyphenate Title to Family.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, July 31.—Former bearers of Austrian titles, now prohibited, are trying to perpetuate them legally by changing their names so that the title hyphenated to the family name becomes a legal name. For instance the Count Von Grabenstein would become Graf-Grabenstein. But the Government has ruled in principle that this cannot be done.

Some of the old aristocracy still evade the law by using visiting cards, obviously newly printed, with the title and the von lightly lined through with pen or pencil. One young Vienna noble, with a sense of humor, has a card about like this:

Mr. Smith. Created count of the empire by His Imperial Highness, the Emperor, in 1917. Made plain Mr. by Dr. Renner in 1918.

EIGHT ROBBERS IN TWO AUTOS HOLD UP 15 MEN IN SALOON

$150 Taken From Customers and $50 From Cash Register at 8635 North Broadway.

Eight men in two automobiles drove up to the saloon of Charles Milkowski, 8635 North Broadway, at 11 o'clock last night and ordered the proprietor and 14 customers to line up against the wall. Four of the robbers displayed revolvers.

After taking $150 from the customers, $50 from the cash register and a revolver from behind the bar, the robbers ordered their victims to march into the icebox. Five squeezed their way in and as the capacity of the box was taxed the others were told to remain outside. The robbers then backed out and escaped.

YOUTH ARRESTED AS SPEEDER

J. F. Hinchey Taken After 8-Mile Chase in County.

J. F. Hinchey, son of Dr. Frank Hinchey, 19 Yale avenue, University City, was arrested early yesterday morning on a charge of driving his automobile 60 miles an hour on the St. Charles Rock road.

Hinchey, with C. E. Graves, 4348 Laclede avenue, an automobile salesman, according to a Deputy Constable who arrested him, crossed the bridge over the Missouri River to St. Charles at 1 a. m. The Constable waited on the St. Louis County side until 2 a. m., when, he said, Hinchey reappeared and was arrested after a chase of eight miles. Hinchey said that he was returning from Columbia, Mo., and had not gone west over the road.

GAMBLING SQUAD RAIDS SALOON

22 Negroes Arrested in Place Damaged With Hatchets Last Week.

The police gambling squad raided the soft drink saloon of eGorge Creed, 2147 Adams street, at 9:30 o'clock last night and arrested 22 negroes, Robert Creed and his brother, Thomas, who, the police say, were shooting dice in a rear room. Some dice and 30 cents were confiscated. A negro, who took a large amount of money from the table, escaped.

The Creed saloon was raided a week ago by a number of men who destroyed the bar and mirror with hatchets. The Creeds were arrested in connection with the killing of John Lyons at Tenth and Olive streets several weeks ago, but were not indicted.

NEGRO FOUND STABBED IN BACK

Samuel Lawrence, a negro, 37 years old, 3416 Washington avenue, was found with a stab wound in his back yesterday afternoon in the alley in the rear of his home.

He told the police that three white men with whom he was shooting dice became angry when he won and stabbed him and threw him from the house. He was taken to the negro hospital, where he is in a serious condition.

PRIEST SPEAKS WITHOUT MENTIONING LEAGUE

Senate Candidate Devotes Entire Address to an Attack on Prohibition.

Former Judge Henry S. Priest, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, was the principal speaker at a Democratic meeting last night in the Tower Grove Turner Hall, Grand avenue and Juniata street. Priest devoted his entire address to an attack upon national prohibition and the Volstead act, not mentioning the League of Nations, opposition to which has been one of the cardinal points stressed in many of his campaign speeches.

Priest charged that the State literally had been stolen by the Anti-Saloon League, and that the will of a few had been substituted for the will of the majority in imposing prohibition upon Missouri. He said that he is opposed to prohibition and the Volstead law because they transcend the liberty of Americans, "the liberty which is the most precious jewel we have inherited," and because they are tyrannical and beget disrespect for law.

B. F. Brinkmann Presides.

Ben F. Brinkmann, a banker of South St. Louis, presided over the meeting while Priest spoke. George T. Priest, a son of the candidate, and Postmaster Colin Selph also were on the stage, departing as Priest did.

Frank H. Farris, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, announcing that he is running on a wet platform, again charged that Charles H. Mayer, one of his opponents, is a "pussyfooter" upon that issue. Farris, who had campaigned yesterday in Jefferson County, asserted that he stands for equalizing taxes and advocates a measure designed to render the "intangible wealth" of the State subject to taxation.

He was followed by Verne Lacy, Assistant Circuit Attorney and manager of Mayer's St. Louis headquarters, who charged that while Farris "talks wet" he "voted dry' 'in the Legislature, saying that Farris had voted for ratification of prohibition.

Lacy Speaks for Mayer.

He said that "we should nominate a man who can poll the full party strength, and for whom we would not have to apologize in November." He urged Mayer as an organization man, with a wet record in the State Senate and as a candidate with full indorsements from labor organizations.

Farris has explained that his vote for the ratification of prohibition in the last Legislature was cast only when it became evident that 105 of the 142 members were pledged to support it.

J. M. Woods, advocating the candidacy of John M. Atkinson for the Democratic nomination for Governor, spoke briefly, as did Lew R. Thomason, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Judge of the St. Louis Circuit Court of Appeals, and George H. Foree, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Tenth District.

TWO MEN CAUGHT IN SOUTH SIDE RESIDENCE

Had "Jimmied" Way Into Basement—Police Believe They Were Searching for Liquor.

Because somebody at Grand avenue and Longfellow boulevard at 1:30 p. m. yesterday had suspicions about an automobile and its driver just east of the corner, two men who were found in the basement of a nearby house were arrested, pedestrians and residents of the neighborhood were treated to the sight of a squad of policemen rushing the house, and the police say that the capture is a step in breaking up the group of liquor thieves who have been robbing many homes.

A large touring car, bearing State license 259,251, was seen standing on Longfellow boulevard by a man who reported to a patrolman that the car and its driver, sitting at the wheel, looked suspicious to him. As the policeman approached the car was driven away.

Owner Out of City.

The car had been standing in front of the residence of Dr. Clarence O. C. Max, 3555 Longfellow boulevard, whom the policeman knew to be out of the city with his family. The policeman called the Magnolia Avenue police station and Lieut. Frank McKenna and five other patrolmen responded on the run.

Lieut. McKenna and his men surrounded the house and found that the rear door of the basement had been broken open. They entered and found two men there. A tussle was necessary to subdue the men, who gave their names as Pascal Farina, 29, 523 Chestnut street, and Sam Boguslaw, 20, 3979A Evans avenue. They are held at the Magnolia Avenue Station.

The Chestnut street address is that of Hotel Garrick, where police say Farina sometimes stays. The automobile license, according to records, was issued to him at that address.

Admit Jimmying Door.

One of the men had an electric light bulb in his pocket when caught. Farina had $111 in his pockets and Boguslaw $290. They said they won the money shooting craps.

A large "jimmy" was found in a coal pile in the basement. The men admitted using this to break the door open.

GIGANTIC NAVAL FETE TO BE HELD WHEN FLEETS JOIN

Combined Forces of Atlantic and Pacific Will Be Greatest Concentration of Sea Power in U. S. History.

MAY MEET NEAR GULF OF PANAMA

Ships Available Include Monster Tennessee and 17 Other Dreadnought With 112 Fourteen-Inch Guns.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The greatest concentration of sea power in the history of the American navy will result from the junction of the reorganized Atlantic and Pacific fleets off the Pacific coast next January under plans now being prepared by naval operations. The great naval spectacle probably will be staged in the vicinity of the Gulf of Panama.

Officials of the Navy Department say the proposed mobilization will in no sense result in "grand" maneuvers. No effort will be made to concentrate all of the nation's naval strength and only ships regularly in commission with trained crews will participate. The exercises and drills will be simple and mainly of a competitive nature, including unofficial athletic competitions between representatives of tht two fleets and of individual ships. The main object of the mobilization will be to give officers and men an opportunity to compare notes and meet for a few weeks of good-natured rivalry.

Admiral Henry B. Wilson, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, will be senior officer of the combined force, with Admiral Hugh Rodman, chief of the Pacific fleet, second in command.

Maneuvers to Be Unique.

The maneuvers will be unique in many respects, chiefly in that they will afford the first actual mobilization of the bulk of the new American navy. Before the war the forces were always more or less scattered and a shortage of several types of vessels, particularly of destroyers, submarines, light cruisers, aerial forces and fleet auxiliaries made it impossible to concentrate a well rounded out fleet, although the major portion of the battleship force met each winter at Guantanamo, Cuba, for target practice and drills.

During the war the shortage in most types of small vessels, notably destroyers and submarines, was overcome, but the entire fleet was never mobilized, due to the use of practically all light craft in the war zone, the detail of cruisers to escort duty and the fact that a considerable portion of the battleship force was on duty abroad much of the time.

The January maneuvers will set a new mark in American naval progress. For the first time in the history of the new navy the battleship fleet will be supported by a reasonably adequate number of destroyers and other light craft. Submarines will be available in abundance, together with sufficient naval aircraft for all tactical purposes and a fully rounded out fleet of auxiliary vessels. The total number of vessels to participate will depend on the progress of recruiting, as many ships are in reserve now for lack of crews, but it is probable that Admiral Wilson will command at least 300 vessels of all types.

Most Modern Dreadnoughts.

The most modern of dreadnoughts to participate in the maneuvers will be the great Tennessee. The last word in naval construction, this great floating fortress displaces 32,000 tons, carries 12 14-inch guns and is propelled by electric turbines. The Tennessee is attached to the Atlantic fleet. A sister ship, the California, probably will not be completed in time to join Admiral Rodman's force before the maneuvers.

A comparison of the ships available for next winter's maneuvers with the naval strength available for a similar concentration 10 years ago affords some striking contrasts. Jan. 1, 1910, the latest battleship in the navy was the New Hampshire, authorized by Congress in 1904, construction started in 1905 and completed in 1908. A comparison of the New Hampshire and the Tennessee follows:

New Hampshire: Length 450 feet; breadth 76 feet; draft 27 feet; displacement 17,700 tons; speed 18 knots; main battery, four 12-inch guns and eight eight-inch; secondary battery, 12 three-inch; four submerged torpedo tubes; nine-inch armor. Propelled by triple expansion steam engines developing 18,000 horsepower; crew 1250 men, including marines.

Tennessee: 1920. Length 600 feet; breadth 97 feet; draft 31 feet; displacement 32,300 tons; speed (contract) 21 knots! main battery, 12 14-inch guns; secondary battery, 14 five-inch guns; two submerged torpedo tubes; propelled by electric turbines developing 28,500 horsepower; crew 1600 men, including marines.

Eighteen single caliber gun ships classed as dreadnoughts will be available for the January maneuvers that were not completed in 1910. They have a combined displacement of 4450,000 tons and a combined gun power of 112 14-inch guns, 80 twelves, 226 five-inch and 28 three-inch.

A comparison of total battleship forces available in 1920 with 1910 shows that this year there are 18 dreadnoughts and 19 predreadnoughts, excluding the Oregon class, against 23 predreadnoughts in 1910, including the Oregon class. Most of the battleships listed as available in 1910 are now considered obsolete.

Ten years ago the navy destroyer force consisted of about 38 vessels, including torpedo boats even then practically obsolete. This year Admirals Wilson and Rodman command destroyer forces aggregating more than 200 vessels, with over 100 more in reserve or under construction. In 1910 16 submarines were carried on the active list of the navy. This year nearly 100 of the submersibles are attached to the two fleets, with about 75 more under construction.

The cruiser strength of the navy has shown little change in the past 10 years. In 1910 the backbone of the cruiser force was the "big eight" armored cruisers, now reduced to six by the loss of the San Diego and the Memphis. No light cruisers of importance have been launched in the last decade.

Woman Who Is Identified as the Trunk Murder Victim

"O. J. Fernandez," Sought in Saltillo, Mexico, Said to Be E. Leroy.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 31.—A photograph, said to be that of Oscar J. Fernandez, reported to be in Saltillo, Mexico, was identified today as that of Eugene Leroy, wanted here in connection with the Detroit-New York trunk murder mystery, the police announced.

The photograph, received from the San Antonio police, was shown to Patrolman Leo Trumbull, who knew Leroy intimately, and five other Detroit residents. All are said to have declared positively that the photograph was that of Leroy.

Authorities here today still were awaiting word from Mexico on their request for Fernandez's apprehension.

DENTIST KILLED, GIRL SHOT, WHEN SHE CALLS ON HIM

Shooting Block From Elwell Home Said by Another Man, Wounded, to Have Been Out of Jealousy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Dr. Jose Arenas, 26 years old, a dentist, recently arrived from Bogota, Colombia, was found tonight shot to death in his home in West Seventieth street Ruth Jackson, a chorus girl, who, police say, had been in Arenas' apartment, was found in a taxicab nearby with a bullet wound in her chest.

The house in which Joseph B. Elwell, turfman and whist expert, was shot and killed on June 11, is a block away on the same street.

Ignacio Marti, 22, who went to a hospital with a wound in the chest, told police he was shot by Dr. Arenas at the dentist's home, and that Arenas then shot the girl and turned the revolver upon himself.

Marti asserted the dentist was jealous of him because of his attentions to the girl.

Tells of Visit to Dentist.

Marti, who is a Porto Rican, told the police he went to the dentist's apartment with Miss Jackson to call for some of her belongings which she had left there previously. According to Marti, the girl had deserted the dentist for him.

When they arrived, the Porto Rican said, the dentist was talking with Juan Malganado, a South American, and Dr. Arenas asked him to step inside. Malagnado, Marti said, walked to the porch and the dentist went to the rear of the room, which was partitioned off with portieres.

Instead of bringing the clothes, however, the Porto Rican said, Arenas returned with a revolver which he started firing at the girl and at him.

Neighbors Report Shooting.

Marti said he jumped from a window, but thought of the girl and climbed back into the room, waving a passing taxicab driver to stop. He told the police he carried Miss Jackson to the taxicab with the intention of taking her to his apartment.

The dentist's body was found by a policeman after neighbors said they had heard shots. They also said that shortly before the shots a man entered the building and that he left before the police arrived.

Marti later told the police Miss Jackson was married to Elmer Schultz, who, he said, is employed by a taxicab company in Toledo, O., The woman, according to Marti, came from Toledo. He said he met her through Arenas about two months ago.

TOLEDO, O., July 31.—Ruth Jackson, found shot tonight in a taxicab in front of the home of Dr. Jose Arenas in New York City, is the wife of Elmer Schultz, a taxicab chauffeur here.

The girl is 17 years old and her home is in Columbus, O. She was married to Schultz two years ago. She went to New York in April to engage in moving picture work. In a letter exhibited by her husband Miss Jackson said she had been "bothered" by a "foreigner."

NEGRO DROPS SUIT AND RUNS WHEN HE SEES POLICEMAN

Chase of Nearly a Mile Results in His Capture and Recovery of Stolen Goods.

A negro carrying a suit of clothes on his arm attempting to board the rear end of a truck passing Eighteenth and Chestnut streets attracted the attention of Patrolman Klug, who called to the negro. The latter dropped the suit and a revolver on the truck and fled. After firing several shots at the negro the policeman caught him at Jefferson and Washington avenues, almost a mile from where the chase started.

The negro gave his name as Harvey Neilous, 21, of 2224 Morgan street. The suit and revolver were identified as having been stolen earlier in the day from the home of Edgar Harkeman, 1927 Morgan street.

At the negro's home the policeman arrested his wife, Lucille, 25 years old, and confiscated a lot of wearing apparel and a chart of City Block 4338-B, which was identified as having been stolen from the home of Charles A. Williams, 4826 Goodfellow avenue, on June 24.

Neilous denied both burglaries, declaring the stolen articles had been given to him to sell by another negro. He was held.

$1200 DEFICIT CHARGED TO MILLIKEN CO. CLERK

W. R. Hunning Said to Have Admitted Taking Money to Buy Furniture.

William R. Huning, 24 years old, of 3525A Texas avenue, for three years an order clerk in the narcotic department of the Milliken Chemical Co., confessed to Detectives Finan and Etienne yesterday having appropriated approximately $1200 of the firm's money to his own account in small amounts for a year and a half past.

He said after his arrest he had spent the money in paying for his furniture and in other household expenses, blaming the high cost of living for his circumstances. He said his salary was $130 a month. He has a young wife and baby.

The discovery of the discrepancies in Huning's department was made when Huning took a 10-days' vacation recently. For the 10 days prior to his vacation the receipts from his counter had totaled a little over $30.

Makes Written Confession.

While he was away and a new clerk was in his place, the detectives were told, the receipts averaged $97 a day. The difference in the amounts caused a watch to be set on Huning and when he was trapped and taken into the company's offices, he made a written confession.

He detailed how as clerk in the narcotic department he handled only cash sales. The only slip of the sale he would give to the customer and the other slip supposed to be turned in with the cash he would destroy so that the company would be without record of the sale.

By means of invoice slips yesterday the company's clerks were able to trace different peculations which ranged in daily amounts from $4.56 to $14.26. Doctors were the principal customers in this department.

Released on Bond.

After his arrest Huning's young wife accompanied by a bondsman called at Central station and procured his release.

The detectives when they arrested Huning found a pair of dice in his pockets. He denied, however, the dice had anything to do with his embezzlements. He said he only kept them to play for nickels and dimes with "the boys" during lunch hour and other rest periods.

1600 LAME CHILDREN BEING TREATED BY STATE OF ILLINOIS

Head of Child Hygiene Division Maintains Clinics in Twenty-two Cities.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 31.—Sixteen hundred lame children of Illinois are now receiving attention from Dr. C. W. East, head of the State Division of Child Hygiene. Dr. East is now regarded here as having the largest clinic for such children in the world.

Periodic clinics are held over the State. When the name of a child needing attention is received, the division sends one of its staff to arrange for the presence of the child at a clinic. The child remains at home, attending only the clinic, and there Dr. East makes his examination and prescription. He sees that the proper brace fits and later outlines exercises for the child. He also confers if possible with the family physician.

Before a clinic is established Dr. East requires that a fund of $1000 to pay for braces for poor children be provided. In some places this fund is given by the county, the local woman's club or the Red Cross.

There are now 22 cities in the State with clinics. They are Springfield, Jacksonville, Quincy, Alton, East St. Louis, Monticello, Champaign, Danville, Kankakee, Streator, Ottawa, Princeton, Galesburg, Rock Island, Moline, Blue Island, Oak Park, Aurora, Elgin, Waukegan, Rockford and Freeport.

Dr. East reaches each of these clinics at least once in every two months and personally attends each of the 1600 children. His staff consists of one assistant and two nurses. The work before them is of such extent as to make severe taxes on their time and endeavor.

PISTOL IN AUTO POCKET A CONCEALED WEAPON

Owners to Be Arrested Under New Order of Chief of Police.

Revolvers, or other "dangerous" weapons carried in the side pockets, under the seats or in other places of concealment in automobiles or in other vehicles, will be held to be concealed weapons, and the person guilty of concealing it prosecuted by the police in the future.

This action was ordered yesterday by Chief of Police O'Brien, who caused to be sent throughout the department a recent ruling of the State Supreme Court in which a conviction was upheld against a vehicle driver for having a revolver hidden under his wagon seat.

Heretofore no effort has been made by the police to prosecute persons found with weapons in the machines, because of their failure to procure warrants in such cases, it having been held that a concealed weapon was one hidden about the clothes worn by the accused. Only where other tools, such as burglars and safe robbers carry, have been found in automobiles, along with the revolvers have the police been able to make a case.

The Supreme Court decision will change the status of affairs, the Chief said yesterday, and give the police more leeway in the matter of handling "gangsters" and known police characters who may be caught in automobiles, and who usually try to dispose of a weapon in their pockets by hiding it about the machine in which they are riding.

The case cited by the Chief is styled "State vs. Conley." It has to deal with N. J. Conley, a vegetable peddler of Kirksville, Mo., who was arrested after a revolver was found under the seat of his wagon. He was fined $100 in the lower court and appealed to the Circuit Court of Adair County, and again to the Supreme Court.

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

"OUR al fresco dances take perhaps first place in our summer joys this season. Such records as we have for our Vocalion—they fairly make one dance—crisp, snappy fox-trots, jolly, enticing "blues" for one-steps, and dreamy waltzes, all played with such perfect rhythm, that one knows they are the work of masters of their art. Really, the Vocalion plays so beautifully—that sitting out a dance and just listening is a genuine delight."

The Aeolian-Vocalion plays all standard records

THE Aeolian-Vocalion is a wonderful phonograph for playing dance music. Its full, rich tone gives it a carrying power that makes it ideally suitable for this particular purpose. But the Vocalion has much more to commend it than simply its ability to play for the dance. For example, it can be Played Like a Solo Instrument

The exclusive tone control device on the Vocalion—the Graduola—lends an entirely new interest to the phonograph and one that appeals strongly to all music-lovers.

This device enables one to control the volume of tone, shading the music now to a whisper, now bringing it out to the full volume of the instrument. It is so constructed that the performer may sit at a little distance from the Vocalion and enjoy the sense of musical production, coloring and shading the music, much as an orchestra leader imposes his will on his players without himself actually sounding a note.

So greatly does the Graduola add to the interest of the phonograph, that this feature has been alone sufficient to influence the majority of music-lovers in the Vocalion's favor.

Tone Beauty and Fidelity

Those who hear the Aeolian-Vocalion for the first time are generally interested to know the secret of its ability to reproduce the actual tone characteristics of different instruments and voices so faithfully.

This is not a secret, however, and is due to the scientific construction of the Vocalion, based on its manufacturers' knowledge of the problems of tone production, and wide experience in building different kinds of musical instruments.

Other Features

Plays All Records—The Universal Tone Arm enables the Vocalion to play all standard records without doing more than simply shifting the position of the reproducer in its relation to the record.

Positive Automatic Stop—A simple and effective stop that is easily "set" and stops the record at the end or any point desired.

Unusual Case Beauty—The cases of the Vocalion exhibit genuine art in the simple beauty of their design and richness of case-woods. Both period and conventional models set a new standard of appropriateness and conformity with modern ideas in interior furnishing.

41 OBJECTORS TO WAR STILL HELD IN ARMY'S JAILS

Many Refuse Freedom at Price of Obeying the Authorities, Civil Liberties Union Says.

WAR DEPARTMENT POLICY ASSAILED

Case of Howard Moore, Winner of a Carnegie Hero Medal, Being Investigated by the Society.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Although more than a year and a half has elapsed since the armistice, the War Department still holds in its military prisons 41 conscientious objectors to active participation in war, says a bulletin just issued by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The union points out that America is the only country among those which recognized conscientious objection to active participation in war, which has not long since released all men imprisoned for this reason.

The total of such objectors in this country was 6000 out of 3,665,000 men in the United States army. Under the law which required every man to take service of some kind, 4000 objectors went into the noncombatant branches and 1200 went on farms with reconstruction units.

In January, 1919, there were 527 objectors still serving sentences in military prisons. Of these 294 were religious objectors, 103 nonreligious and 130 were not citizens of this country.

How They Are Released.

"These men," says the union's bulletin, referring to conscientious objectors still in military prisons in this country, "are being released slowly as their sentences expire, or by 'special order,' for reasons not explained by the War Department, which has no consistent policy of dealing with conscientious objectors and never had any. All that can be said of the present policy is that the department will not release before expiration of full sentence men who refuse to work under military authority in prison.

"The War Department does not guarantee to release those who accept work, but, as a practical matter, every man at Fort Douglas, Utah (where all but six of the 42 are imprisoned), who agrees to work under military authority is released shortly thereafter. Freedom on that condition is definitely held out by the officers at Fort Douglas and has been clearly implied in statements over the Adjutant-General's signature.

"Every man at Fort Douglas knows he can get out by doing a few weeks' light work under military orders. In effect, the War Department demands abondonment of the objector's entire moral position against conscription in accepting, technically, the status of a soldier. A few have given in to the temptation of freedom at such a price, but the great majority continue steadfast in their opposition to compulsory military service, some even facing sentences of one to five years or more. Two men have 10-year sentences.

"The six men in other prisons are all working and have been working for months, yet they are not released because work under military authority is not now an issue in these prisons. They are held for other reasons not disclosed by the War Department."

List of Prisoners.

The union attaches to its bulletin a list of conscientious objectors who are still in military prisons in this country, and aserts the list is made up from records "based on reports from both the War Department and from the prisoners. In this list, the times of expiration of sentence given are with allowance for good conduct, one-third off, which is not now allowed to men refusing to work under military orders. Practically all the sentences, the union points out, were on charges of "disobeying orders." The list follows:

Case of H. W. Moore.

The case of Howard W. Moore of Cherry Valley, N. Y., stands out prominently. His position was that he declined to recognize an authority which had for its purpose the taking of human life. Moore is a Socialist but not a "Left Winger." Physicians have pronounced him physically and mentally normal, rating him in Class A, though the same experts reported they found the vast majority of so-called conscientious objectors subnormal mentally. In August, 1916., Moore saved a girl from drowning at Sound View, Conn., and on Nov. 8, 1918, was awarded a medal and $500 by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

Moore had just been sent to Leavenworth for 20 years after a trial by court martial at Fort Riley, and when his medal arrived was in solitary confinement after having, according to Col. Sedgewick Rice, Commandant, "scored more infractions of prison rules than any other man ever confined there." This, however, was due to the fact that the officers persisted in giving Moore military orders, knowing he would refuse them, and for every such refusal he was given a bad character mark and could have been tried by court martial on each refusal.

Norman Thomas of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, which has interested itself in Moore's case, wrote recently that, though some extremely radical objectors have been let out of prison, Moore, who is quite the reverse, is still held. He asserted also that Capt. Henry, medical officer at the military prison, recommended Moore for mercy as a result of Moore's voluntary assistance during the influenza epidemic at Fort Riley. He reported that in this epidemic Moore "worked to the point of exhaustion."

PROMOTER REFUSES TO TELL HIS METHODS

Inquiry Said to Have Only "Scratched Surface" of Ponzi Dealings.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 31.—The examination by Federal auditors of the books of Charels Ponzi, maker of millions through international postage exchange, has but "scratched the surface," according to Edwin L. Pride, the auditor in charge, tonight. The examination, it is expected, will not be completed before the end of next week.

Ponzi reiterated tonight that he had no apprehension as to the outcome of the audit.

"I shall not make public my methods of doing business," he added. "At least, for the present, I shall continue to maintain my secret. Some time I may tell how I did business, but it would be manifestly unfair to persons who have been associated with me to divulge the methods at present."

United States Attorney Gallagher said he hoped to establish beyond question whether Ponzi had made the multi-millions of profits which he has claimed, or has been paying returns of 50 per cent to one set of investors with money obtained from another. Also, the inquiry will be directed to learn whether it was by international reply coupons exchange exclusively, or in some other form, that such profits as may be shown were gained.

Refuses to Tell Methods.

Ponzi having paid without question or delay every claim made against him to date, without income from the public since he shut off investments by agreement with the authorities last Monday, the public having apparently taken for granted his ability to make good his promises, interest in official quarters and Wall street today turned to consideration of his methods. Ponzi proffered all the help of his office force and himself in the Federal audit and in the State inquiry to be started Monday so far as the investigations relate to determination of his assets and his liabilities. But he said he was not yet ready, and might never be, to reveal the business secret which has brought him wealth.

After a period of uncertainty, marked by a four-day run, Ponzi pointed to a group of less than 50 persons who sought payment this morning of his notes, and said the run was over.

Payments became virtually normal yesterday, he said. As soon as audits have been completed and payments made, he said, he planned to resume acceptance of investments, unless meantime he sold his business.

Money By Basketfull.

Ponzi has had 50,000 accounts active at one time, Miss Lucy Meli, his manager, said today. These have represented investments ranging from $10 to $40,000, she said, with the average somewhere between $1000 and $5000.

The accounts which the Federal investigators have been given for their audit, consist of individual cards, with names and addresses, the amount and date of the investment, and the date of maturity. Against these, which represent Ponzi's liabilities, bank books and statements of deposit will stand for his assets, Miss Meli said.

No ledgers were employed, no day books; money came in too fast for any accounts of that kind, according to Miss Meli. At times the money was dumped into baskets before being conveyed to the banks. In return, customers received notes for the amonut of the investment, plus 50 per cent payable in 90 days; but in almost every case they have been notified by mail that their notes would be paid off in full at the end end of 45 days.

THIRD PARTY CLOSES OFFICES

Committee of 48 Joins Farmer-Labor Organization in Pontiac Building.

The Committee of 48, the recently formed third party, yesterday dismantled its headquarters in the Victoria Building, as a result of its amalgamation with the Farmer-Labor party of Chicago. The headquarters of the combined parties is now in the Pontiac Building. R. A. Shannon, who has had charge of the headquarters here, said that practically no contributions had been received recently.

The Farmer-Labor party will do its campaigning in Missouri under another name, as Jefferson City officials have ruled that the name is an infringement of the Socialist-Labor party title, according to Sheridan Carlisle, manager of the People's Alliance. This ruling will keep the party from using the original name on the ballot.

Food Situation Grave in Italy.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 30.—Grave statements concerning Italy's food position were made in the Chamber today by Signor Soleri, the Food Commissioner. The harvest was disappointing, he reported, and despite requisitioning there would be only 12 instead of the 40 million quintals of wheat it had been hoped to obtain. To meet the needs of the population, the Commissioner explained, Italy would be required to purchase abroad about 30 million quintals.

MAN FEEDING COINS INTO MUSIC BOX SHOT

Laborer Who Ran From Restaurant Where Fruit Dealer Was Slain Held by Police.

Carmilia Bonvissuto, 28 years old, of 812 High street, a fruit dealer, was shot and killed at 1:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon as he was dropping nickels into the slot of an automatic piano in the restaurant of James Bruno, 810 High street.

Angelo Nicacarta, 32, of 1226 North Fourteenth street, a laborer, who was identified as having run from the restaurant immediately after Bonvissuto was shot, was arrested later in the alley in the rear of 711 North Eleventh street. He had no weapon, and refused to make a statement to the police.

Bruno informed the police that he was in the kitchen preparing a lunch for Bonvissuto when he heard two shots. He said he saw Nicacarta running away. Bonvissuto was shot through the left breast.

SPECTER OF PROHIBITION CASTS GLOOM IN JAMAICA

Sunny Land of Delectable Beverages Looks With Dread at Plan—Planter's Punch Great Favorite.

(Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.)

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 31.—Life in this colony is just as various and colorful as anywhere this year, even though its metropolis is not in hourly touch with other capitals by train, ship and stock market rumor. For example:

The Anti-Saloon League is trying to give the Jamaicans prohibition—and how they dread it!

And they have reason, as our neighbors in Martinique and Guadeloupe put it, for Jamaica is a land of delectable beverages of higher than half of one per cent alcoholic content, and, in addition, has derived revenue, ever since the days when John Columbus was governor here, from the sales of its rum abroad.

Consequently the revelation in the Kingston Gleaner that the Anti-Saloon League is working secretly to make everything bone dry behind the coast line has bloomed up the island a bit. But the danger does not yet appear imminent enough to dim the spirits of a normally happy, contented populace. It took a real calamity to accomplish that. The calamity arrived in the train of the high cost of living, and this is the shape it has taken:

The grade of rum which is the drink of about 750,000 of Jamaica's 900,000 inhabitants has gone to 5 shillings 3 pence a gallon—in American money at the current rate of exchange about $1.04. It requires no acquaintance with Jamaica to appreciate instantly the hardship this advance imposes. Stores "licensed to sell spirits" which heretofore sold a hooker for a penny a glass now demand tuppence, and exclusive establishments which asked tuppence have risen to thrippence. Small wonder that the more adventurous of the island are migrating to America or Cuba, where they can get wages commensurate with post-war prices.

Little Drunkenness.

To a New Yorker present rates for drinks seem low; nor are they prohibitive even to the poorly paid Jamaican laborer. It is worthy of note, therefore, that in view of dollar-a-gallon rum there is practically no drunkenness in the island. Close observation over a period of several days brought to view just one intoxicated person. He was an Englishman, a guest at one of the excellent hotels here, who apparently was making a business of drinking, perhaps apprehending that the Anti-Saloon League will succeed in slipping prohibition across.

The dollar-a-gallon rum, it should be remarked, is not the favorite tipple of the well-to-do classes. It is white rum, so-caller—new rum, with a sharp cutting edge, a powerful kick, and devoid of appeal to educated palates.

Rum is the national drink of Jamaica, and there are many superior brands, which are consumed locally in combination with other ingredients. One of these is planter's punch. The name of its inventor has been lost in the mists of antiquity. The drink was first referred to in existing records in 1687, and in no complimentary terms, from which it may be inferred that it has been materially improved since. This earliest allusion is in the journals of Hans Sloane, an eminent scientist and doctor of his day, who visited Jamaica in the year mentioned.

The colonists were few in number then, but they were spoken of by Hans as great drinkers of rum punch, which the worthy doctor calls the national drink.

The Jamaica Formula.

Everything that goes into planter's punch is native to Jamaica, including the ice, which was lacking when Hans visited the island. An ancient rhyme embodies the recipe for this soothing concoction as follows:

One of sour, two of sweet,
Three of strong and four of weak.

Which means, of course, one part of lime juice, two of sugar, three parts of rum and four of water. The grated nutmeg of Sloane's day is now omitted. Herbert G. de Lisser, the editor of the Kingston Gleaner building on the old rhyme, has improved it in the following verse:

One of lime, of sugar two,
Three of rum to make the brew,
Four of water also add,
Then the mixture is not bad.

His commendation is too moderate by far. The truth is that planter's punch stands in the front rank of mellifluous mixtures suited to the climate in which they are served. Few more agreeable pastimes are known to civilized man than sitting on the stone-flagged seaward porch of the Myrtle Bank Hotel with a great tropical moon visible across the harbor through the avenue of cocoanut palms leading them down to the sea wall and soft-voiced cafe au lait waiters swiftly responsive to a clap of the hands when your glass is empty. An orchestra of three negroes plays Atlantic City jazz (they are natives, and where they get the stuff they alone know), and the cool air sifts down from the blue mountains, which rise to 7500 feet behind the city, wiping out realization that it is summer and the tropics.

Beware of the Fourth.

Drink three of the punches of an evening, if you like; they cost you a shilling each, or say 22 cents; but beware of the fourth! Temperance is the best policy.

Back in New York one of the boys was enthusiastic over a concoction of rare delectability called "Buccaneer highball," to be obtained only in Jamaica. Its ingredients, as he recalled them, were rum and kola, the latter being a soft drink locally manufactured.

Without denying that there is such a combination, it may be said that more or less careful search failed to reveal any knowledge of it by the name employed. That nothing good should be overlooked, therefore, some kola rum and ice were obtained and mixed.

Tastes differ. Of all drinks repugnant to the writer's palate with which thus far it has been insulted, "Buccaneer highball" is easily preeminent. Only a thorough scrubbing with planter's punch sufficed to erase the stains.

A soft drink popular in spots throughout the island is called "barm beer." Possibly if used in quantity it might not prove altogether Volstead, but one is not likely to drink more than a quart of it at a sitting.

Barm beer appears to be a decoction of ginger root rendered effervescent with yeast. In seeking the origin of its name it is learned that "barm" is a word of Anglo-Saxon derivation meaning brewer's yeast. Hence "bar," "barmaid," etc.

Visitors to Jamaica encounter frequently survivals of old language forms. For example, the married woman is to the Jamaican not Mrs. Smith but Mistress Smith—and the word falls pleasantly on the ear.

Flour Sack Suits.

Kingston may never rival Paris as a style center, but it is able to offer New York a sensible suggestion as to summer clothing. Every male here—and, indeed, throughout the island—from the poorest pickanniny up to the Governor, wear flour sack suits, and the custom is a good one.

Flour sacking is a coarse weave cotton cloth of a weight and texture admirably adapted to tropical weather, and accordingly to New York in summer. So popular has the fabric become that the supply of bags themselves have become inadequate to the demand and the cloth is now being imported.

PUBLISHERS OPPOSE HIGHER EXPRESS ON PERIODICALS

File Brief With Interstate Commerce Body Against 40 Per Cent Increase Proposed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—In a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today, the National Publishers' Association of New York opposed the application of the American Railway Express Co. for an increase of 40 per cent in the rates on the transportation of periodicals.

The association asked that the application of the express company for a reclassification of periodicals be denied, and that any increase of express rates on magazines and periodicals be limited to not more than 25 or 30 per cent.

The express company has estimated that a 40 per cent increase will be necessary to include the expected wage award to employes by the Railroad Labor Board in Chicago.

Treaty With Bulgaria Ratified.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 31.—The Senate today ratified the peace treaty with Bulgaria. The Chamber of Deputies had already acted favorably on the treaty.

POLICE TO KEEP CLOSE WATCH AT POLLS AUG. 3

Chief Warns Captains to See That Election Is "Clean, Fair and Honest."

Chief of Police O'Brien in conference at headquarters this morning with the 14 captains, impressed on them the importance of strictly enforcing a stringent election order he promulgated in the department yesterday for guidance of the police on primary day, next Tuesday.

Arrangements for the adequate policing of the polls were gone over, one of the precautions taken being to suspend all recreation leave for the police on that day in order that the entire force may be on duty.

The captains were told that the order issued by the Chief meant just what it said and that any negligence would result in charges before the Police Board. The order calls for the elimination of gangsters and rowdyism at the polls; for constant police protection at each polling place; for two policemen on each patrol wagon answering a call; the elimination of any intimidation of voters, repeating and the like.

Honest Election Demanded.

The order is as follows:

"There will be a primary election held in St. Louis Tuesday, Aug. 3, 1920. Each of the polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. It will be your duty to see that they are adequately policed, that there is no disorder or lawlessness; that all laws pertaining to elections are rigidly, impartially and zealously enforced; that there is no intimidation of, nor interference with, voters; that no fraudulent votes are cast; that there is no tampering with ballots, stuffing of ballot boxes or other crime against suffrage; rowdyism, rushing the polls by gangsters and intimidation of any kind or character will not be tolerated. In brief, this office and the Board of Police Commissioners demand a clean, fair and honest election and you will be held to a strict accountability for the manner in which you execute this order in your district.

"The details of arranging for election are left with you. There must be one officer assigned to each polling place and at no time must a polling place be left without police protection.

"It will be necessary that the three platoons be on duty during the hours that the polls are open. The men who are not detailed at the polls will walk beats, and you will instruct them that they must make frequent trips to the polls, relieve the officers doing polling duty, while they are gone to vote and get their meals. At 8 o'clock p. m. these beat men shall be assigned by you to go to a polling place or places and collect the police reports for the press, which are to be delivered at the earliest possible moment to the city hall rotunda. The officers regularly detailed are to remain at the polls until the votes are counted and returns compiled. They must then accompany the judges of election with the ballot boxes to the office of the Election Board in the city hall. They will allow no stopping on the way or loitering in performing this duty.

To Look Out for Liquor.

"You will keep a suitable reserve at your station of from four to six men for any emergency that may arise, and if your wagon is called you will send two men with each call. If it is necessary that an officer detailed at the poll come to the station, one of your reserves must remain at the poll until his return.

"Police officers will be vigilant to see that no liquor is allowed to be brought into a polling place. It is also important that you call the strict attention of your officers to the necessity of rigidly enforcing the provision of the law which prohibits electioneering inside, or within 100 feet of a polling place, and that against the carrying of concealed weapons. You will further impress upon officers that they must at all times co-operate to the best of their ability with the judges and clerks of election.

"You will read this order at three consecutive roll calls and caution your command at the same time that any officer, irrespective of rank, who fails to fulfill his duty on election day will be sent before the Board of Police Commissioners under charges."

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP TO BE THEME IN MANY CHURCHES TODAY

Sermons Will End W. C. T. U. Campaign to Arouse Interest in Tuesday's Primary.

The campaign conducted by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, to stimulate a large participation in Tuesday's primary by church members who are voters, will end with services in a large number of churches today. "Christian Citizenship" will be the theme in the churches.

At the Delmar Avenue Baptist Church, Walter L. Hensley, former United States District Attorney, will be the speaker.

French Senate Approves Coal Deal.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 31.—The Senate today adopted the bill, approved by the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, after a frank address by Premier Millerand setting forth the urgent reasons for its adoption, authorizing the 200,000,000 franc monthly advances to Germany provided for in the Government's coal arrangement reached at the Spa conference. The vote was 221 to 81. The Chamber today repassed the amended budget, but with new amendments which will necessitate its repassage by the Senate.

ARMENIAN RELIEF REVIEWED BY HOOVER

In Resigning With Col. Haskell From Commission, He Tells What Americans Did.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Following the resignation of Col. William N. Haskell, U. S. A., as Allied High Commissioner to Armenia, effective Aug. 1, Herbert Hoover announced his withdrawal from the same commission today. The resignation was contained in a letter to the Secretary of State, made public by the American Relief Administration. The letter says:

"Under the direction of the American Relief Administration and including the period of the administration of the allied high commission, there was contributed from all sources for the aid of the Armenian people in this region 108,000 tons of food and supplies. This was in the form of governmental credits or private donations, the approximate status of which were as follows:

"Besides a small amount of private charity, of which we have no record, there was furnished on the part of the British Government in the form of freight credits, a total of $560,000.

"American Relief Administration covering allocation from the $100,000,000 relief appropriation, March, 1919, to date:

"Credits, $8,075,000; grain corporation credits, $4,725,000; American Red Cross donation, $2,100,000; Commonwealth Fund donations, $750,000; Near East Relief donations, $4,802,000; total from the United States, $20,452,000; grand total, $21,012,000.

Commissioner Appointed.

"On July 15, 1919, in order to meet the desperate need of the Armenian population in Transcaucasia and the Armenian Republic, at my suggestion and in accordance with the wishes of the President, Col. William N. Haskell was appointed high commissioner to Armenia, representing the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy. His commission was signed by M. Clemenceau as president of the peace conference.

"The authority centered in the High Commissioner as joint representative of the several allied powers gave him the powerful support which he required to overcome those racial and political antagonisms, the natural outgrowth of the birth of new states, which were threatening the total annihilation of the Armenian people.

"The work of this mission was also to ascertain and provide requirements up to the point when the succeeding crops would render general contributions of foodstuffs from overseas unnecessary, to take over and extend the charitable work of the Near East relief in caring for refugees, orphans and destitutes, to represent the American relief administration, to administer the charitabe relief from all other countries, to assist in re-establishing stable conditions in the republic of Armenia.

"Col. Haskell, supported by an efficient and devoted staff, has carried out his difficult dutes in an admirable manner. Flour was the most urgent food requirement of this region. The 41,000 tons contributed through the United States Grain Corporation and the 51,000 tons of the American Relief Administration have been delivered. The amount is sufficient to supply essential needs until the next harvest, which it is estimated will then carry the country for six to eight months. Refugees have been fed and clothed and to a considerable extent restored to useful occupations. Agriculture has been re-established. Forty hospitals and 17 orphanages have been opened or put in order with provisions for one year ahead. Over 50,000 children have been fed daily.

Hospitals Must Be Cared For.

"Aside from the great work of reconstruction, the repatriation of the many thousands of refugees and the benevolent activities which must for years be carried on by the Armenian Government, for the present the most appealing work for any outside relief organization must be the care of hospitals, orphanages, schools and a certain number of destitute.

"Col. Haskell has successfully performed the task for which he was appointed. The orphanages, hospitals and other charities in the Armenian republic and Transcaucasia have been turned over to the management of the Near East Relief. All the American military staff are to be withdrawn at once. He proposes, as of Aug. 1, when the few remaining relief measures of the Government program are completed, to present his resignation to the Council of Ambassadors in Paris.

"With Col. Haskell's resignation my intervention in the management of this branch of European relief will also come to an end.

"I respectfully suggest, Mr. Secretary, that the State Department notify the Council of Ambassadors in Paris of the resignation of Col. Haskell to be handed to them Aug. 1, 1920."

TAILOR HELD UP IN HIS SHOP

Joseph Goldstein Relieved of $41.50 and Locked in Cellar.

Joseph Goldstein, a tailor, was held up in his shop at 4160 Ashland avenue by two men at 11 o'clock last night. After taking $41.50 from him the robbers compelled him to go into the cellar and then locked the door. Goldstein pounded on the door and his dog, which was in the Goldstein flat at 4158A Ashland avenue, hearing the noise, barked furiously until John Whittaker, a downstairs neighbor, investigated and liberated Goldstein. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

SUMMER SCHOOL CLASS STIRRED BY HARDING CANDIDACY BOOST

Applause and Hisses Greet Political Talk by Lincoln Memorial University Chancellor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A sensation in the department of political science in the summer session of the College of the City of New York occurred tonight when Dr. John Wesley Hill, chancellor of the Lincoln Memorial University, who was invited by Prof. John F. Foster, in charge of the department of government and politics, commended the candidacy of Senator Harding for the presidency.

The class, composed of members of all political parties, was startled when Dr. Hill exclaimed: "If politics is the science of good government, the administration of this science in our country for the next four years depends upon the election of Senator Warren G. Harding to the presidency. Call this partisanship, if you will; I proclaim it Americanism. I believe in a league of nations, but not in a compact which threatens the Monroe Doctrine, our immigration policy, the peace and sanctity of the American home, the solidarity of the American republic and the authority of the American flag."

An excited auditor sprang to his feet and shouted: "Cox sure means the end of Harding," to which Dr. Hill replied: "You will find that when the votes are counted that while the slogan of your party today may be Coxsure, the epitaph of an overwhelming Democratic defeat will be a dead Cox in the pit."

Applause and hisses greeted this rejoinder of Hill.

When Babe Ruth Steps Into the Breach With a Homer, Would You Call it a Breach Clout?

Babe Ruth Gets 37th Homer But Burkemen Maul Yankee Hurlers for 13-8 Triumph

Victory Gives Browns Odd Game of Five-Ply Series and Puts Them Within Narrow Margin of Fourth Place—Sisler Hits Homer and 2 Singles, Scores 3 Runs and Drives In 3 More.

SOME 10,000 spectators, who turned out to witness the final tilt of the series between the Browns and Yankees at Sportsman's Park yesterday, were treated to one of the heftiest batting fests staged here in some days. When all details had been tabulated, the Burkemen were on the long end with 13 tallies against 8 for the aliens. There were 28 hits, ranging from safe bunts to four home runs, good for a total of 44 bases.

As a result of yesterday's conquest, the Browns won the series from the Gotham pennant seekers, 3—2, and evened up with the Yanks for the campaign, the count being 8-all. The victory further enabled the Browns to move within .005 of the fourth-place Nationals and a triumph today with a loss for Griffith will place the Ball entry in the first division. The defeat dropped the New Yorkers three full games behind the Cleveland Indians.

The fans saw George Herman "Babe" Ruth, the world's home-run champion, rap out his 37th circuit drive of the campaign. In fact, the patrons saw "Babe" do about everything possible in a ball game. He walked, struck out, hit a homer, his second in two days, and rapped into a double play. Ruth's four-bagger came in the eighth inning with one ball and no strikes. However, "it didn't mean anything," as the locals had a lead of eight runs.

Second Victory for Shocker.

Urban Shocker, who would rather defeat the New York team than eat, turned in his second victory of the series, and the Browns' ace right-hander pitched to Ruth every time he came to the plate.

In the first inning, Ruth worked the call to 3—2 and then walked, although Shocker protested Umpire Hildebrand's ruling. In the third, with 3—1, and Pratt on first, Ruth belted into a fast double play, started by Sisler. On this appearance, Ruth smashed the first one Shocker put across, over the right-field pavilion for a foul; in the fifth, with 2—2, the slugger fanned. Then his homer with a 1—0 call.

George Sisler, the Browns' leading batter, yesterday out-Ruthed the "Babe." Sisler smashed a homer, his third of the series, and drove out two singles. He scored three runs and drove in three others. His circuit drive in the fifth came with two on and was made off McGraw.

As a result of his clouting yesterday, Sisler gained the honors on the series from Ruth with an average of .400 against .357. Sisler also had the edge in slugging. Sisler made eight hits, one a triple, and three homers, in 20 tries, while Ruth made five out of 14, with one triple and two circuit wallops. Sisler scored five runs and Ruth nine. Sisler fanned once and did not draw a pass, while Ruth whiffed four times and coaxed seven bases on balls, only one of them being intentional. Each had a sacrifice hit. Ruth stole a base, while Sisler failed to pilfer.

In order to win, the Browns overcame a four-run lead gained by the Yankees in the very first inning, the heavy clubbing starting with the gong.

Meusel Hits Home Run.

Shocker started wildly and passed Peck, first up. Pipp went out, but Pratt rapped out his first of three successive safeties, and Peck tallied. Ruth walked and then Bob Meusel drove one into the right bleachers, scoring behind Pratt and Ruth. It was Meusel's third homer of the series and his second in two successive times up, as on Friday, in the ninth against Vangilder he drove out a homer.

Jimmy Burke's athletes came right back at the visitors. "Roaring Rip" Collins of Texas was pitching. Gerber was safe when Ruth muffed his fly, but died trying for second. Gedeon walked and Sisler singled. Then a "break" favored the Browns. Jacobson hit to Ward and Gedeon was nipped between third and home. Ward chucked to Ruel, who chased Gedeon back to second. Meanwhile Sisler had come over, but did not touch third. When Gedeon got back Sis hiked back for second and Ruel tossed to Pratt. Then Gedeon broke for the plate and arrived ahead of Pratt's return to Ruel.

That helped. Kenneth Williams followed with a drive past Bodie for three sacks, scoring Sisler and Jake. Ping, the Magnificent, made a desperate try for the catch, but missed. Smith's hit counted Williams with the tieing run.

Six Runs on Seven Hits.

That was all until the third, when the Browns again got busy. In this frame they made seven hits, and six of them were pops just over the infield. Sisler started it with a smash to right. Jacobson popped one to left, and Collins was through, Thormahlen coming in. Williams singled on the first pitched ball, Sisler scoring. Smith hit the next pitch to right for an ace and Jake tallied. Austin bunted safely and when Thormahlen threw wild, Williams scored. Severeid went out, but Shocker singled, counting Smith. Gerber's ace, against McGraw, filled the bases. Gedeon walked, forcing in Austin. Sisler went out, Pipp unassisted, and Shocker scored, when Ruel failed to tag him. Jake ended it by striking out.

After this the Browns rested until the fifth, when with two out Gerber and Gedeon singled and Sisler drove out his homer.

From the first until the eighth, Shocker held the Yankees to four hits. He fanned Ruth with two on in the fifth. In the eighth, Ruth hammered out his homer. In the ninth, one out, Hoffman singled and scored on O'Doul's double. Peck went out and Pipp drove into the right bleachers for the fourth homer of the game, scoring O'Doul ahead of him. Fewster filed out and the fans went home happy.

Athletics Call Here Today.

There were plenty of homers in the five games, 10 of them being hit for an average of two a game. Sisler and Meusel had three, Ruth two and Ward and Pipp each one. The series drew approximately 34,500 fans.

Today the Athletics will call for the first of a four-game series. Play at 3:15 o'clock. Allan Sothoron for the Browns and Bryan Harris for Mack are the probable flingers.

Scratch Safety Deprives Morton Of No-Hit Game

Thousands of Cleveland Fans Beg Scorer to Give Third Sacker an Error.

CLEVELAND, July 31.—Cleveland made it four straight from Boston today, winning 2 to 1. Cleveland bunched five hits in the second and third innings for two runs. Boston's only run was scored on a pass and steal by Vitt, Foster's infield out and a wild pitch.

Guy Morton of Cleveland all but pitched a no-hit game, the only hit off his delivery being a hard grounded that McInnis pounced off third Baseman Gardner in the second inning. Thousands of fans stood below the press box after the game and begged the scorers to change their decision and give Gardner an error.

SPORT SALAD by L. C. Davis

WHO'S WHO IN OHIO.

HE was bred in old Ohio, where the backwheat is in bloom;
It is rumored at the White House
he will soon engage a room.
He has served his State as Governor and gained a world of fame,
You can win a lot of money if you rightly guess his name.

He was bred in old Ohio, where the Presidents are made;
He is running like the dickens and he hopes to make the grade.
He's the owner of a paper and the editor of same;
You can win a pot of money if you
rightly guess his name.

He was bred in old Ohio, where every native son
Who isn't blind or crippled for President will run;
He is loved by everybody in the good 'old State of O.,
And if he makes the riffle we will say, "I told you so!"

WAKING UP.

Sport Salad—The attached clipping is from the Sunday Pictorial of London, England. It is possible that the English sporting reporters are falling into the use of the vernacular?—A Reader.

Our cricket reporters are bucking up again. In one account I saw the batsman described as the "willow wielder," the bowler as the "leather-projector," and the wicket-keeper as the "timber-watcher." This is the sort of thing that keeps life bright.

The baseball leaven seems to be working. Next thing they'll be hollering "take him out," and "good eye, old chap!"

WHY NOT?

Now that the yacht race is over why not put on an international snail race and give us a good thrill?

QUITE SO.

IT'S easy enough to be happy
When life is devoid of rough spots;
But the fellow worth while
Is the one who can smile
While viewing a race between yachts.

Fifteen knots is the maximum breeze for a cup yacht. Anything over 15 knots would probably result in a tie.

Babe Ruth is saving all the balls he hits for homers when he can get them. As the majority of them go over the fence, it doesn't look as though Babe would have enough baseballs on hand to bull the market next year.

Running for President is the latest outdoor sport in Ohio. Everybody's doing it.

TOO TRUE.

The man on the sand box says his idea of wasted endeavor is notifying a presidential candidate of his nomination. It's 100 to 1 he knew about it long before the guy who is breaking the news.

Jack Dempsey was seen to be sharpening a lead pencil at the conclusion of the Fulton-Wills fight. Can the Salt Lake slugger be getting ready to draw the color line?

LIFE'S LITTLE JOKES.

The pedestrian has the right of way.

TROLLEY LEAGUE TEAMS TO PLAY DOUBLE BILL

The East St. Louis followers of the Trolley League will be given an opportunity of witnessing a double bill, this afternoon, at Polo Park. The opening contest will be furnished by the Tri-Cities and the Ben Millers while the second frolic will be played by the East St. Louis Butchers and the Maroons of Collinsville.

Drida, the East St. Louis hurler, will oppose Mistel of the Maroons and, no doubt, this contest will resolve itself into a pitchers' battle, when they hook up. First game will be called promptly at 1:30 with Theodore Breitenstein, the former big league pitcher, officiating in both games.

At Belleville the Hustlers of Dupo will clash with the Belleville Bs. Driver, the Ba-new hurler, will go to the hill, while Jones, manager Schwartz's phenom, will oppose him. The Wiles-Chipmans and the Maxwells of Belleville will furnish the entertainment for the Dupo fans in the absence of the home club. Manager Ennis of the leaders will send Ebmeyer to the pitching box, while Latina, the Belleville boy, will work for the Maxwells.

Hagen Is Winner Over Jim Barnes In Golf Play-off

Detroit Star Wins Metropolitan Open Title With Score of 70 Against 74.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Walter Hagen of Detroit, the American open golf champion, slipped quietly and unostentatiously into his third Metropolitan open championship at the Greenwich Country Club today by disposing of Jim Barnes of St. Louis, quite according to popular anticipations, 70 to 74, over the 18-hole layout. It was the play-off of Friday's tie between this pair, at 292 strokes each for 72 holes, and as such, drew a mighty gallery, but the affair was hardly worthy of the effort.

From the first tense moment, Barnes was off—his game and many times the course also. His long work was pitifully inaccurate, and aside from occasional flashes such as come alike to the best and the worst of them, his weak putting was an absolute backfire to whatever chances he happened to have. He gave himself far too much to do and for the most part, was hardly equal to the constant demands against his resource and technique.

Hagen, on the contrary, was at his best. Seldom brilliant, he was perfection itself and accurate to a fault. He went out in a 36 to Barnes' 40, and even had the latter staggering under a six stroke handicap at the twelfth, an amazing 30 foot putt on the eleventh and another of 20 on the twelfth contributing toward that end.

Barnes Gets "Birdie" 3.

"Long Jim," however, still had a trifle in reserve, and after splitting the difference with the imperturbable Walter at the next two, won the fifteenth with a par 3 and the eighteenth with a 10-foot putt and a "birdie" 3.

The event marked Hagen's second ascendency over Barnes in as many tries in the Metropolitan championship, this pair, with Charles Hoffner of Philmont, finishing in a triangular tie at Garden City in 1913. Hagen stepped into his first title as an outcome of the playoff and again won the toga at North Shore last year by a spectacular finish, peculiarly similar to that which brought him up from the ruck to the championship this year.

The match served as a medium for a comparative study of the Barnes and Hagen finesse, a much discussed point that, to the average Metropolitan golf follower today, appears hardly worthy of debate.

Barnes played great golf all the way through the original tournament, with the exception of Friday morning's round, but when it came down to the utlimate issue, the final test or what you will, it was Hagen who came through. He was cool, composed, workmanlike; Barnes was as nervous as a temperamental prima donna. Hagen was always self-contained and the equal of any emergency; Barnes was often inept and uncertain.

Hagen Takes Early Lead.

Both played careful golf on the first hole and got par 4s, but Barnes bungled an approach on the second green and was forced to the extremity of two putts, while Hagen took a more or less indifferent three and the lead forthwith, an advantage that was equalized at the fourth, where Barnes got down in a "birdie" four with a long approach from nowhere in particular. Hagen meantime took three to get on and two to get off, the net result of which evened the match.

Then Barnes uncorked the first of his wild tee shots. He sliced horribly off the fifth far into the rough and took a five while Hagen was reaching the green with his second. He holed his second putt and again assumed a lead that was never relinquished thereafter.

The eighth saw Barnes at his weirdest. He sought the tall grass with his drive and with careful precision, sent his second into the jaws of a trap. Then when he did find the green with his third, his putting collapsed and three ineffectual stabs sent his total up to six as against Hagen's par four. Responsibility for the latter may be laid to a fine mashie hole high to the green, a distance of 150 yards.

Both ran into trouble on the eighth, Barnes hooking his drive off the fairway and Hagen needing a mere matter of three putts to get down. As a result, each took a five, but when Barnes took an extra putt on the ninth, Hagen made the turn four strokes to the good.

Barnes Gets "Birdie" on No. 10.

"Long Jim" partially redeemed himself at the tenth by holing a 6-footer for a "birdie" 2 against Hagen's par 3, the latter losing a "bird" by the width of a stray eyelash when his 15-foot putt rimmed the cup.

That was the beginning of the end, however. At the eleventh, Hagen hit the bulls-eye with a 30-footer for a "birdie" 3, while Barnes was wild and approached not well, but too cautiously. Net result, a five. Still another stroke came Hagen's way at the twelfth where he sank a 20-foot putt for a "birdie" 2 and Barnes' par 3 was wasted on the air.

They took conventional 4s on the thirteenth and par 5s on the "hound's leg," the long fourteenth, after which Barnes cut the lead by one stroke at the fifteenth when Hagen squandered three putts from the edge of the green, while Barnes lost a "birdie" 2 by a whisper and was down in a par 3.

Barnes again hooked his drive at the sixteenth and found a trap with his second, but saved further trouble and annoyance by lofting a great niblick dead for a four. It was all in vain, however, for Hagen, accurate and meticulous to the last, also took a four.

Again at the seventeenth Barnes failed to benefit, after Hagen's drive had discovered a trap, largely because Jim, after a screaming tee shot strong-armed an approach.

Hagen played carefully at the eighteenth and got a par 4 and Barnes' 10-footer for a 3, while a commendable effort, was absolutely without pertinence or value in the outcome.

Man o' War's Real Test to Come at Saratoga Meeting

World's Champion Three-Year-Old Race Horse Is Expected to Face Mature Opponents.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 31.—There is the keenest interest in the race meeting of the Saratoga Association, which opens here Monday and will continue through the month of August. Preparations have been made for the care and entertainment of the greatest throng of pleasure seekers this town has ever known.

Turf sharps are forever making comparisons between the champion of one year against that of another. Comparing Man o' War and Luke Blackburn, the 3-year-old sensation of 1880, is this season's diversion. The Luke Blackburn fanciers aver that stanch as Mr. Riddle's champion has shown himself—and they are ready to believe him the first class—they want to see him in action against the best of the older division, with the weight scale against him, before they will agree that the son of Fair Play is the greatest horse that this country has yet produced. They point to the fact that Blackburn ran 24 races as a 3-year-old, of which he won 21, fell in another (which he had at his mercy) and was beaten in his first start through lack of condition.

A glance at the records shows many points of similarity between the idol of the present-day turf world and the champion of 1880. Both colts utilized speed of the most dazzling quality to kill off their opponents and both were remarkable for their physical perfections. In only one of Man o' War's races this season has he failed to outstrip his competitors from the start. This was in the Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct, where the ground crumbled beneath his feet at the start.

Bad Start Hurt Man o' War.

John P. Grier broke on his toes and set such a terrific pace that the champion was not able to open his customary gap in his first furlong. Jockey Kummer said after the race, in talking with Mr. Riddle, that the effort at the start took quite a lot out of Man o' War.

The fact that Man o' War has broken records, and seems capable of continuing his onslaughts on Father Time has made little impression on these old timers, who say that tracks are many seconds faster today than they were when their champion was racing, and nothing short of an actual test against the best of the older horses will satisfy them.

Those who have been looking at Man o' War all season believe that the big chestnut is capable of any task that may be set for him, as soon as his owner and trainer care to make the trial.

In the opinion of Mr. Riddle, Man o' War is a better horse because of the hard race he had with John P. Grier.

"The shaking up he got in the Dwyer Stakes did our colt a lot of good," said Mr. Riddle to a friend a few days ago. "He was a different horse in every way the day after that contest. It tightened him up as he never had been before, and we are all looking for him to show great form at Saratoga."

"In a Class by Himself."

Sam Hildreth, who is a great admirer of Man o' War, expressed himself in similar fashion two days after the Dwyer Stakes. "That Man o' War is a wonder all right. I saw him out on the track this morning, and the boy had all he could do to stay on his back. He is in a class by himself," was the comment of the man who had trained as many high class horses as anyone in the United States.

As Man o' War is ready to fill all of his engagements here the public will get its first view of him in the Miller States, formerly the Kenney. This is a test at a mile and three-sixteenths and in it he will probably meet his former opponents, John P. Frier and Wildair from the Whitney string.

He is also nominated for the Champlain and Saranac handicaps, but he hardly will start in either and his second appearance will in all probability be made in the Travers Stakes, on Saturday, Apg. 21. The Huron, which is to be run on the Thursday following, is like those already named for 3-year-olds exclusively, and then will follow two races in which the public hope Mr. Riddle will send the big colt after the older horses.

The events in question are the Merchants and Citizens Handicap at one mile and three-sixteenths and the Saratoga Cup at one mile and three-quarters. It is in the former that he would receive his real test as the cup is at weight for age.

Will Mr. Riddle select Saratoga as the battleground for Man o' War or will be postpone it till later in the season?

MOTOR CYCLISTS WILL HOLD INTERNATIONAL ROAD RACE LABOR DAY

Entry blanks are out for the second annual international motorcycle road championship race at Marion, Ind., Labor day. The race will be held over the same course as last year, five miles of pike road, with two two-mile straightaways and two half-mile short stretches on each one. The distance will be 200 miles, the same as last year.

The 1919 race was won by Red Parkhurst at an average speed of 66.6 miles an hour. With the improved course this year, the average probably will be up in the 70s.

The course will be closed to the public on the day of the race under special orders from the county commissioners. Practice will be held for several hours each day for 10 days before the race.

Cardinal Errors and Impotent Hurling Give Dodgers Victory

Four St. Louis Pitchers Falter, Jacobs Being Principal Offender, Allowing Five Runs in Three Frames—Hornsby Continues Terrific Hitting, Getting Four Out of Four.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 31.—Brooklyn won the first game today of the series of four, from the St. Louis Cardinals 9 to 5. Four pitchers were used by the Cardinals and none were effective. The worst of the lot was Elmer Jacobs, who pitched the first three innings and yielded five runs, two of which Elmer forced home by passes in the third round. When the Cardinal pitchers perked up, their support made errors, and sometimes pitchers and support fell down together.

Little Jake May allowed two hits and no runs in two innings. He retired when Joe Schultz was thrown out for him in the fifth. Marvin Goodwin was sampled for two hits and a couple of runs were scored off him with the assistance of a wild throw by Stock after Marvin was hit on the bare hand by a single from Sherrod Smith and was forced to quit in the seventh. Lou North, the right-hander from Milwaukee, finished the game and was bumped for a couple of runs in the eighth.

Ed Pfeffer started for Brooklyn. He was practically knocked out by two singles and McHenry's home run in the sixth, which brought the score to 5 to 4, but was the official winning pitcher when Southpaw Sherrod Smith finished for him and held the Cardinals to one more run. Hornsby's three singles and a double in four times up were the feature for the 10,000 fans. Pete Kilduff also had a batting average of a thousand. In five times up he had a triple, a single, two passes and a sacrifice.

Jacobs Allows Five Runs.

Brooklyn scored off Jacobs in the first on Johnston's single, Griffith's single and Fournier's wild throw to Jacobs at first base on Wheat's grounder. Kilduff tripled in the second and scored on Elliott's single.

Johnston singled in the third and took second on Griffith's single. Wheat forced Griffith. Myers was purposely walked by Jacobs, filling the bases. Konetchy drew an unintentional pass, forcing home Johnston and Kilduff did the same, forcing home Wheat. Elliott's sacrifice fly sent home Myers with the third run. That was all for Jacobs.

May pitched the fourth and fifth without runs.

Goodwin allowed no runs in the sixth but had his troubles in the seventh. Konetchy singled in the seventh and took second on Janvrin's fumble. Kilduff sacrificed. Elliott drove to Lavan and Konetchy was caught going home, Elliott taking second. Smith nearly tore Goodwin's bare hand off with a single through the box, Elliott taking third. Goodwin retired and Lou North went to the box. On an attempted double steal Lew McCarty, who was catching his first full game for the Cardinals since being sold to them by the Giants, left S. Smith steal second and tried to catch Elliott off third. He succeeded, but Stock's return thrown to McCarty sailed over Lew's head into the Brooklyn dugout, letting Elliott and Smith both score. Olson walked and was forced by Johnston.

North Bumped for Two.

North fanned Neis in the ninth, but Wheat doubled and scored on Mayer's triple. Kilduff's single sent Myers home with the last Brooklyn runs.

Jack Smith played center for the Cards in the first six innings. Janvrin batted for him in the seventh and finished the game in left, McHenry going to center. Jack opened the third inning with a double off Pfeffer and scored on Fournier's out and Hornsby's second single.

Stock opened the sixth with a single to center, took second on a wild pitch by Pfeffer and scored on Hornsby's vicious single off Olson's shins. McHenry hit a fly over Myer's head in center for a clean home run, scoring Hornsby ahead of him. It was McHenry's third homer in three days.

Pfeffer showed he was weakening by passing Heathcote, but retired the side without more scoring, after which he was through.

Hornsby doubled off S. Smith in the eighth, took third on McHenry's out and scored on the sacrifice fly of Vernon Clemons, who batted for Heathcote.

Manion, 75, Leads City Golfers in Qualifying Play

Dick Bockenkamp Second With 77 in Competition Over Municipal Course.

KOSSMAN STARTS POORLY

Opens With 8-5-6, but Comes Back and Finishes With an 80 Score.

James Manion of the Midland Valley Country Club, present city golf champion, turned in low medal card for yesterday's 18-hole qualifying round of the fourth annual city championship tournament over the public course in Forest Park. Manion had a 39-36 for a 75 total.

His clubmate, Richard Bockenkamp, title-holder of the St. Louis District Golf Association, took runner-up honors with a 38-39-77. The only other player of the 60 starters under 80 was Ollie Bockenkamp, the Midland star's 17-year-old brother, who had a 79. The Bockenkamps were not the only brothers to enter the championship flight; as Walter and Arthur Kossman and Frank and John Pep qualified for the title competition.

This tournament is largely a Forest Park Golf Club affair, only seven members of other clubs engaging in the medal round. Midland Valley had three, Kirkwood Country Club two; and Normandie and Triple A, one each. It is believed that the entry of the current tourney was cut down from its usual size because of the large number of players who are out of the city, and the fact that many golfers had their fill of tournament competition with the two weeks of district and state play in June.

93 Score in Title Flight.

Although a score of 93 qualified for the title class, there were an unusually large number of low scores. Eighteen entrants turned in totals of 85 or less. This includes the three to get in the seventies, and seven others who tied for third honors with 80. A score of players were handicapped during the morning when they encountered a thunderstorm, followed by a shower which lasted over an hour. At the start of the play the greens had been very hard and fast, but the rain deadened them.

Furthermore, the public course greens are in miserable shape and there is no such thing as a sure putt, no matter how short it is. On a number of greens it is wise to use a mashie in approaching to the pin.

The three-some composed of Dick Bockenkamp, Jim Manion and Eddie Limberg was the gallery play of the day, about 50 devotees following these stars on their journey. Manion played brilliantly and but for one foot putt misses on No. 16 and 18 would have had a 73 total. His hole-by-hole count was as follows:

Out	5	4	3	4	5	4	5	4	5	39
In	4	4	3	6	3	3	5	3	5	36	75

Kossman Starts Badly.

Walter Kossman of Normandie also did some splendid shooting for his 80 total. Kossman started out badly with an 8—5—6, but undismayed came back the rest of the way in one over fours. His card is remarkable considering that it included three sixes and an eight.

The first round match play will be started tomorrow. The first three rounds will be at 18 holes, with double rounds for the semifinals and final.

Americans Weak in Only Ten of 27 Events on Olympic Program

United States Athletes Vulnerable at Distance Runs, Discus and Javelin and in Allround Contests, According to Prominent Track and Field Authority.

NEW YORK, July 31.

DANIEL J. FERRIS, a manager of athletic events and a good authority over them, says that of the 30 nations, including the United States to be represented by their best athletes in the Olympic games at Antwerp, next month, not one will be able to place on the field a team that can compare with the well-balanced aggregation that has been nominated by the American Olympic Committee to carry the Stars and Stripes.

There are but 10 events on the Olympic program in which America is not practically certain of winning. They are throwing the javelin, throwing the discus, hop, step and jump; 5000 and 10,000 meters run, cross-country run, decathlon, pentahlon; 110-meter high hurdle and marathon race. In the remaining 17 events the United States athletes look supreme.

Finns Strong on Javelin.

America cannot hope to place one, two or three in the javelin throwing event unless Milton Angier and Jim Lincoln, Uncle Sam's aces, can add at least 12 to 15 feet to their best records. America is far behind the athlets of Finland and Sweden in this particular event.

Angier, who has been showing steady improvement in throwing the barb, broke the American record in the tryouts at the Harvard Stadium, with a throw of 192 feet 10¼ inches. But this mark is just 23 feet 1 inch behind the world's record made by Johni Myyra of Finland, a short time ago. There are three other Finns available for this year's Olympics who have thrown the javelin over 200 feet.

America's discus throwers have not shown much improvement during the past eigt years. Armas Tiapale, a husky young athlete from Finland, casts his shadow over the United States stars, holding the Finnish record of 155 feet 6¼ inches.

He will be the man that Kenneth Bartlett and Gus Pope, America's mainstays in this event, will have to beat to win the Olympic championship. Both Bartlett and Pope have records of 145 feet with the discus and under the expert coaching of Messrs. Moakley, Robertson and Delaney may show enough improvement during the next four weeks to defeat Tiapale when they meet him in the stadium at Antwerp.

Landers Succeeds Ahearn.

The showing made by Dan Ahearn, of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago, who it was hoped would regain his old-time form in the hop, step and jump and show a performance in the tryouts at the Harvard stadium which would assure the United States a victory in this event at Antwerp, was simply another case where youth had to be served, and Sherman Landers, of the rival Chicago club, the Chicago A. A., was the winner over Ahearn, with a jump of 48 feet and a fraction of an inch. This mark is nearly three feet short of Ahearn's world record jump.

Finland has developed a man for this event who is expected to be returned the winner in the Olympic hop, step and jump championship. He is W. Tuulos, and early this spring he cleared over 50 feet, coming within a fraction of an inch of Ahearn's world record. Sweden's record holder in this event is F. Janson, and his best performane was made two years ago, when he cleared 48 feet 11 inches.

In the 5000 and 10,000 meter races we will do well if we take a third in each race. For the longer distance Sweden has E. Backman, who holds the Swedish record of 31 minutes 13 7-10 seconds for 10,000 meters and 24 minutes 44 3-5 seconds for five miles. Fred Faller of Boston, America's best bet in the 10,000-meter race, won the tryout in 32 minutes 15 seconds, over a full minute slower than the Swede's time. Backman has also run the shorter distance in faster time than was made by H. R. Brown, of the Boston A. A., winner of the 5000-meter race at the Harvard stadium, but he is better at the longer ditsance. Then there is E. Guillemot, of France, who has been making remarkably fast time in races from 3000 to 10,000 meters this year. His times in the two longer races are better than were made by America's best in the tryouts.

Thomson Is Favored.

In the decathlon and pentathlon events, both Norway and Sweden have men who have shown better performances in these events than any of the six men entered by the United States. The difference between them, however, is not great, and our all-round men may upset the dope in these events.

Earl Thomson, of Dartmouth College, who will compete for Canada in the Olympic games, is superior to any of the hurdlers selected for the United States team, and unless he meets with an accident, he will be returned the winner of the 110-meter high hurdle race. He is the only man in sight who is in a class with our best men—Harold Barron, Billy Yount, Walker Smith, Fred Murray, John Watt and C. Anderson.

The marathon race is a very uncertain event and nine times out of 10 some athlete least expected to win brings home the bacon. America will depend upon Frank Zana, Arthur Roth, Carl Winder, Chuck Waller, Joe Organ and Jack Weber to uphold America's past record in Olympic marathons. Only four of the above named will be allowed to compete in the marathon race, and Mike Ryan, the marathon coach, will recommend which four it will be after he has watched their work for the next four weeks.

Finland and Sweden have recalled all of the good Finnish and Swedish distance runners who have been competing in this country and making a good showing in long distance races during recent years. In addition to these, they will have the services of a number of youngsters who have showed up strong in recent distance running tests. Hannes Kolehmainen, a triple winner at the last Olympic games, is one of the prominent distance runners recalled by Finland. He won the marathon tryout held by the New York A. C. early in June, and will represent Finland in the Olympic marathon. C. W. Oitsham, of South Africa, who placed second in the Olympic marathon at Stockholm eight years ago, will be a competitor in the marathon again this year.

NAVY OLYMPIC ENTRIES TRAINING HARD ON SHIP; OARSMEN 'ROW' 15 MILES

ON BOARD U. S. S. FREDERICK, July 31.—After having sailed 1500 miles of the voyage to Antwerp, the navy athletes on this steamer bound for the Olympic games are all in fine shape. No sickness has developed and all the men have reported daily for practice.

Yesterday all the teams, including the wrestlers, the boxers, the fencers and the runners, as well as the members of the rowing crew, worked out on the quarter deck, which was transformed into a training "ground."

The crew pulled the equivalent of 15 miles on the rowing machine, developing fine form. The wrestlers had three good contests, while the fencers engaged in practice against their coach.

The track team is taking general exercise and practicing starts.

All the members of the Olympic party are eating at training tables, where splendid food is being served them. The men take exercise twice daily. Band concerts and motion picture exhibitions furnish entertainment on deck every night.

Greb Defeats Gibbons.

PITTSBURG, July 31.—Harry Greb was given the newspaper decision over Tom Gibbons in a 10-round bout here today. Seven rounds were given to Greb and one to Gibbons, while in the other two it was declared neither had an advantage.

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., July 31.—"Bob" Martin, heavyweight champion boxer of the American Expeditionary Forces, and Miss Elizabeth Bird of Point Pleasant were married here last night, it was announced today.

Toronto Varsity Oarsmen Win in Henley Feature

Accident Forces Detroit Club Eight to Retire in Canadian Regatta.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 31.—Bob Dibble, Canadian champion single sculler, won the senior quarter-mile event in the Royal Canadian Henley which concluded today. E. B. Butler, Argonaut Rowing Club, Toronto; F. L. Finlay, Don R. C.; Johnny Durnan, Argonaut R. C.; J. B. Salem, Lincoln Park R. C., Chicago, finished in the order named. Dibble flashed across the line two feet ahead of Butler.

The Detroit Rowing Club won the senior 140-pound eight event by about 10 lengths, the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto finished second, and the Don Rowing Club, also of Toronto, third. The Detroit maiden eight and the Toronto eight were entered, but withdrew.

The Argonaut Rowing Club, composed of the University of Toronto team, led their clubmates, Argonaut No. 1 team, across the line by two lengths in the senior eight race for the Hanlon Memorial trophy. The Lincoln Park Rowing Club of Chicago was a length and a half behind the second crew. An accident forced Detroit, last year's champion, to retire.

AMERICAN RIFLE TEAM HAS LEAD OVER RIVAL IN OLYMPIC MATCHES

BEVERLOO, Belgium, July 31.—The American marksmen using the American Army Rifle against a field of thirteen other teams, have, by the unofficial score, won both team and individual matches in the Olympic Classic Free-for-all Rifle Competition. The other teams used, for the most part, high-power hunting and target guns.

Although all the scores are not yet in, it appears that America leads in the team shoot by a large margin with a total score of 4,876. Norway scored 4,743; Switzerland, 4,699; Denmark, 4,640; Sweden, 4,591; France, 4,478; Italy, 4,369; Holland, 4,376; Greece, 3,927.

Followng are the American individual scores:

Fisher, 997; Osborn, 978; Spooner, 976; Lee, 965; Fenton, 960.

The Americans shot magnificently. Fisher is believed to have won the individual championship. His score, 997, so far as the returns show, is only aproached by that of Larsen, a Dane, whose count was 985. Osburn's 978 has not yet been beaten for third place, though Ticchi, an Italian, scored 977.

The official result will not be known until tomorrow.

The individual American scores were made up as follows: Fisher standing, 288; kneeling, 361; prone, 348; Total 997. Osburn, standing, 280; kneeling, 347; prone, 351; total 978. Spooner, standing, 306; kneeling, 328; prone, 342; total 976. Lee, standing, 277; kneeling, 347; prone, 341; total 965. Fenton, standing, 267; kneeling, 343 prone, 350; total 950.

The original rule provided for teams of six men but this was changed to five.

The break between the two Springfield members of the Missouri canference occurred in 1918 after a row over a football game. A four-year contract was signed today, covering football, basketball and track.

Dempsey to Meet Easy Foes First, Then Negro Rival

Champion Apparently Plans to Postpone Hardest Bout to the Last.

MISKE GETS BOUT SEPT. 6

Benton Harbor Promoter Will Pay $75,000 for 10-Round Labor Day Contest.

By John E. Wray.

Jack Dempsey is beating back toward the fighting efficiency by easy stages, to judge by the first match he has arranged and by those which are expected to follow. With the Billy Miske 10-round, no-decision affair at Benton Harbor, Labor day, as a starter, with Bill Brennan "in the hole" and Georges Carpentier "on deck," Dempsey's defense of his world's championship appears to be very much of a perfumed gavotte down the golden way that leads to a million dollar bank roll.

Billy Miske is a resuscitated hospital guest; Bill Brennan, Dempsey flattened in six rounds; and Georges Carpentier, well, Georges has been stepped on more frequently than a joy-rider's accelerator.

For these three matches, with possiply others sandwiched in between, Dempsey may confidently expect to salt away, after deducting Uncle Sam's bit and his manager's cut, not less than $200,000 cash.

The dark cloud that hangs heavy in offing probably will not be allowed to catch up with Dempsey until all sources of revenue have been exhausted. This is not because Dempsey fears Wills, but because he believes the most dangerous opponent should be left until the last. It might spill some of the easy money plans to take him on right away.

Dempsey Will Face Wills.

That he will meet Wills sooner or later is believed generally. As soon as the Harry Wills-Fred Fulton bout was over, Paddy Mullins, his manager, brought Wills over to the side of the ring, where he introduced Wills to the champion. They shook hands, and as Wills left the ring Jack Kearns said in answer to a direct question:

"Of course we will fight Wills. Dempsey will fight any man in the world. That goes. Dempsey is a public servant, and if the public wants him to fight Wills then he'll fight him. That's Dempsey's trade and nobody is barred!"

That's an open statement, without string, hems or haws, and a credit to the champion. The bout between the pair looms up as the greatest in sight, both from an earning standpoint and because Wills would have a fighting chance. The others think they have; but they will have to convince folks before they will break any attendance records with the champion.

Dempsey can hardly be blamed for playing his finances safe, although the sporting spirit is totally wanting in his anticipated action deferring the Wills bout in favor of the sure things.

Dempsey has not regained his popularity, as was shown by the greeting accorded him at Newark and in other instances where he has appeared in public. If he wanted to regain popular favor quickly, we know of no way in which he could accomplish it more quickly than by taking on Wills for his very next bout. That would convince the public that he had some pride in his title and was not a mere potboiler.

In meeting Billy Miske in a 10-round bout at Benton Harbor on Labor day, the champion, according to the announcement, is to receive a guarantee of $50,000, with a privilege of accepting a percentage of the receipts, while Miske has agreed on a flat guarantee of $25,000.

Dempsey Has Met Miske Twice.

The pair have met on two occasions, once in a 10-round bout at St. Paul and again in a 6-round whirl at Philadelphia. Miske claimed victory in both events, though he was outpunched and outpointed in the Quaker meeting.

Jack Dempsey was the saddest man in the Armory Monday night when Fulton took the boards for keeps. As Fred went down, Dempsey saw $10,000 flitting by for every second of the 10 counted over Fulton. No question but he would have earned that much for himself in a return bout with his supposedly dangerous rival.

Fulton's amazing collapse at a time when he seemed to be little hurt dumbfounded everyone. Tom O'Rourke most of all.

"I can't understand it," said he. "Fulton seemed so sure of whipping Wills I didn't give the negro a look-in. Well, I guess it's all the luck of the game, but I do claim that the punches that floored Fulton finally were deliberate fouls. He held with one hand and beat Fred to the floor with a succession of right-hand punches.

"It was the distinct understanding in this bout that neither man was to hit and hold or even indulge in clinches. The Governor asked that a capable man be appointed referee so that this matter of holding would not be abused. Of course it is all over now and too late to talk about it. Fulton is badly hurt. A doctor who knows him came to his room and found two of his ribs fractured. Fulton was having great diffiulty in breathing until the doctor bound up his side.

"Wills? A good man. I'll back him if he boxes Dempsey. I think he hits too hard and comes too fast for any man in the world. It is all right for Dempsey to be in there knocking over someone who is not hitting him back, but Wills will be doing that and for that reason I think he can beat Dempsey."

McNamara and Dowling Defeat Golfers Vardon and Ray, 6 Up

American Professionals Play Brilliantly, McNamara Twice Making "Birdie" Two on Pitch Shot—British Pros Today Will Oppose Hagen and Barnes in 36-Hole Match.

By Harry Vardon.

NEW YORK, July 31.

WE were beaten good and soundly today on the links of the Searsdale Golf and Country Club by Jack Dowling, who is the club's professional, and Tom McNamara, whom Edward Ray and I have seen play on many other occasions. Our score was 6 down and 5 to play for the 36 holes. But the number of strokes can tell much better what a really interesting match it was.

I should say that we did not so much deserve to lose the match as Dowling and McNamara deserved to win it. They played well together and individually.

Never have I seen Tom McNamara play better. His game was amazing and particularly did he shine in his iron play. Just to show how well he carried out this detail of the game I shall describe his play at the ninth hole, both in the morning and afternoon rounds. This hole is a short one and can be played easily with an iron from the tee. I think its length is about 125 yards. It requires a pitch shot. And Tom McNamara gave it everything it does require. From the tee he pitched to the green and a lie within four feet of the pin. He ran down his putt for a "birdie" 2.

In the afternoon he executed the same shot in the same way and with identical result. If anything his afternoon drive fell a bit nearer the pin. I confess I thought after the first that it was just another of those shots that are carried through the air and dropped to the earth, as the fates of golf will, but after the second one I was convinced that there is a deal of the personal element in McNamara's spectacular play.

Has Three Requisites.

I reflected somewhat on this point at intervals during the play of the last nine holes, and I came to the conclusion that he has just these requisites, carefulness, caution when it is necessary, courage at times when courage is needed, and just add to these a fair amount of ability, of which I think McNamara has his share and I am under the impression that you have a list of the materials of which good golfers are made.

Tom McNamara has been playing the game for a good number of years and has come close to real glory on one or two occasions. He has a great deal of first class golf in his system now and that is not to be overlooked.

Dowling showed good form. He played a sound game in all departments, and although he came through the morning round with a 77, which was high score, he perceptibly improved, and by afternoon he was in top form, finishing the second round with an under par score. He went out in the afternoon in 32 strokes.

The play of Ted Ray was good and I was not far off. Our score for the day was far from disgraceful, and would probably be enough to win many matches that we are to play yet.

Americans Have Improved.

Already we have lost more exhibition matches than we lost in all our tour in 1913. I take that as a verification of my early statement that American golf has already improved. We shall probably lose several more. Perhaps some one may say that I am taking it for granted that the Ray and Vardon of this year is as good a team as was the team of Ray and Vardon in 1913. I am, for I feel that we play fully as well as we did then. It may be that I have lost some of my effectiveness. But I am sure Ray has gained, and it is a certain thing that the great amount of play we have had together has not harmed us as a best ball pair.

Their best ball score in the morning was 67; ours was 69.

They won several holes because I missed easy putts as did Ray on one or two holes. Others they won by brilliant play as in the instances of the ninth hole in each round. The most spectacular shot of the day was a 30-yard hole-out from the fairway, which Ray ran down at the tenth hole in the first round.

Several times the statement I have made before, that a successful golfer must be able to get himself out of difficulties, was demonstrated in the match. Dowling sliced from the tee into a copse and his ball was in a very inconvenient position underneath a heavy foliaged bush. But that did not deter him, even though he had the additional task of getting the ball out of a thick patch of bent grass growing on rough ground. He used a niblick and recovered as easily as if he had been making an ordinary shot from the fairway. He made the hole in par.

Ray Recovers Brilliantly.

Again, on the eighth hole in the second round, Ted Ray saved it for us by a brilliant recovery after he had pitched over the green and into the rough behind a mount. It is the thing that counts—this ability to recover—for there are no golfers so good that they will not get into bad places.

We have been jumping around the country a bit and have not been getting all the rest that would be best for us. You know we have played pretty steadily ever since we got here. But Monday we are to have two days to do absolutely as we please, and I think I shall please to rest up. I don't know what Ted Ray is planning to do. He will probably want to see some of the sights of the town that he didn't have a look at seven years ago. But he is a young fellow, full of life and I suppose he can stand the pace and still be keen. I am enjoying things very well. Our schedule has been fine. We are looking for a hard match tomorrow. We play Walter Hagen and Jim Barnes 36 holes over the course of the Hollywood Golf Club.

Carpentier Fell Off in Weight, Over Here; Says He Will Return

NEW YORK, July 31.

AFTER looking Georges Carpentier over upon his return to France, the French boxing critics were of the opinion that Georges had lost considerable weight, while he was in this country.

Carpentier admitted that the trip had not improved his physical condition to any great extent, but he said that it was not the climate, but the strain of jumping from one point to another that told upon him.

Georges has received numerous offers for bouts in Europe, but evidently has not closed with any of them. He still insists that he means to return here to keep his engagement with Battling Levinsky.

STOCK COMPANY WILL HANDLE TENPIN EVENT

Forty local bowling fans have subscribed to the stock of the St. Louis Midwest Bowling Tournament Co., which will handle the Midwest annual event to be held in St. Louis, Nov. 19 to Dec. 6. Edmond Koeln and H. C. Menne, who were president and treasurer of the very successful A. B. C. tournament held at the Coliseum in 1911 and of the Midwest Co. here in 1914, are stock holders in the company being formed. All local bowling fans are invited to subscribe. The shares are $10 each.

Within the next two weeks, officers will be elected for the Tournament Co. and the drives on which the tournament games will be rolled selected. The Midwest officers and Executive Committee will visit St. Louis this month to confer with the Convention Bureau and the local tournament company in reference to making final arrangements for the event.

A new record for entries and the amount of prize money is expected. Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Kansas City and all the important bowling cities will be represented in the various events. Local bowlers are making arrangements to bowl in the Midwest in good numbers.

RAILWAYS IN IRELAND MAY CEASE OPERATION

Employes Likely to Quit Rather Than Submit to Edict of Lloyd George

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, July 31.—If Premier Lloyd George's threat to dismiss every man on the Irish railways unless they carry arms, munitions, soldiers, police or anything that the Government asks them to carry is enforced there will be no railway operating in Ireland next week, according to predictions.

A still worse calamity, from the Irish point of view, is that the Dublin Horse Show, an annual event in which every Irishman is deeply interested, will either have to be canceled or become a mere parody of the usual exhibition. It has already been learned that Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, will not attend the event.

An official and a civilian were killed and a soldier and a small boy were severely wounded Friday night when a military and police party was ambushed by 50 armed men near Bruree, County Limerick.

THURLES, County Tipperary, Ireland, July 31.—A soldier and a policeman were ambushed near Upper Church last evening, both receiving dangerous gunshot wounds.

LONDONDERRY, July 31.—A military patrol and civilians collided in the Nationalist area of this city last night. A fight ensued in which one civilian was wounded seriously and a woman was shot in the hand.

BELFAST, July 31.—Five soldiers and two policemen were wounded and a number of buildings were burned in disturbances reported here from various sections last night and today.

A military lorry carrying mail from Cork to Fermoy was attacked today. A bomb thrown from a hedge wounded five of the nine soldiers on the lorry. An airplane accompanying the lorry brought the news to Cork. The soldiers on the lorry were reported to have used a machine gun during the fight.

The Athlone courthouse and police barracks were burned, onlookers refusing to fight the fire.

A large creamery at Thurles was burned during the night and two policemen were wounded by explosions from bombs. The reports of the explosions were heard about the countryside, which was lighted by the burning of several homesteads.

GOV. CANTU TO MOBILIZE HIS FORCES AT ENZENADA

Foreigners There Offered Asylum in U. S. by American Immigration Inspector at Calexico, Cal.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICALI, July 31.—Designation by Gov. Esteban Cantu of Enzenada as the mobilization point for the men he is enlisting to combat the Mexican Federal troops reported to be approaching his territory and assurances given to foreigners in Lower California by W. A. Braizie, American immigration inspector at Calexico, of asylum in the United States in the event of fighting were the chief developments in the situation today.

Several hundred men of the Cantu army were reported on the way from Mexicali and Andrade, near Yuma, Ariz., to Enzenada by motor trucks. It was stated at Cantu headquarters that the Governor's forces were determined to make a stand at that point, which is said to be the destination of 2000 Federal soldiers reported to have left Manzanillo.

The Cantu forces concentrating at Enzenada are to be placed under the command of Col. Alvarez, it was announced.

CALEXICO, Cal., July 31.—Issuance of one-day permits to strangers to cross the Mexican boundary into Mexicali, Lower California, was stopped here today by American immigration officials, who said they feared tourists might make "indiscreet" remarks which would lead to embarrassing situations.

WOULD BAR DEMOCRATS' NAMES

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 31.—Walter Ramsay, Secretary of State, said today he would refuse to order placed on the ballot for the November election the names of a number of the Democratic candidates for Congress. He said he was acting under an opinion from Attorney-General Havner.

The opinion said that for candidates to have their names on the ballot they must have been in the primary and received 10 per cent of the vote cast for their party's candidate for Governor in 1918. In a number of Iowa districts candidates have been chosen, it was said, not having been voted for at the primary. It is these candidates which will be affected, unless the Democrats go into court.

Fifty additional boys left yesterday for River Cliff, the Y. M. C. A. camp near Bourbon, Mo., to spend two weeks or more among the foothills of the Ozarks. The camp will close on August 30. A large number of Carondelet boys were included in the group that joined the campers yesterday. Camp River Cliff consists of 60 acres of wooded hills, meadow land and cliffs. It borders the Meramec River for three-quarters of a mile.

WINNER ON RACES NOW POOR

"Father Cherry" of Paris, Who Made 100,000 Francs, Sells Newspapers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, July 31.—"Father Cherry" the newsman, who won 100,000 francs betting on French race traks is down on his luck and temporarily "broke." He lost all the liquid cash he kept by him for betting and has gone back to his old job of selling sporting newspapers on race tracks. But he can look forward to drawing a small income from the 60,000 francs he wisely invested in shares which he cannot dispose of.

Philosophically "Father Cherry" tramps the track; displaying his wares and indulging in small bets, hoping that soon his luck may return again and Dame Fortune smile on him once more.

PHILADELPHIA CARMEN OFFER $500,000 SAVINGS TO COMPANY

Propose to Turn Over Money Without Interest to President to Tide Him Over Financial Difficulty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—The 11,000 employes of the Philadelphia Rapid-Tranist Co. have offered their combined savings of more than $500,000 to Thomas E. Mitten, president of the company, to help him weather the financial storm caused by his break with E. T. Stotesbury. Further than that the workers offered their future savings, and at the present rate that would amount to $1,000,000 a year. And to make the offer better they asked Mitten to accept the money as a loan without interest.

Dr. A. A. Mitten, son of the company's president and secretary of the Co-Operative Welfare Association of the transit company, made the facts known yesterday.

The offer was made last Friday simultaneously with their offer to forego calling for their increase in wages. Stotesbury, Horatio C. Lloyd and C. W. Packard resigned from the directorate of the transit company when the board refused to vote affirmatively on their proposal to increase the fares to 7 cents.

At that time Mitten called together the 250 delegates who represent the 11,000 workers in all their conferences with the management. Mitten laid before the men the state of affairs as far as the company's financial condition was concerned. The men agreed that they would forego their increases until the money could be spared and then they would take it in a lump sum.

The delegates went back to the men and told them what had happened. Not satisfied with the action of their delegates as showing their confidence in the company, they voted to lend without interest to Mitten all the money they had saved in the Co-Operative Welfare Association savings fund and pledged their future savings for the same purpose until Mitten had come successfully through the crisis. Mitten replied to the men that he would not accept the money but thanked them for their confidence.

$8,410,652 GIVEN TO HARVARD IN A YEAR

President Lowell Says Institution Would Have Been Unable to Exist Without Aid.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 31.—Gifts to Harvard University during the last year totaled $8,410,652, and pledges for approximately $5,000,000 more to be paid within the next five years have been given, according to the annual report of President Lowell to the Alumni Association. The receipts are the greatest ever recorded for Harvard in any one year.

The largest single gift reported was $1,500,000 from the estate of Joseph R. de Lamar for Harvard Medical School. The General Education Board gave $250,000. Single gifts of $100,000 were received from Vincent Astor, Henry Oliver Underwood, the estate of Hervey E. Wetzel, George F. Baker Jr. of New York, and the class of 1895. Edwin F. Atkins, $92,395; G. L. Stone, $82,253; William Ziegler Jr., Felix M. Warburg, James J. Storrow, R. W. Goelet, Morton D. Hull and Hornblower & Weeks gave $50,000 each.

"The total amount actually paid in for the endowment fund, including the gifts mentioned, is $5,918,848.51," said President Lowell. "Other sums received for other purposes amount to $2,491,803.64, of which $380,095.90 was for immediate use. No such sum as this has ever been received by the University before. Without it we should not only have been unable to progress; we should have been unable to exist as we are now. With the amount it costs to live, our professors would have been unable to stay with us. We should have had to cut down the number very largely, as you can see when I tell you that an average increase of 50 per cent in the salaries our instructing staff were receiving two years ago would take the income of $12,000,000; and the increase that we have made in their salaries is not far from 50 per cent.

"The fact is that this is an enormous work. It has just added the new graduation school of education; a school for teachers in high schools, superintendents, and so forth, men and women who are graduates of colleges and who desire to fit themselves for secondary and other teaching. The endowment for that school already subscribed, largely as part of the endowment fund, is $2,000,000."

NEW SUBDIVISION PROMOTERS RUSH MARKETING PLANS

Activity Prompted by Renewed Demand for Sites for Homes and Numerous Industrial Plants.

CHRISTY ADDITION LOT SALES LARGE

Contracts Involving Several Big Holdings Said to Have Been Signed — Many Homes Reported Sold.

By Berry Moore.

A general awakening from the midsummer lull in aggressive real estate activities, is apparent, although the volume of transactions will necessarily be restricted for awhile, owing to the absence of agents and owners, as well as potential buyers, from the city on vacations.

The salient feature of the closing week of July was the renewed interest in sites for homes of all classes, as well as for industrial plants. As a result, plans are being rushed for a number of new subdivisions to be placed on the market with the least possible delay.

Although the tract was but recently placed on sale, it is understood that more than 100 lots of Christy's addition to Southampton have been disposed of. Twenty of the lots were bought as sites for homes by the Home and Housing Association, which is said to contemplate additional purchases in this addition.

According to agents, resales of lots in this tract at goodly profits have been recorded. While there have been an exceptional number of purchases for investment or speculation, most of the acquisitions have been for home sites. A factor in the movement at Christy Park is the low prices at which the lots are being offered, the object being the quick disposition of the plat.

7000 Front Feet in Addition.

There are approximately 7000 front feet, representing nearly 200 lots, in Christy's Addition, which is being laid out on an attractive scale under the auspices of the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co., with R. C. Buchanan as subdivision manager. This addition is situated on the south side of King's highway and is north of and adjoining Southampton, which was also developed and sold under the direction of the Mercantile Trust Co.

The lots in Christy's addition to Southampton are on Bancroft and Sutherland avenues, extending west from King's highway to Macklin avenue, two long blocks, in which the street improvements, sewers, etc., will set a high standard. The Susan Buder Public School, having a capacity of 1200 pupils, is at the corner of Landsdown, Macklin and Sutherland avenues, while a site in this addition at the corner of King's highway, Sutherland and Macklin avenues, has been acquired for the proposed St. Mary Magdalen church and school.

Increased sales of lots in Shaftsbury Heights, which is in the northwestern part of University City, are reported by the Balson Realty and Building Co. This tract is essentially a site for high-class homes, many of which have been built in the addition, which was laid out by the late W. L. Balson and which is being closed out by his son, Lewis Balson. The lots have a uniform frontage of 60 feet and the finest surface improvements. They are being offered at a comparatively low scale of prices, the purpose being to quickly market the property.

Several Important Deals Closed.

Contracts were signed during the week for several large holdings, but details are not available. The largest of these was executed by Cornet & Zeibig, the transaction aggregating perhaps $250,000, it being the second deal of this caliber effected in July by that firm. The details in these instances, however, will not be disclosed for a week or two, owing to absence from the city of several interested parties, according to Zeibig.

The past week was prolific in the sale of homes, those of low and medium-priced houses stacking up well with those of the higher ones, according to LeGrand Jones of Paul Jones & Co., who closed several deals for houses in the West End, negotiations for which have been pending for several weeks. According to Jones Chestnut street is teeming with prospective home buyers.

Fred G. Zeibig of Cornet & Zeibig, has sold his home at 27 Kingsbury place, to Samuel C. McCluny. Zeibig is only one of a number of real estate men who have recently taken advantage of prevailing prices for homes.

McNair Bakewell of the Edward L. Bakewell office, returned yesterday post-haste from his vacation on the Atlantic Coast, to close several big residence sales.

Harry E. Prettyman is scheduled to return to St. Louis this week from Detroit, where he has been doing missionary work with a view to landing several big industries for St. Louis. Telegrams from him to associates in St. Louis would indicate that his mission has not been without success. Prettyman came to St. Louis from Detroit about a year ago, as a subdivision promoter, at which he has been conspicuous in the sale of Beverly Hills and a number of tracts of that type adjacent to the General Motors plant at Natural Bridge road and King's highway.

Colonial Type Home in Kirkwood Which Has Changed Owners

DAN HYLAND, proprietor of the St. Louis & Peoria Stewart Products Service Stations, has purchased the Robert E. Collins home at the southwest corner of Argonne and Woodlawn avenues, Kirkwood. The building is of pure colonial type and the grounds comprise several acres. After making extensive changes and relandscaping the place, Hyland will occupy it as a home. The reported consideration was $30,000. Both parties to the transaction were represented by E. J. Burgard of Edward L. Bakewell's office.

NATURAL BRIDGE PLACE TO BE OPENED TODAY

Subdivision Offering by Heckmann & Co. Largely Absorbed Before Sale Plans Were Complete.

Natural Bridge place, on the Natural Bridge and Lucas and Hunt roads, is being opened today by William K. Heckmann & Co.

This subdivision promises to be one of the most attractive in this newly developed part of northwest St. Louis.

William L. Heckmann says that while this tract was being prepared for sale 60 per cent of the lots were sold, the indications being that the remainder will be disposed of within a comparatively short time.

Automobiles will be on hand both at Wellston and on Natural Bridge road to convey the crowd which is expected to visit this place.

Construction of several homes soon are to be started in this tract, together with streets, sewers and other surface improvements.

PRYOR STEPHENSON REALTY CO. HAS OFFICE AT 5016 DELMAR

The continued development of Delmar boulevard at King's highway as a business center is demonstrated by the selection of this location by the newly organized realty firm of Pryor Stephenson Realty Co., which has taken over the office business of the E. M. Wyler Real Estate Co., at 5016 Delmar boulevard. Wyler is planning a trip of six months in the West.

The Pryor-Stephenson Realty Co. has been organized by Charles B. Pryor of 1209 Clara avenue, and Roger A. Stephenson of 5705 Julian avenue. Stephenson has recently been connected with the realty firm of Kommers, Johnston & Johnston. He is an attorney.

This firm has obtained a contract from the Balson Realty and Building Co. for the sale of the Shaftesbury Heights subdivision. This subdivision, which is in University City, between Delmar boulevard and Olive Street road, is being built up with a good class of residences.

Aside from the subdivision business, Pryor & Stephenson plan to do a general real estate and insurance business.

WOODLAWN AVENUE HOME BOUGHT BY CHARLES MAULL

Charles Maull of 6315 Waterman avenue has purchased the home of Ingram Boyd on Woodlawn avenue. Maull recently sold his home in Parkview and expects to occupy the Boyd home about Sept. 1.

The Boyd home is one of the most attractive on Woodlawn avenue, has large, shady grounds, the architecture of the residence being of a semi-bungalow type. The consideration is reported to be $25,000. Both parties were represented by E. J. Burgard of Edward L. Bakewell's office.

J. J. YAWITZ BUYS ROYAL APARTMENTS

Six Family Building at 5598 Waterman Avenue Purchased for Price Reported About $50,000.

During the last week Joseph J. Yawitz, president of the National Chair Co., purchased, through the Mercantile Trust Co., a six-family apartment building at 5598 Waterman avenue, known as the Royal Apartments, from the estate of the late John J. Raleigh. Each apartment consists of seven rooms, sunroom and sleeping porch and is modern in every respect.

Yawitz intends erecting three additional garages on the rear of the lot and installing new bathrooms and making interior and exterior alterations on this property, after which he will occupy same as a home and investment.

The purchase price in this transaction was said to be close to $50,000. The Feinstein Real Estate Co. represented Yawitz in the purchase.

"THE MERCANTILIANS" ADOPT GOLD EMBLEM FOR MEMBERS

An attractive gold emblem has been adopted by "The Mercantilians," an organization composed of the officers and employes of the Mercantile Trust Co. of St. Louis. The emblem, in which the eagle, the official insignia of the Mercantile Trust Co., is prominent, is made into a handsome button for men and a pin for the women members of "The Mercantilians."

The idea of adopting a specific emblem for the executives and employes of the Mercantile Trust Co. was conceived by Festus J. Wade, president. He realized that such a button or pin would show individuality for his associates and employes and would more closely identify them with the Mercantile Trust Co. The unique design of the emblem has attracted attention.

SIXTH STREET SITE LEASED FOR CHINESE-AMERICAN RESTAURANT

A group of Chinese has acquired a 30-year lease on a 25-foot lot at 205-7 North Sixth street, as a site for a combination Chinese and American restaurant.

The lot is owned by the Dozier estate, which will receive an annual net rental of $7200. The negotiations were conducted by George Streiff of the Mercantile Trust Co., which is executor of the Dozier estate.

RECORD WEEK'S SALES REPORTED BY CLARA-BELLE COMPANY

The Clara-Belle Realty Co. effected a record number of sales last week, including 5942 Theodosia avenue, 3707-09 North Eleventh street, 1813 Good avenue and 2915 Keokuk street.

R. L. Klein, a lawyer formerly with the legal department of the Frisco Railway Co., is connected with the Clara-Belle Realty Co.

Store and Apartment Sold.

The Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. reports the sale of the store and apartment building at the southwest corner of Thirty-ninth and Lafayette avenue, to William [illegible] Maloney, president of the Maloney Engineering Co., who was represented by Hildenbrandt & Noble Real Estate Co.

Scheele Homestead Sold.

The Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. has effected a sale of the Scheele homestead at 3013 Meramec street, a colonial style residence of 10 rooms, covering an entire block on the north side of Meramec street from Minnesota avenue to Pennsylvania avenue. This is the most commanding site in that locality. The name of the purchaser has not been disclosed.

LACKEY TO RELINQUISH TRUST COMPANY POST

Lawyer-Banker Will Become Vice President of Oklahoma Oil Refinery.

William G. Lackey will shortly tender his resignation as senior vice president of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. to become vice president of the Marland Refining Co., which has its headquarters at Ponca City, Ok., where he will be stationed. According to his associates, his salary will be larger than that of any bank president at St. Louis.

Lackey has been connected with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. more than 20 years, starting as chief clerk and rising through various positions to his present office. He will continue as a member of the board of directors and Executive Committee of the trust company of which he has been a member since 1901.

Lackey, who is a lawyer by profession, was born at Stanford, Ky., while Mrs. Lackey is a native of Louisville, Ky., it being merely a coincidence that Breckenridge Jones, president of the trust company, is also a native of Kentucky.

Lackey has sold his home in Kirkwood to T. C. Brandle of the Traffic Truck Corporation, and expects to enter upon the duties of his post with Marland Refining Co. about Sept. 15.

MELETIO COMPANY ADDS TO ITS PLANT

Leases Broadway Building Adjoining Present Quarters, and Plans Alterations.

The Ben Altheimer & Bro. Realty Co. has effected a 20-year lease to the Meletio Sea Food Co. of the four-story fire proof building at 823 North Broadway. The east part of this building adjoins the west side of the present Meletio location at 414 Franklin avenue.

The lessee has let contracts for alterations and for cold storage plants throughout the building, the cost of which will reach from $60,000 to $75,000.

The plans contemplate a most modern plant.

The building is occupied by the Excelsior Fire Works Co. which is to vacate it Sept. 1, when the Meletio company will start working on the alterations and additions which are to be completed within 90 days. Meletio will depart today for the coast to close contracts for additional stocks of goods.

Martin Shaunessy is the owner of the building.

MANY INQUIRIES FOR PROJECTED BUNGALOWS IN OAKLAND PARK

Numerous inquiries are being received regarding the bungalows which are being planned for Oakland Park, just west of Webster Groves, according to William J. Holdoway of 19 North Eighth street, who acquired the property several weeks ago.

Their unusual style, comfortable arrangements and moderate price, together with the fact that high-class improvements, including school facilities, are already installed, make this tract a very desirable location for a suburban home, Holdoway says.

A unique building feature is found in the plans for several double bungalows on 100-foot lots, in which all of the rooms are to be on one floor, each family to have 50 feet of ground. The bungalows are under one roof with a division wall between. Their arrangement both as to interior and exterior is different from anything attempted in St. Louis County.

ELEVATOR COMPANY BUYS SITE FOR PLANT TO COST $350,000

H. J. Tieman of the Tieman Elevator Co. has purchased five acres on the Oak Hill branch of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, just east of King's highway. The company contemplates erecting warehouses and a grain elevator on the property in the near future, at a cost approximating $350,000.

The sale was reported by R. J. Dyas & Co. it being the fourth sale made by this firm in that section in the past four months.

FOR AN INVESTMENT
OVERLAND PARK

There were 1500 marriages in St. Louis last month.

That means 1500 new homes. Where are these people going to live?

What are we going to do to take care of them?

There is only one answer—we have got to build. "Oh," but you say, "building is out of the question. Everything that enters into the cost of a house nowadays is entirely too high."

Did you say everything? We disagree with you. There is one thing—the fundamental thing, the absolutely essential thing—that is low—lower than it will ever be again, and that is—LAND.

Midway between Webster Groves and Kirkwood, on the Manchester car line, with all improvements, in a beautiful neighborhood, and at a PRE-WAR PRICE.

We invite you to see and inspect OAKLAND PARK today.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE

Mr. & Mrs. B. R. Buyer

You should make the buying of your home as easy a task as possible and not take a wild goose chase in the hot weather to see something that you wouldn't have as a gift. You can find at our office the largest list of suburban homes for sale and see a picture of the house you want to look at, see how near you would be to street car, station, school and church. See which houses have hardwood floors, tile baths, hot-water heat and garages and the size of the lot. After you have chosen from our list the place that you want to look at let one of us take you to see it in one of our machines, we have three for this purpose. You can choose from our list of houses ranging in price from $1000 to $55,000. Here is a sample: You can get in the 400 block on the north side of Webster Park, a 7-room house with hardwood floors throughout, hot-water heat, white woodwork, brick fireplace, double garage, fine shade trees, bearing fruit, 100 feet front. The owner will carry deferred payment at 6 per cent. Think of it, the same rate of interest when rents have doubled. Rent the house to yourself at the rental you would have to pay for a similar house and see what you would be making. You owe it to yourself to live in a place like Webster Groves or Kirkwood where the nights are cool in the summer and where the air is clean in the winter. There is a seat to be had when you get on the street car and you are out here in 30 minutes on the train. Combine pleasure with work. Motor in, it's like a Sunday drive every day in the week. Meet people you like; have your boy or girl go with company you know.

It's great. Come on out. We are open six days in the week from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Set a day aside and phone us you will be out. It will be the best thing you ever did.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

MRS. B.—We do not have the recipe for proprietary drinks.

H. A. J.—The University of New Mexico, located at Albuquerque, has an agricultural experiment station.

MRS. PERRY.—You might consult the wholesale drug houses concerning the wild bella donna berries, and they may buy them.

ME OF C.—If you will consult the city or telephone directory you will find the addresses you desire.

GRANITE CITY.—A man earning $45 a week should certainly give more than $15 a week to support his wife and three children. If he does not do so voluntarily, he can be forced to give more.

LEWIS-MAC.—The Pearl Bryan murder occurred Feb. 1, 1896, at Newport, Ky., and Jackson and Walling, the murderers, were executed on March 20, 1897. There was considerable controversy at the time as to the exact date and place of the murder, ranging from Jan. 29 to Feb. 1, and from the Dental College in Cincinnati to Fort Thomas the Newport, Ky. However, the date on her gravestone is Feb. 1, and the inscription shows that she was "murdered at Fort Thomas, Ky."

MRS. ANDREWS.—The following is a recipe for chocolate pudding: ¼ cup butter; 1 cup sugar; yolks of 2 eggs; ½ cup milk, 1⅜ cups flour; 3 teaspoons baking powder; whites of 2 eggs; 1 1-3 squares unsweetened chocolate; ⅛ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Cream the butter, and add ½ the sugar gradually. Beat the yolks of eggs until they are thick and lemon-colored, and add, gradually, the remaining sugar. Combine the mixtures, and add milk alternately with flour mixed and sifted with the baking powder and salt; then add the whites of eggs beaten until stiff, melted chocolate, and vanilla. Bake in an angel-cake pan, remove from pan, cool, fill the center with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, and pour around. Chocolate sauce may be made as follows: Boil 1 cup of sugar, ½ cup water and a few grains of cream-of-tartar until of the consistency of a thin syrup. Melt 1½ squares of chocolate and pour on gradually the hot syrup. Cool slightly, and flavor with ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

I THANK YOU.—The following is the poem, "The House by the Side of the Road," by Sam Walter Foss:

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn
In the place of their self-content;
There are souls like stars, that dwell apart,
In a fellowless firmament;
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
Where highways never ran—
But let me live by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.
Let me live in a house by the side
of the road
Where the race of men go by—
The men who are good and the men who are bad
As good and as bad as I.
I would not sit in the scorner's seat
Or hurl the cynic's ban—
Let me live in a house by the side
of the road
And be a friend to man.
I see from my house by the side of the road,
By the side of the highway of life,
The men who press with the ardor of hope,
The men who are faint with the strife,
But I turn not away from their smiles nor their tears,
Both parts of an infinite plan—
Let me live in a house by the side
of the road
And be a friend to man.
I know there are brook-gladdened
meadows ahead,
And mountains of wearisome height;
That the road passes on through the long afternoon
And stretches away to the night.
And still I rejoice when the travelers rejoice
And weep with the strangers that moan,
Nor live in my house by the side
of the road
Like a man who dwells alone.
Let me live in my house by the side
of the road,
It's here the race of men go by—
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Wise, foolish—so am I.
Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat,
Or hurl the cynic's ban?
Let me live in my house by the side
of the road

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

DAVID T.—We do not give the states in which first cousins are allowed to marry, as it would be aiding parties to evade the laws of this State.

W. G. MISS.—If you will write to the Secretary of State, Pierre, S. D., you can probably get the information in regard to selling produce from railway cars.

D. B. McCARTY.—It depends on the agreement and terms on which he was reinstated, whether or not he can collect back pay. Unless he was promised the back pay, he cannot claim it.

O. F. C.—It is illegal to buy or knowingly have in your possession whisky that has been illicitly distilled. The penalties for distilling liquor in violation of the Volstead Act and the revenue acts are numerous.

HELEN.—A common law wife is entitled to the allotment of money which a soldier receives. For a common law marriage, you do not have to live together any definite period of time; all that is necessary is an actual, mutual agreement followed by living together as man and wife.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

B. C.—In a case of bed wetting the trouble is in the bladder, not in the kidney. Of course, this does not mean the kidney may not also be abnormal, as the two might exist conjointly. It is very unlikely that the ovarian trouble would cause either that condition or the swelling in the feet. We would advise that the heart and liver be also considered.

MRS. A. B.—Many good physicians use "twilight sleep" and are satisfied with it. It has its dangers and disadvantages and we do not think its advantages worth its use. Baking soda is harmless in reasonable doses if not taken over too great a length of time. After a while it aggravates the acidity it is taken to correct.

READER.—The eggs of the intestinal worms are never so large as the size mentioned. The suspected substance may be the mucous membrane of the intestine which is often passed in various shapes, and which in this instance may have taken this form. The disease in which this most often occurs, mucous colitis, would also produce the other symptoms mentioned. Your stools should be examined by a bacteriologist.

BIG legitimate earnings for few wide-awake salesmen. There are hundreds of splendid, aggressive salesmen in St. Louis making less than $200 a month. These same men could make $100 to $200 a week if they were in the right business. The modern subdivision business offers this opportunity. It is a wonderful field for advancement, a permanent money-making business—a business that will get better each month because St. Louis will grow faster than any of the big American cities. See us. Talk to our salesmen who are making $100 and more each week. Investigate; really learn what you can make. Don't be tied down by tradition; don't stay in a rut. If you are going to get ahead you must earn big money, and to earn big money you must be in the right business. You know salesmen having far less ability than you who are making two, three and four times as much as you are making. Why? They are in the right business. Ask for the sales manager or see Mr. Davis. BIG LEGITIMATE EARNINGS FOR FEW WIDE AWAKE SALESMAN

There are hundreds of splendid, aggressive salesmen in St. Louis making less than $200 a month. These same men could make $100 to $200 a week if they were in the right business. The modern subdivision business offers this opportunity. It is a wonderful field for advancement, a permanent money-making business—a business that will get better each month because St. Louis will grow faster than any of the big American cities. See us. Talk to our salesmen who are making $100 and more each week. Investigate—really learn what you can make. Don't be tied down by tradition, because if we are going to get ahead we must earn big money, and to earn big money we must be in the right business. You know salesmen having far less ability than you, who are making two, three and four times as much as you are making. Why? They are in the right business.

Ask for the sales manager or see Mr. Davis.

"Tire bargains" sound good—perhaps you think you're lucky if you get one—but the wear and tear of the road tell a different story. Buy Goodyear tires. For a little bit more than you'd pay for a "bargain" you'll get a real tire built for long usage—and what's more, the benefit of our service of regular inspection, which makes your tires last longer by detecting cause of unnecessary wear. That's something, remember, you don't get with a cheap tire.

Darde Astounds Critics at Paris Salon

The French "Shepherd Boy" sculptor whose works are the newest sensation of the art world

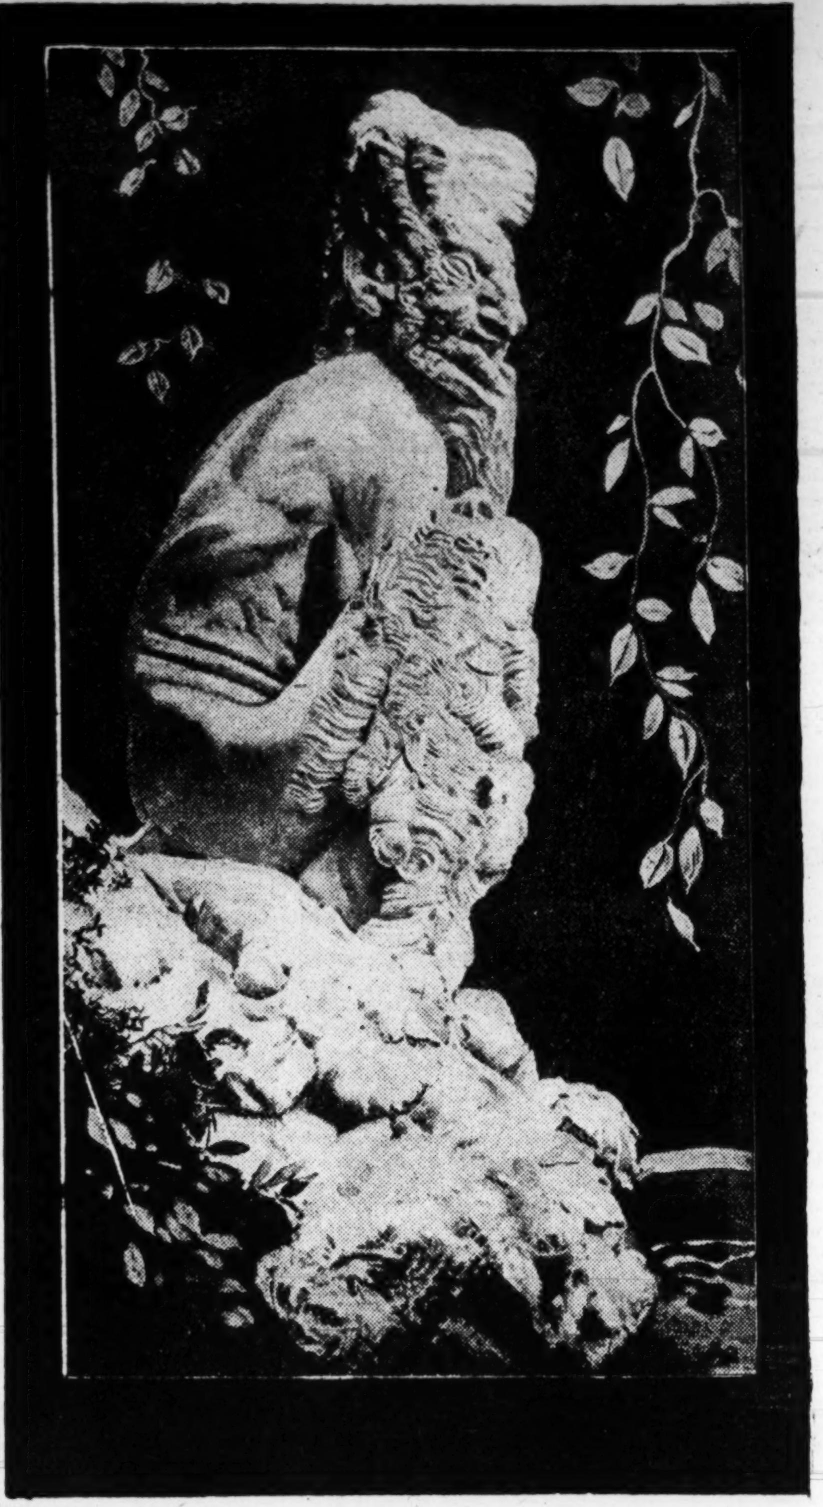
By ARTHUR BENINGTON.

ONCE or twice in a century the world is startled by the apparition of a new artist, a hitherto unknown man who produces something so different, so unconventional, so novel, so shocking to all the canons of art, that there are no criteria on which to judge him, and the world can do nothing but admire and gasp.

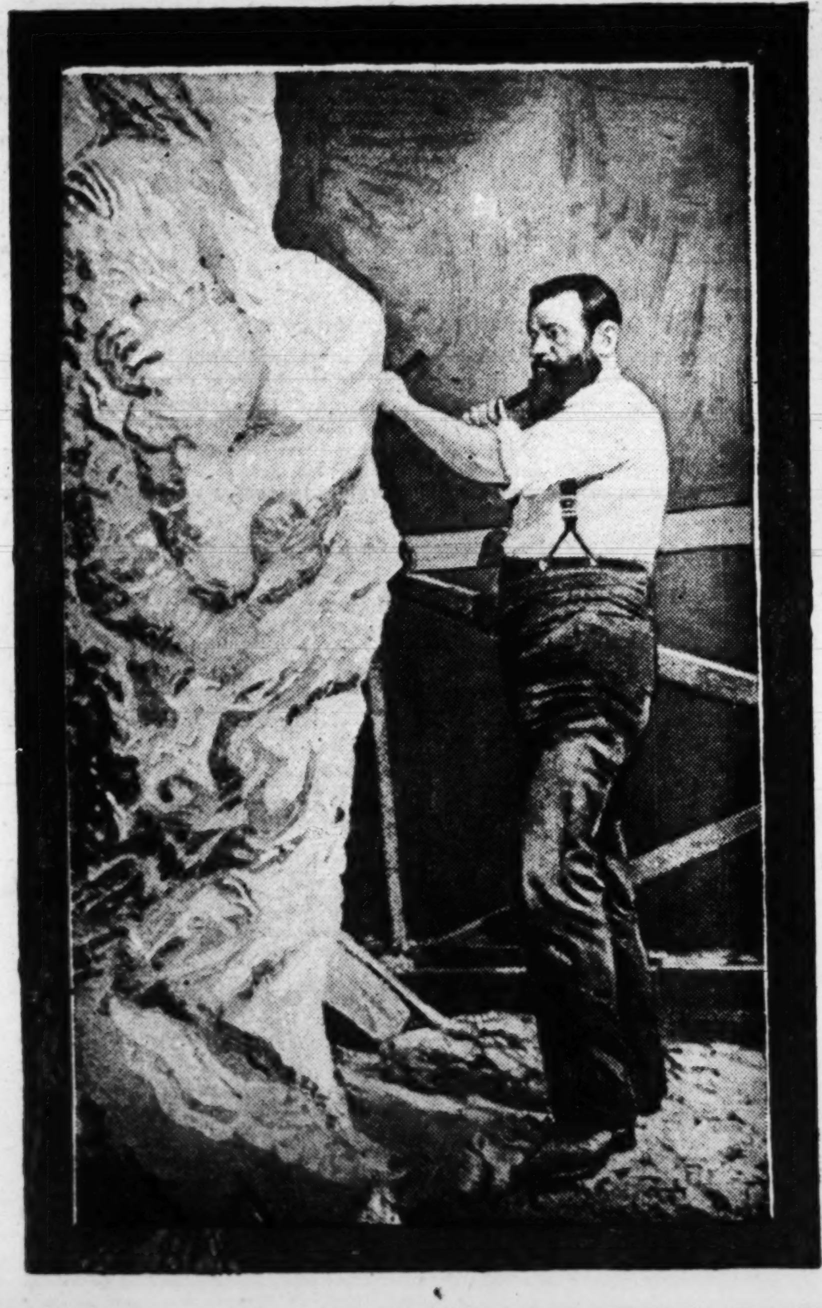
In the great gathering of sculpture at the Paris Salon this year, among the class groups, the beautiful nudes, the "Futurist" freaks to which esthetic eyes are accustomed, there are two things so stupendously different that they draw and hold attention from everything else. One is a huge faun carved in stone; the other a head of Medusa in marble.

"Who is the artist?" everyone asked on the opening day. The catalogue gave the name, Paul Darde. Darde? Who is he? No one had heard of him. Yet here were two statues so overpoweringly great in conception and execution, and yet so different in both, that even the critics of the Paris press were at a loss to know how to speak of them.

The Faun is huge, twice the size of a man. The critic of L'Illustration writes that it is "carved out of a fine rock, of a tint so warm that it seems animated by the hot blood of primitive beings scarce liberated from matter." He adds that the artist is a deep student of nature and has soaked himself in the works of Lamarck. Inspired by that great naturalist, "he has set himself to create a rational, possible, viable faun, with a narrow, supple back, the spine of a quadruped that leaps when it would run on the traditional goat's feet and on the enormous hands fitted to the long, apelike arms. And this back, these knotty arms, these hands furrowed by tendons and veins, are amazing bits. The expression of the face, framed in its long pointed ears, like those of a wildcat or panther or those of the jackal-headed Anubis, is a marvel of irony, of naive and rather bestial joy, of astonishment before nature, half perceived, before life divined, confusedly understood. The hair, crinkly and wavy, recalls the curly heads or beards of certain saints on the portals of our cathedrals. The whole is extraordinarily pleasing and powerful. It is very beautiful and very great sculpture, solid as Michelangelo exacted, solid enough to roll down a mountain without breaking."



Darde's "Faun," one of his two Salon exhibits, which critics have acclaimed as the work of "a new Rodin."



Paul Darde at work. His method is to attack the block of marble directly, generally with a pickaxe.

A picture of M. Darde's weird and thrilling masterpiece, the snake-enmeshed head of a woman called "Douleur Eternelle," appeared on the front cover of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine for July 18.

And the artist, whose first exhibit is the sensation of the Salon, who is he? Paul Darde is the son of a shepherd in the Cevennes, and he as a boy tended sheep on the hills. While he did so he carved animals in the fine stone of the country. After a while he tried his hand at etching on zinc plates, using as a burin his mother's long knitting needles, sharpened on a grindstone. He subscribed to an excellent art magazine, read the Bible, Shakspeare and Dante. One day a teacher of art chanced to see some of his work. He was so struck by its originality and power that he wrote to Armand Dayot, editor of l'Art et les Artistes, and called his attention to the young subscriber. Dayot is famed for the zeal with which he encourages young artists, and he helped the youth to launch himself. Darde is described today as being "a good giant with a flowing beard, magnificent, direct eyes full of fire, but very tender, a Socratic nose, the shoulders of an athlete and arms and hands fit to crush granite; a splendid, modest man, rather outspoken, thank God! and one whom one feels to be very sane and preserved by limpid good sense against the folly of pride."

His method of working is rare today. He seldom makes a model in clay or plaster or wax, but after sketching roughly his design on paper, he attacks the marble or rock directly, generally with a pickax—the heavy, clumsy pickax of the stonebreaker. He is now at work upon a Laocoon group, in which he will have full scope to reveal again his marvelous knowledge of snakes and their writhing strength, and his amazing skill in hewing their semblance out of stone.

Baffling Mystery of Missing Canadian Millionaire

Ambrose Small, owner of many theaters, disappeared in Toronto street and world wide search has failed to reveal what happened to him — His secretary, and $150,000 worth of bonds, also missing, but that merely heightens the puzzle—Every plausible clew or explanation found worthless -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

By EDWARD H. SMITH.

ON THE bitter, crystalline winter evening of Dec. 2 last, Ambrose Small, the lean, saturnine theater magnate of Toronto, stepped up to a newsboy under the lamps of Adelaide street, just outside his Grand Theater, got an evening paper—and vanished.

Three weeks later Jack Doughty, the genial, bulky private secretary of the Canadian millionaire, followed his employer into mysteriousness. And with one or the other went $150,000 worth of Dominion Government bonds.

Eight months have passed; search has been made in all the parts and places of the earth. The two men are still missing, lost in some unguessed part of the living or the dead.

Here is certainly one of the most provoking enigmas of the time. Lowly men, beaten men, men stricken with the strain and the bafflement of life, disappear every day and fade out into the dim background of far places and strange lands. Some go down to sleep and death, and some up to new beginnings and victorious life in alien latitudes. But such men are in the shadows of their stages when they disappear. In this case, to the contrary, is a man worth five millions of money, at the crest wave of his career, triumphant, exultant, occupying a great place in his field, a magnate, a master, an imperious lordlet, on whom was trained an effulgence of interest. In the proportion in which Canada is less than this republic, it is as if a Shubert or an Erlanger had suddenly walked out into Broadway one brisk evening at lamp-lighting time and been seen no more.

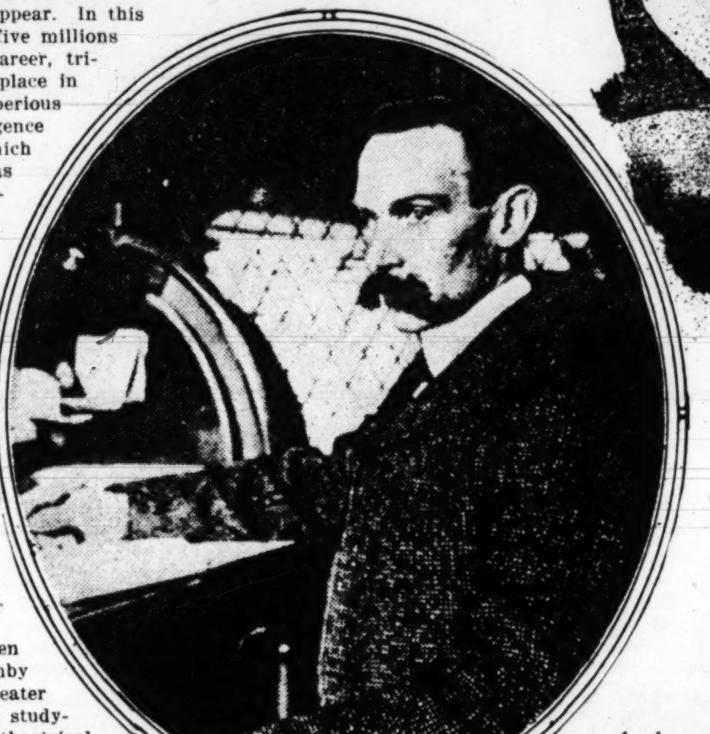
Ambrose Joseph Small was the owner of strings of theaters in Canada. He had come up from ticket boy to a great place in his country's theatrical life through 35 years of sharp struggle and consecutive victories. Everyone, as the phrase goes, knew him. His name and repute were in the minds of thousands of men and women and he was a familiar figure in scores of towns and cities. But he is gone into an impenetrableness, a shadowland. And with him, or after him, have gone the secretary and the bonds. Let us try to discover.

Since the day 35 years ago, when Sir Henry Irving saw the lean Amby Small selling tickets at a Canadian theater and shrewdly advised the boy to quit studying law and turn his talents to the theatrical business, this vulpine, hard, domineering Irishman had come slowly up the line. One theater after another went up for him or was bought by him. One financial tentacle after another reached out and gathered in this interest or that. At 55 he was a dominant figure. The very day he disappeared Small had closed a deal whereby he sold out to the Trans-Canada Theaters, Ltd., all his theaters, taking two millions in cash and an interest in the company as payment. That selfsame afternoon the initial installment of $1,000,000 had been handed over and the check sent to Small's bank. Much more money in bonds, much other property, belonged to this man. Five millions is considered a conservative rating for him.

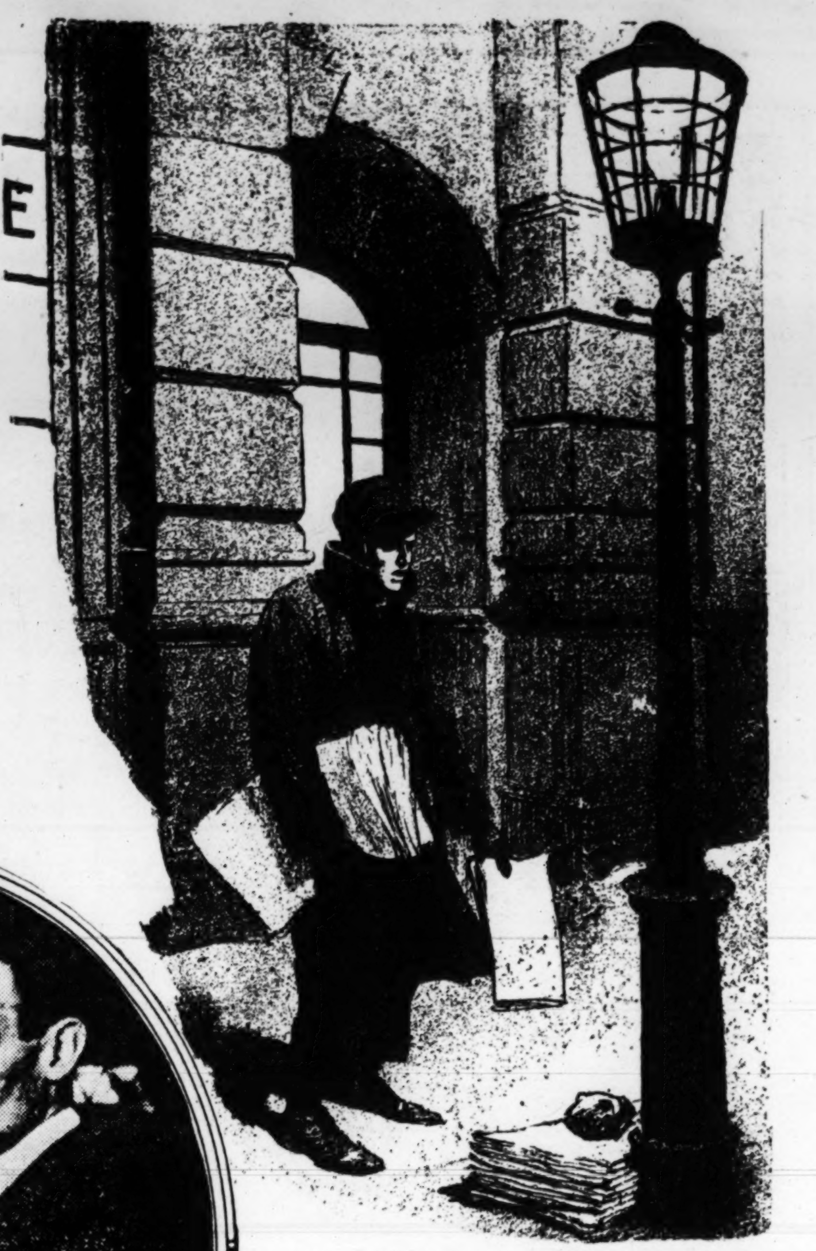
In other words, he was highly wealthy and had just closed a deal which probably meant his retirement from business activity. He had crowned his life, as money makers regard life. He was an achieved success comparatively young. He had done his work and closed his career. And Amby Small was exultant and full of deep joy about it all. He was as sunny and happy as a man of his type ever is. He was at peace with himself.

On the afternoon of this vital Dec. 2 Small had been in his offices in the old Grand Theater, where he had begun his career and where he was consummating it. The final conferences with his business successors were held there. The contracts were signed, the money paid and the last wrinkles smoothed out. Between 4 and 5 o'clock several of the employes saw their retiring master in his theater. He telephoned to business associates and made appointments for the following day. Certainly he had then no intention of going away.

At 5:30 o'clock, according to his secretary, Jack Doughty, who gave this information a few hours after Small had gone, the master of Canadian theaters walked out in the street to go home. He had an engagement to dine with his family in his home at 6:30 o'clock. According to the keeper of Lamb's Hotel, adjoining the Grand Theater, Small was in this hostlery at about 5:30. At 7:15 he bought the newspaper from the boy in the street. There the trail ends.



Ambrose Joseph Small, organizer of the Trans-Canada Theaters, Ltd., last seen in front of his Grand Theater on Adelaide Street, Toronto, on the evening of Dec. 2, last.



"Small bought a newspaper from the lad, glanced at the headlines under the yellow glare of the street lamp—

When 7:30 came and her husband had not appeared for dinner, Mrs. Small telephoned the offices in the theater and got no answer. At 9:30 she telephoned to Doughty, who was found at the home of his sister, where he had been all evening. Doughty said over the wire his employer had left the offices at 5:30. He knew no more. At midnight Mrs. Small began to be really active. She either telephoned or sent telegrams to many of Small's theaters in Eastern Canada. She got no results. No one had seen the millionaire.

Strangely enough, though perhaps for good reasons, no appeal to the police was made for two weeks. Then Mrs. Small took the mystery to them. Then, too, an intensive questioning of the private secretary began.

This man Doughty had been in the employ of Amby Small for 19 years. He was a large, athletic Irishman, in his younger years an oarsman of local celebrity. Doughty was married and the father of two children, but is reported at times to have been living apart from his wife. He was a cheerful, easy-going, rather lightheaded man, liking to indulge himself, confidential, friendly. No one ever considered him in any way dangerous.

Doughty had inherited some money, owned some property in Toronto and was a saving fellow. Small had paid him $45 a week for years, and while the secretary sometimes complained of his master's niggardliness and aired the idea that Small had too much money, he had, nevertheless, saved a part of his salary and piled up a competence. Thus the suspicions directed against Doughty have not the backing of a money urge.

Again, Small and Doughty were on the most intimate terms. The secretary had helped the magnate to engineer some of his shrewdest and most rewarding coups. He knew the affairs of the rich man in and out. He was trusted with everything. The retirement of Small from active control of theaters had benefited rather than harmed Doughty, for the Trans-Canadian Theaters, Ltd., had hired the secretary at $75 a week and sent him to Montreal, where he assumed his duties a day or two after Small disappeared.

There was here nothing provocative of suspicion against the man. Yet a warrant has been issued for his arrest on a charge of conspiring with others to kidnap Small, and a reward of $5000 is offered for his capture.

These warrants probably were written because a long time previous to Small's disappearance Doughty had spoken to two persons of the possibility of kidnaping Small and the money that might be got by such a crime. Again, he had latterly been showing Socialistic tendencies and had been railing, lightly and mockingly, it seems, however, against Small's overrichness. Finally, Doughty had gone twice to Small's safe deposit box in the Dominion Bank on Dec. 2, and $150,000 in bonds were missing from that box.

As against these suggestive details, it is urged that Doughty's talk of kidnaping his employer was laughing bravado caused by a little too much tipple, and his Socialism mere gabble. His visits to the safe deposit box may, too, have been made at Small's direction. Doughty said as much immediately after Small had faded out.

In any event, Small bought a newspaper from the Quaint Anecdotes of Pioneer American Journalism

INCIDENTS comical and tragic attended the founding of the first newspapers in America, as related in a "History of Journalism in the United States," by George Henry Payne, just from the presses of Applegate & Co. Of the former class, we find one of the first editors admitting that he was "a matter of some 13 months behind" in printing news of a certain event. Included in the latter are instances of savage persecution of pioneer editors, shocking to those accustomed to the belief that the first settlers of this country were advocates of liberty of speech and press.

The first newspaper on this continent was Publick Occurances, which made its first appearance in Boston on Sept. 25, 1690—almost 230 years ago. The editor was Benjamin Harris, a virile and interesting character, to whom history seems to have done scant justice, for, aside from being the first editor in North America, his career was an inspiring one, and a fine example for those who were to carry on his fight for freedom of the press.

His paper appeared once a month in Boston, and he made a living meantime by running a coffee house. He announced in the first issue that the aim of Publick Occurances was not only to furnish the readers with an account of "such considerable things as have arrived unto our notice," but also "that something may be done toward curing, or at least charming, that spirit of lying which prevails among us."

Among the news items in the first number was one telling of the kidnaping of two children by Indians, the suicide of a man whose wife had died; accounts of the smallpox epidemic in Boston and an account of a fire. It was not long until Harris demonstrated his adherence, even then, to what are today the highest ethics of the newspaper profession, and thereby got himself in trouble with the authorities, as many newspaper men after him have done, by being too truthful.

It was a story of war atrocities—committed by the allies of his own side—that caused the trouble. In Harris' narrative of Gov. Winthrop's expedition against the French and Indians, he related the barbarities practiced against the enemy by the friendly Maquas who fought with the Massachusetts troops, and added his protest against trying to subdue Canada "with the aid of these miserable savages." A few days later the authorities suppressed his paper.

The trial for libel of John Peter Zenger, in 1735, is singled out by the author as the preliminary to the Revolution, because Zenger's acquittal resulted in giving fresh spirit to other editors, and making possible the journalistic careers of Sam Adams and Benjamin Franklin, which, perhaps more than all other elements combined, succeeded in fanning the fires of independence that resulted in the struggle for freedom.

It was criticism of the Governor of New York that led to the arrest of Zenger. For nine months, until his trial came up, he edited his paper in jail. The case opened with an offer to prove the truth of what he had printed. The Judge, an appointee of the Governor, held that this was no defense. The law under which Zenger was tried was laid down by the Court as follows:

"If people cannot be called to account for possessing the people with an ill opinion of the Government, no government can subsist. For it is necessary for all governments that people should have a good opinion of it"—a doctrine strangely similiar to some that have been uttered not long since in high places. It must be remembered that Zenger, Harris, Adams and their fellows were the radicals of their day. They were the "red" pamphleteers of their time, denounced as "traitors," "heretics," theorists" and "anarchists."

Zenger's attorney made a direct appeal to the jury. He ridiculed the idea that power must be protected and that government should be immune from attac He pointed out that those in power could mainta themselves there forever, regardless of the public go under such a rule. The jury agreed. Zenger w freed, and was carried about the town on the shoulde of the populace.

The career of the Revolutionary editors is, of cours more familiar to the average student of history. Sa Adams, "father of the Revolution;" Benjamin a James Franklin and Thomas Paine are characters w known. Incidentally, the historian points out th George Washington was the first General in hist to establish a department of propaganda. He was a companied in the field by Paine, the bold and fearless author of "Common Sense," and it was while with Washington that Paine penned the immortal "Crises," beginning with the line: "These are the times that try men's souls"—which were read aloud, the writer relates, to every Corporal's guard in Washington's army, thus sustaining the morale.

Among the amusing spectacles of the day was that of a pre-Revolutionary editor declaring, in an appeal for contributions, that "lying and ignorant persons have raised a report in the community that my paper had a circulation above 1000 copies, whereas the truth is that it is not more than 300 copies"—a statement that would bring the average circulation manager of today to the verge of stupefaction.

The fight for freedom of the press was long and bitter. It is a striking fact that the history of it shows the clergy usually lined up with the authorities in waging war upon the pioneer editors, it being frequently pointed out by the Puritan ministers that a man guilty of political heresy was an apt subject for religious heresy.

source of contamination, and the disease has been experimentally induced in horses by giving them wholesome feed, but permitting them to drink water in which a known infected feed has been immersed. Both acute and chronic types of the disease have been observed. Cattle, sheep, swine and chickens display more resistance than do horses and mules; ruminant animals may develop a constitutional tolerance to a degree of infection that would be fatal to horses.

The symptoms displayed in horses are characteristic, continues the report. In the initial stages a marked flow of tears is sometimes observed for a few hours; the ensuing symptoms consist of varied nervous manifestations, muscular weakness, paralysis, profuse secretions from mouth and nose, and disorders of locomotion and vision. The acute form of the disease is more common in horses and mules; the chronic form in cattle.

Upon the appearance of the disease, Dr. Graham prescribes, there should be an immediate change of food. All feeds should be exposed to the sunlight several hours before being fed. Hay and grain may be washed with water before they are fed. Hay may be spread on the ground and thoroughly sprinkled; grains are more conveniently cleaned by being immersed in a tank of water several hours and thoroughly agitated before being fed. If infected pastures are abandoned, natural influences apparently render them harmless in a few weeks.

The value of the serum in animals showing acute symptoms is limited, or even nil, according to Dr. Graham, but the use of the serum in large doses is indicated in the early stages of the chronic form of the disease. Often the only symptoms for several days in the milder phase of the malady are loss of condition, depression and, in the case of cattle, a decrease of milk flow.

But as a preventive, he states that the antitoxin affords protection in horses and cattle when administered in amounts of 40 to 60 mills per 1000 pounds of weight. Injections into the veins or muscles, and under the skin, are all effective. Intravenous injection seems preferable in horses, since in their case the outbreaks of the disease are often acute, and immediate prophylaxis is desired.

his own commissions directly. The agent probably did not get 1 per cent of the people for the company.

In addition, it was stated that the engagement would be for six weeks, that we would have Monday nights off and that it would be a "nice" engagement. Dream on, Macbeth, dream on!

We arrived in St. Louis at 6:30 p. m., May 23, and were called at 10 o'clock the next morning for rehearsal. No one cared whether we were properly settled or not. From that time until the present writing —at the end of "The Gondoliers"—there has been a steady grind of rehearsals daily, from 10 or 10:30 a. m. to 3, 4 and 5 p. m., with a dress rehearsal on Monday nights. One of these lasted until 1 a. m., thereby compelling the people of the company to get home the best they could. Some never got home that night.

Then there are the night shows, for which we have to report at 7:30 p. m. We have never had a full day off at any time. The girls had one half-day off. Chorus Master Parsons would not excuse even the experienced persons who knew the operas at early rehearsals; this is always done by a musical director who knows his business, so as to encourage the people to learn their parts ahead. The shows are over somewhere near 11 p. m. After that the choristers can go out and enjoy themselves, if they have any energy left. I ask the reader whether a drill of this kind, from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily, is not worthy of a complaint.

The Hippodrome in New York, with two shows a day and about 400 people, arranges it so that there is rarely a rehearsal in the morning, and never one on Sunday. The Hippodrome, in the profession, is known as the "factory;" but, believe me, just after finishing a six months' engagement there, I'd take it 100 times over in preference to this. When people are called, it should be to work, and not to hang around (for that is harder than rehearsing), until others learn their parts, or the scenery is built, or the business is doped out, or someone tells a story.

Climate Changing? Not a Bit of It!

"WEATHER and climate have not changed from the time of the Pilgrims down to the present day," are the closing words of an article by Prof. Robert de C. Ward of Harvard University on "The Snowfall of the United States," in the Scientific Monthly.

That this is so is proved by a comparison of present-day conditions with those so accurately recorded by the early settlers of New England. "There are accounts of great cold; of deep snows; of violent winter storms. There are also many descriptions of very mild and open winters. Thus, we read of December and January resembling May and June; of flowers growing in the woods in midwinter; of so little snowfall 'as scarcely to give opportunity for enjoying the music of the sleigh bells;' of 'green Christmases;' of 'winter turned into summer;' of the 'ground bare for the most part;' of little ice; of crocuses up, of wild violets in bloom and of lilacs 'throwing out their leaves in January.'"

It is interesting to note that Prof. Ward gives the prize for the heaviest recorded average snowfall to Tamarack, Cal., with Summit, Cal., as a close second. The average fall at the former, which is at an altitude of 8000 feet, is 521.3 inches, and at the latter (7027 feet), it is 419.6 inches. In the winter of 1910-11, 575 inches fell at Tamarack, and in 1879-80, 783 inches fell at Summit.

But on Mount Ranier, Wash., at Paradise Inn., at an elevation of 5500 feet, from Nov. 24, 1916, to June, 1917, 789.5 inches fell, though that season was not one of unusually heavy snowfall. This was the first record obtained from that part of the Cascade Mountains, so it may be that Mount Ranier will take from the Sierra Nevada its distinction.

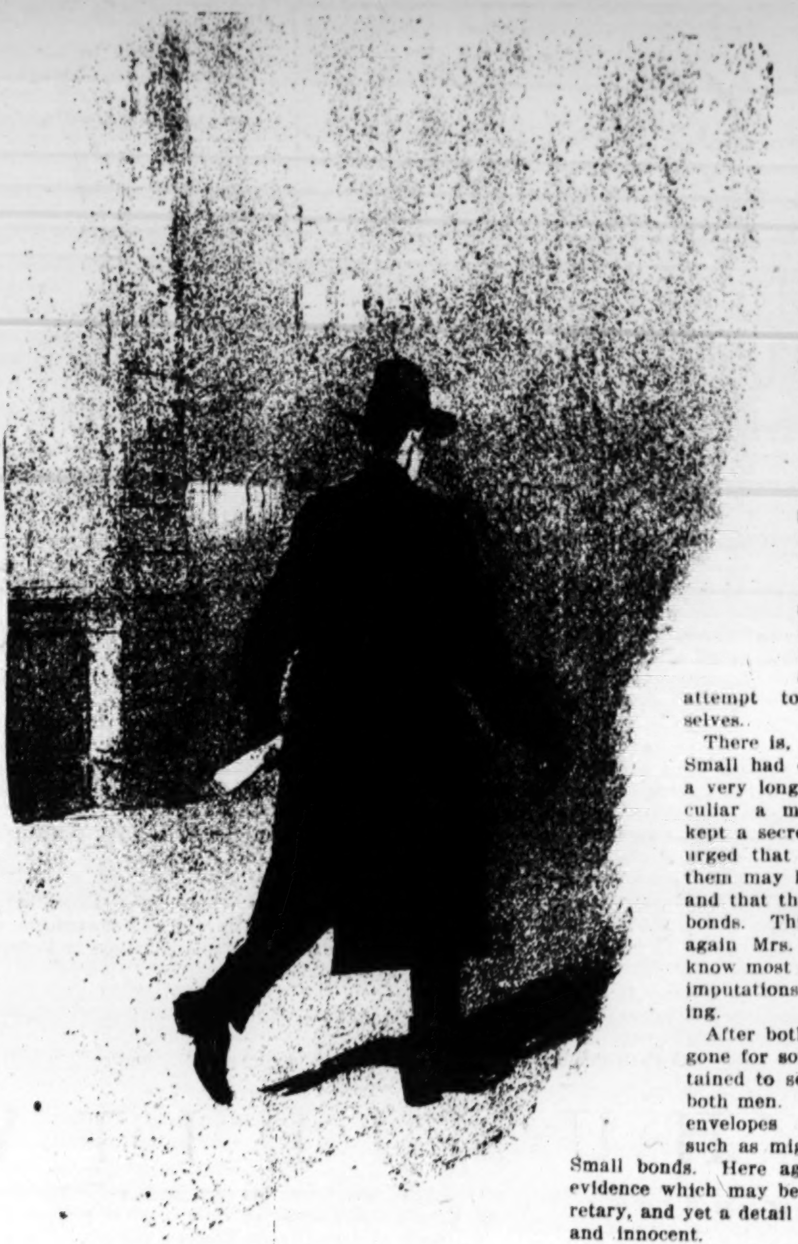
La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand-dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say they can not buy a better powder than La-may anywhere at any price. There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration.

Who Vanished Eight Months Ago; $50,000 Reward



—buttoned his coat tightly about him, and walked off into emptiness."

lad in Adelaide street, glanced at the headlines under the yellow glare of the street lamps, buttoned his coat tightly about him against the gelid obtrusions of the winter night, and walked off into emptiness, blackness, void.

Two weeks later the public search for him began, and Doughty was grilled. He began to show strain. He spoke to his friends of not feeling well and being in trouble.

Then, one morning just three weeks after Small had stepped into chaos, Doughty simply failed to show up at his desk. And the dark drop fell upon the play of his life as well.

Doughty went from his new job in Montreal back to Toronto, whence he telegraphed to his employers that he was ill. Naturally, with this explanation of his absence at hand, no search for him was begun for some days. When doubts began to be felt and the authorities looked about for him, Jack Doughty, too, had simply stepped out of the scene.

Now the quest began in earnest. The police three times circularized the entire civilized world. A reward of $5000 was offered for information about Small. Soon afterward the sum was raised to $50,000, and this reward stands today and will stand until Sept. 1. At the same time there is a price of $5000 on Doughty's freedom, and there is an offer of $15,000 for the production of Small's body, should he be dead. The best legal and detective talents of this continent have been employed, but no progress has been made

For some time after Amby Small's disappearance there was a tendency to treat the whole matter lightly. It was said he had bought a ticket from Toronto to Milwaukee for a girl on the day of his disappearance, and later had bought a second such ticket for himself. These statements could not be corroborated and were later denied by the police. Nevertheless they gave rise to a crop of theories, all revolving about the same idea—that Small had gone away with a woman or on some pleasure jaunt. These hypotheses explained his sudden going and his failure to notify his wife or associates by asserting that Small had disappeared mysteriously on previous occasions, that he was not on the best of terms with his wife and treated her with little consideration. All these statements are vigorously denied by Mrs. Small and her friends and by others who knew Small well.

When Doughty disappeared in the wake of his master and it was reported that $150,000 in bonds had gone with one or the other of the men, certain circles renewed the claim that Small had simply gone on a jaunt and had probably sent for his trusted secretary when his cash ran low.

It is recorded that Small probably had less than $10 in cash in his pockets when he disappeared. In addition he had about $1000 in checks which had come in during the day. None of these has been cashed. No checks against Small's bank accounts have come in. Neither have the coupons from any of the missing bonds turned up, and there has been no known attempt to dispose of the bonds themselves.

There is, to be sure, the possibility that Small had enough cash with him to last a very long time. So rich and rather peculiar a man might, it is argued, have kept a secret supply of cash. Again, it is urged that Small or Doughty or both of them may have gone to a distant country and that they may there be living off the bonds. This is, of course, possible, but again Mrs. Small and many others who know most of both men stoutly deny these imputations and discard all such theorizing.

After both Small and Doughty had been gone for some time a court order was obtained to search the safe deposit boxes of both men. This revealed a number of torn envelopes in Doughty's box—envelopes such as might have contained the missing Small bonds. Here again is a bit of circumstantial evidence which may be made to look bad for the secretary, and yet a detail which may be wholly deceiving and innocent.

To see that Small's estate was kept intact a special act was recently rushed through the Ontario Parliament, by the terms of which the widow and a trust company were put in charge.

In Toronto this case has now become so celebrated that it has ramified into politics and even into religion. The Smalls are Roman Catholics, and the trust company put into control of the missing man's moneys, along with his widow, is directed by Catholics. This circumstance has caused certain Orange newspapers to attack the wife and her associates for putting the special act through the Provincial Parliament. These incontinent papers, whose attitude reveals the religious bitterness felt in Ontario—caused mainly by the Irish question—have been trying to suggest that there was indecent haste shown in getting control of Small's money.

In general there is much speculation as to what will happen in case it develops that Small is alive, as many insist on believing. Should Small return and find that his money has been turned over to others by legislative enactment, say certain of his friends and others of his enemies, there will be a most unamiable row. Small is a strong man and a harsh one in some ways, it is recounted, and the fight he would be likely to start causes the average Canadian to thrill with anticipation.

Such speculation has its charms, no doubt, but it brings no one any nearer an unriddling of the enigma. What happened to Small? What to Doughty? Are they alive and together somewhere? Is Small dead and Doughty living? Are they both dead? If so, who killed them, and where, how, why?

The wife of the missing millionaire at first clung steadfastly to the belief that her husband was alive. In the beginning she believed he might have been the victim of aphasia or some other mental storm. He had been under great mental strain during his theater sale negotiations. She always scouted the idea that he might have gone off on a mere junket. Later she felt that Small must have been kidnaped to be held for ransom. But time passed, and though the police got a series of crank letters purporting to come from a member of a kidnaping gang, there was never any demand for ransom. The wife and the detectives were forced to conclude that if there had been a kidnaping it must have been of an extraordinary sort, with some mysterious motivation. Obviously, criminals acting on ordinary impulsion would take the first opportunity to demand payment for the return of their prisoner.

Perhaps, it is said by those who believe in the kidnaping theory, Small resisted his captors and was dealt too heavy a blow. Perhaps he was made helpless with some sort of drug and too much was administered. In short, there may have been a murder.

To this idea Mrs. Small has been forced, slowly and after long insistence on the belief or hope that her husband was alive.

"I do not know," she said recently to a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine correspondent. "We have nothing whatever to go on, but I fear he is dead."

The concept that Small was kidnaped presents certain difficulties, not too readily put aside.

Ordinarily the magnate drove home to his house in a motor car, but on Dec. 2 his car was not sent for him. This was in no way unusual, for Small kept himself fit by walking. Frequently when the weather was fine he walked home from his office, a distance of about two miles. And the evening of Dec. 2 was cold but clear. He might have started to walk home and been held up on the way. But, it is objected, Small more often went home by street car, and especially when he was in a hurry. On this evening he had a dinner appointment at home for 6:30 o'clock. At 7:15 he was still near his theater and there bought a newspaper. Would he have walked slowly home when he was already so late? More likely, it is urged, he would have followed his custom of walking three blocks along Adelaide street to the corner where he caught a Church street car. This line passes within a hundred yards of the Small mansion.

Hence, if Small went toward the car line after leaving the newsboy, his kidnapers must have picked him up somewhere in those three blocks along Adelaide street. For criminals to have seized a man like Small, or any man, and put him into a waiting automobile, as supposed in this theory, would have been impossible on crowded, lighted Adelaide street at 7:15 o'clock in the evening. It might succeed and the culprits might get away with their prisoner, but certainly scores of persons would see the struggle and witness the flight. No one in Toronto saw anything of the sort.

It is possible, of course, that Small was waylaid in the short stretch between the car line and his home, beaten over the head, or drugged with chloroform, and dragged into a waiting motor. It is also conceivable that he started to walk home in spite of his tardiness and that he was caught at any point along the line of his march. In any of these events he may have resisted and been killed, either in the fight or by too much drug.

Those who suspect that Doughty holds the key to the mystery scout all these notions and present another hypothesis. They urge that a man like Small could not have been got into an automobile unless someone he knew was present to invite him into the trap. He was naturally suspicious and wary of strangers, as men of his kind and station are likely to be and are justified in being.

The proponents of this theory link up a purely suppositious case, beginning with the disappearance of the $150,000 in bonds. There is, I must add, no known particle of evidence to support this bit of theory spinning. It is purely imaginative deduction

Those who have faith in Doughty point out that he was a genial and soft man, quite incapable of any deed of violence. He was at his sister's house eating dinner at the hour Small must have been lured into the car, if such a thing happened. Hence, say these proponents, Doughty could not have led his old friend and employer to his doom. His depression after Small's disappearance and his mention of being in trouble are readily explainable. There was a mystery, there was the likelihood, yea, the fact, of suspicion falling upon him. These things are enough to unbalance many disturbed natures, and Doughty was a fellow of this emotional type.

Or it may be that Small was in hiding and sending his former secretary secret directions and commands which depressed and unnerved Doughty. Some still cling tight to this explanation of the whole mystery.

The trial, so far as fact goes, ends at the Adelaide street corner under the lamps at 7:15 o'clock when the newsy sold the multimillionaire the paper and Ambrose Joseph Small stepped into an abyss of silence.

In June it was reported that an old friend of Doughty had received from the missing secretary a postal card mailed in Naples. The police have not confirmed this. But the very rumor that such a card had come revived the assertion that Small and Doughty are on a vacation together. Had Doughty been guilty of a crime, it is urged, he would not have risked betraying himself by sending the card.

If you pick the right theory and find Amby Small alive before Sept. 1, there is $50,000 waiting for you in the Dominion Bank of Toronto.

The "Open Season" For Husbands

By HELEN ROWLAND.

A Pom or a Pekinese is a valuable animal—but a husband can always be easily duplicated.

"THERE'S young Gayboy, having his last fling—poor fellow!" remarked the Bachelor, as he nodded genially toward a young man who sat at cozy little corner table, regaling a remarkably pretty girl with special dishes and highly-flavored flattery.

"His last fling?" repeated the Widow wonderingly. "Is he going to be married?"

"Going to be? He IS married!" elucidated the Bachelor. "His wife comes home tomorrow!"

The Widow smiled, as she doffed her dust coat and unfastened the chiffon strings of her becoming little motor hat.

'What a foolish woman!" she exclaimed, "to go away for two long months and leave such a decorative husband unleashed! It serves such wives perfectly right, when their husbands become—er—mislaid. No woman would go away for a whole summer and leave her Pom or her Pekinese to go his own wild sweet way, and to forage for his food, and then expect to find him, waiting patiently right there on the front steps, when she came back!"

"Ah, well," returned the Bachelor with a shrug of resignation, "what's one husband more or less in these days of progressive matrimony? A Pom or a Pekinese is a valuable animal—but a husband can always be easily duplicated."

"Perhaps," agreed the Widow, without conviction. "But there's the 'other woman's' point of view. What I can't understand is why any girl should waste her powder and her lipstick and the best days of the husband-harvest season on a married man!"

The Bachelor sighed and attacked his clams with relish.

"It's getting to be a positive fad!" he complained bitterly. "We poor bachelors don't stand a chance, beside the 'man-on-the-leash,' nowadays. Even in the Broadway comedies and the movie dramas, Dolly-the-debutante and Flora-the-flapper, and Tessie-the-beautiful-typist are lured away from us by the subtle machinations of the villain"——

"But I'm not talking about 'villains'!" interrupted the Widow, "and I'm not speaking of the Broadway flapper, nor of 'Bertha-the-beautiful-sewing-machine-girl,' and all that sort of thing. I'm thinking of nice girls—and nice men. Why does a nice girl, who would rather break an arm than a convention, consider it smart, chic, even a feather in her cap, to be seen lunching with some other woman's husband? I should think that she would realize that it looked—well, rather 'hard up,' to say the least—to have to BORROW a husband!"

"Exactly!" agreed the Bachelor. "Like having to borrow a pair of evening gloves, or an umbrella, or a lift in somebody's motor car. Going about with a 'borrowed husband' is a sign of sentimental poverty."

"Still," mused the Widow, thoughtfully regarding her ice-consomme, "I suppose that there is something in the fact that they're so much EASIER and more responsive."

"WHAT!"

"Oh, more impressionable," explained the Widow "They've been broken to harness, you know, and are bridle-wise and much less restive and spirited. It's like pulling a tooth to get any sentiment, or even a little enthusiastic and convincing flattery out of a bachelor."

"Nonsense," protested the Bachelor. "I'm overflowing with sentiment! And, as for flattery, nothing I could say about that ravishing motor bonnet you are wearing would do it justice, much less flatter"——

"The average bachelor," interrupted the Widow, ignoring the Bachelor's belated attempts to mend things, "doesn't even TRY to make a flirtation interesting. He thinks he is doing his bit by bestowing his society upon you. But the poor married things are simply yearning for some crumbs of sentiment and a few purple moments of romance."

"And besides," put in the Bachelor with withering scorn, "they know that they are running no risks. They know that it's perfectly safe for them to talk like a Harold Bell Wright hero and play the Lou Tellegen. They can't be married AGAIN!"

"Oh, I don't know," returned the Widow, sipping her coffee reflectively. "A man is never SAFE! Sometimes it's easier to marry one who has already been married than to capture one who has never been married at all. The average girl has read so much about Reno, and progressive matrimony, that I suppose, down in her heart, every one of them has a glimmer of hope that the married flirt may fall in love with her and permit himself to be passed along via the divorce court."

"Humph!" grumbled the Bachelor. "Rather illogical to fancy that a man who has once been through the domestic treadmill should be willing and eager to try it again.

"But they always are!" declared the Widow, with a little laugh. "As far as willingness is concerned they are all Happy Hooligans! Still, there is such a thing as honor-among-flirts; and as for me, I consider another woman's husband as sacred as her pocketbook. Besides, I don't care for—crumbs!"

"Crumbs?" repeated the Bachelor inquiringly.

"That's all a married man has to offer any girl," explained the Widow. "Crumbs of his affections, odds and ends of time, and warmed-over sentiment. He has gone into matrimony expecting rapture and roses and nectar and ambrosia; and has fallen from his 'Fool's Paradise' with a dull, sickening thud into the slough of commonplace, every-day life. And, not being sport enough to accept his fate, he is looking for consolation. Just fancy any girl with an iota of vanity being willing to pose as a CONSOLATION PRIZE!"

"Pouf!" protested the Bachelor, waving his coffee spoon. "It's her vanity that makes her do it. The excitement of taking something away from another woman has its thrills. That's three-quarters of the married man's attraction. He belongs to somebody else!"

"Perhaps," acquiesced the Widow doubtfully, as she rose and began tying the fetching chiffon streamers under her chin, "but, thank heaven! I never reached the extremity where I had to beg, borrow or steal another woman's husband! And, thank heaven! in these days of catch-as-catch-can, I haven't GOT a husband!"

"And, thank heaven!" rejoined the Bachelor, with a grin of triumph, "I don't have to go home and report for duty when I leave you!"

"Look!" whispered the Widow, glancing toward the recalcitrant Gayboy. "They've only reached the soup course, and he hasn't eaten a mouthful. He's still telling her how wonderful she is, I suppose—while you, Mr. Weatherby—YOU ate everything the waiter put before you!"

"Oh, well," answered the Bachelor cheerfully, as he tucked the Widow into the car and took the wheel, "I've so much more TIME than he has—to be sentimental."

WIDOW-CISMS.

Oh, yes, Evelyn, most married men tell their wives the honest truth—as often as necessary, anyway.

Somehow, a man never seems to appreciate "woman's infinite variety" until he has experienced the monotony of being married to just one of them.

"Giving in marriage" is simple and easy; it's GETTING anything afterward that requires all a woman's ingenuity and skill.

Whenever a man or a nail goes "crooked," the alibi is always that some woman "drove them" that way.

Never judge a man by appearance. The man with the biggest goggles doesn't always own the machine.

EDISON'S ADVICE TO YOUNG INVENTORS

"I SUGGEST that if the young inventor has an idea he had better reduce it to actual practice and be sure that it works before applying for a patent," said Thomas A. Edison to H. Gernsback, in an interview printed in the Electrical Experimenter. "Ideas are easy, but working them into commercial shape is generally a long, tedious and expensive job. After successful operation and the results warrant it, a search of the United States Patent Office should be made to learn if it has not been previously invented or patented by others. Here is where the young inventor will have his greatest disappointment. He will find many a time and, as a matter of fact, in a majority of cases, that the idea has been patented in one form or another. But disappointments show the salt of the inventor. Only by such disappointments can he triumph finally."

"You have patented over 1000 inventions, Mr. Edison. How many of these have been actually worked?"

Mr. Edison thought for a while. "Of the 1400 patents which I have obtained, about 400 were actually worked. This figure may be taken as proportionate for inventors. It is seldom that an inventor makes a success of his first invention. Usually he finds that although he obtains a patent, for some reason or other the idea did not prove to be successful commercially, or could not be exploited otherwise. I have made it a rule in my later years not to patent anything for which I knew there was no actual demand."

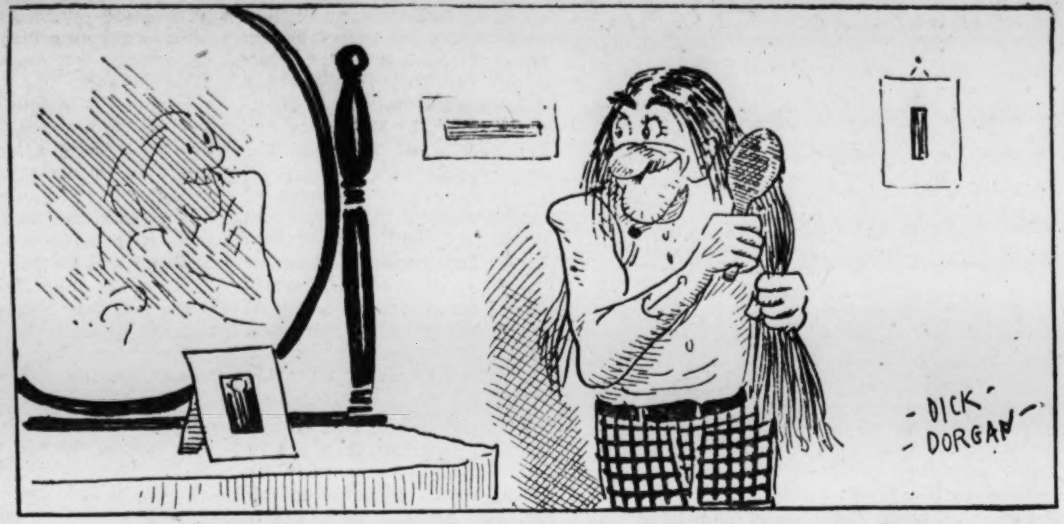
SHORT CUTS TO MALE BEAUTY

By Ring W. Lardner.



Beautiful hair is one of the greatest assets a man can have.

TO THE EDITOR: For yrs. and yrs. the columns of the newspaper press has been full of articles on how to keep beautiful and how to stay beautiful and beauty hints and etc. but when you come to read them you always find out that they refer to girls of the feminine persuasion, and the articles is written by the same, and it begins to look like as if this kept up all sided, why pretty soon the ladies will be pretty near as beautiful as we boys. So I have decided to step into the breeches and start a beauty col. for gents only and tell the boys how to preserve themself and if anybody thinks this bird is not qualified why all I can say is look at my photograph or meet me in the flesh.

In my first article on this subject today I will work from the head down, beginning with the hair, a great deal of which I have wasted in experiments to find out the best means of keeping it both oily and coily. Beautiful hair is one of the greatest assets a man can have, as witness Mr. Elwell who had 30 sets of it. But a great many men has not got as much jack as that gent and must practice economy and keep a hold of their own. The best way to conserve the original hair is to run a hair brush over it at lease once a month, but if it proves too much of a strain on the abdomenal muscles to brush the entire scalp at once, why brush one side of it the first of the month and the other side the 15th. Hair brushes can be gotten in drug stores for a small sum or in Pullmans for nothing.

That brings us down to the eyes. Men is born with black, brown, blue or gray eyes as regards the midst of the eye, but most of the eyeballs is water colors. One secret of beauty is to be out of the ordinary looking and this can be accomplished in regards to the eyes by leaving one eyeball in the original tone and coloring the other red or pink, which is done by habitually smokeing a cigar or cigarette and always cocking it upward in the direction of the eye that is to be tarnished. Frequent applications of present day hootch, taken internally, helps.

The nose will retain its youthful vigor by the frequent usages of calcimine applied externally with a nail brush or calcimine spreader.

The teeth can be made more attractive by filling in between the bicuspids with a liberal quota of gold which can be obtained from the Russian Ambassador. The same teeth will last a whole lot longer and retain their pristine handsomeness if the food eaten is the kind that don't half to be chawed, such as soup, oysters and radishes.

Almost every man is born with a aversion to the use of rouge et noir on the lips, but the latter can be reddened fresh daily by ordering raspberries, crushing them in the saucer with a spoon and then mouthing them slightly before consuming.

The ears can be kept within reasonable bounds by sleeping nights in a football headgear and cleaning occasionally with a typewriter brush.

The chin, or jaw, should be swept out once in a wile with a whisk or whiskers broom.

The complexion can be demolished of moles if traps are set at the proper intervals.

Other blemishes of the complexion, such as insect bites, can be avoided by keeping out of the insect zone.

That brings us to the neck of which the most prominent part is the Adams apple. A sizable Adams apple can be growed by constantly pruning the neck during the blossoming season. The normal apple, thus treated, will soon assume the proportions of a grape fruit.

That brings us to the finger nails. These should be run over a grindstone or emery wheel every autumn and then brushed out underneath with a match, sharpened at one end.

There is nothing as pretty as a man's ankle. Men should always wear low shoes and stockings that are wont to tear at a moment's notice, giveing the spectator the full contour and tone of the ankle proper, or tibia and fibula.

It will improve the looks and feel of the feet to take off the shoes every night before or after retireing.

Queries on the care and feeding of the elbows and all other males' beauty questions will be answered by the writer if stamped, self-addressed envelope is inclosed, with the stamp loose.

TOO MUCH HUMIDITY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

WE WERE going to spend the week end in the country with the Wells, and there was just about time to make the train. As we were loading half a dozen handbags, umbrellas, golf clubs and other impedimenta in the waiting taxicab, the General Manager uttered an exclamation of dismay.

"My glasses," she cried. "I've left them, and, if I don't have them, I'll have a splitting headache all the time."

"I'll get them," I volunteered, and ran back into the house.

I knew the bureau drawer in which she generally kept them and gave it a gentle tug. It didn't budge. I tugged harder. The bureau rocked on its stubby legs. I yanked. The handle separated from the drawer, which remained as stationary as the rock of Gibraltar.

"Hurry up!" called the General Manager, from below. "We'll miss the train."

She didn't hear what I muttered under my breath. It is better you should not hear it, too.

Then a brilliant idea struck me. I would remove the drawer above and search in it for the glasses. I clutched both handles of the upper drawer. Then I braced my feet against the legs of the bureau.

"No pussyfooting this time," I muttered to myself. "This one is going to open on the first try."

Then I hurled my back, leg and arm muscles into a terrific heave. The next moment I was sitting on the floor, which seemed to have come up and struck me in a region where I had not received such a blow since woodshed days with my father.

The upper drawer had not stuck at all. On the contrary, it had come free from the bureau so precipitately that I found myself draped with lace collars, stockings and other intimate feminine garments of various delicate tints.

Before I had had time to pick myself up there was a startled shriek from the doorway. The General Manager stood on the threshold.

"I'm not hurt," I said quickly, to reassure her.

But anxiety in my behalf apparently had not caused her outcry.

"All my fresh-laundered things," she moaned, as regardless of me, she began to gather them up.

But I was intent on getting the glasses so we would not miss the train. I thrust my arm into the lower drawer through the space where the one which had caused my disaster had been.

"What are you doing now?" demanded the General Manager, "mussing up all my other things?"

"I'm getting the glasses," I said, not too cheerfully.

The General Manager muttered something which might have been "Stupid!" or might have been something else, but, at any rate, it was derogatory to my mental capacity. Then she darted to the mantelpiece and grasped her glasses.

"I called after you that they were on the mantel," she said, "but you were in such a hurry you wouldn't listen."

I was mute.

Finally we reached the station. At the ticket office I took my place behind a stout lady who was having an argument with the ticket clerk.

"I had my ticket," she was saying. "I bought it three days ago and put it in the drawer of my desk, but, when I went to get it today, I couldn't open the drawer."

"But, madam," said the clerk, "I could not give you another ticket. But you can"——

"It's an outrage," said the stout lady. "My husband was in the army in France more than a year. He had a very important position there and was a K. P., which must be just as good as a D. S. C., and if he were here now instead of traveling for a very large firm that manufactures shoe laces, he would never allow me to be treated like this. I don't see why I should be obliged to pay for tickets twice."

I glanced at the clock. It was a matter of seconds before train time. The station agent tried to speak again. The stout lady cut him short.

"If a big corporation like a railroad can't hire men with some respect for a lady, what is the country coming to? My goodness! I suppose you doubt my word. I'll bring the desk down here and you can"——

The ticket agent stuck his head through the window and fairly shouted:

"Buy a new ticket and you can get cash for the other!"

"Well, why didn't you tell me that before?" cuttingly.

"I didn't have a chance to say a word," sighed the ticket agent, but I was his only audience. The stout lady had paid and departed.

We made the train, impedimenta and all. I was in a dripping perspiration. Just as I was getting comfortable, the General Manager asked to have the window open.

I squeezed the patent snaps, but the window did not move. I pushed upward on it. It remained tight closed. To yank after yank, it remained obdurate. The conductor came down the aisle and assisted me. Our combined efforts finally sent it up with a bang, catching my thumb and bruising it.

With the first gust of bituminous-laden air that swept through the open window, the General Manager clutched her right eye.

"Put it down, put it down," she wailed. "I can't stand the soot. There's a cinder in my eye already."

By the time we reached our destination I had succeeded in closing the window.

The Wells met us at the station and we motored home. Just before supper, Wells asked me if I would have a highball.

"Would a rose bug refuse an American Beauty?" I said.

Wells went to the sideboard, which was one of the old-fashioned variety, with a small, round, wooden knob for a handle. I knew what was coming before he started. The door stuck. He put his strength into it. The knob came off. I tried tugging with my fingers at the fancy woodwork around the panels. The total result was a broken finger nail.

"Everything sticks this weather," said Wells. "Guess we're out of luck. Can't get at the hootch."

I agreed inwardly that I was out of luck, but Wells could have gotten into the sideboard with an ax. Maybe I am doing him an injustice, but I could not help thinking that he was in considerable Scotch. Maybe I am doing him an injustice. However, I felt he might have accentuated and prolonged his effort.

That evening the General Manager decided to send some picture post cards. I was lying in bed listening to the scratching of the pen and longing for the end of the week end.

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed the General Manager.

"What's stuck now?" I asked.

"Stuck!" she said indignantly. "Here's 40 cents worth of stamps and not one of them will stick on a post card."

Municipal Opera in St. Louis As a Chorus Man Sees It

Deputy of Chorus Equity Association says open-air theater in Forest Park is most beautiful in America, and will be perfect when pergola on right is completed — Does not think productions measure up to possibilities of auditorium — Complains of daily grind of work, from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., and declares New York choristers had to pay commissions to get jobs ::

Beginning a ten o'clock rehearsal—Members of the Municipal Opera Company practicing a chorus in "Katinka."

An experienced chorus man, who has worked under many stage and musical directors and with numerous and different principals, is often a keen observer of the merits and demerits of a theatrical undertaking. The following series of views was volunteered by a professional member of the municipal opera chorus, B. J. Tiernan, who is also the deputy of the Chorus Equity Association of America, with the municipal opera company. His article was inspired by a recent discussion of the problems of the local entertainment project, which was written by Musical Director Max Bendix, and published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

"I have played," says Tiernan, "with most of the stars of musical comedy and light opera, and with many of the dramatic stellar lights. I have been under such managers as George Lederer, David Henderson, Kirke La Shelle, John C. Fisher, F. C. Whitney, Klaw & Erlanger, the Shuberts and Elliott, Comstock & Gest."

By B. J. TIERNAN,

Deputy of the Chorus Equity Association of America, with the Municipal Opera Company.

THE wonderful municipal theater of St. Louis stands par excellence in North America, if not in the world. The natural beauty of the stage is unsurpassed, and the auditorium, especially when filled, as we have seen it so often, is a sight never to be forgotten.

Having a beautiful natural stage, its own intrinsic beauty should always be the first consideration. Trying to improve it by bad camouflage is to be deplored. The great fault lies in the fact that the designer and the artist cannot forget the ordinary theater, and continue to work along its technique. In consequence, the real full stage of the municipal theater has not been used this season, although an attempt was made in "Robin Hood." In nearly every production the picture has been squatty or jammed together, instead of using more freedom and distant effects.

The only novel idea, if it can be so termed, of the season, was the wall with illuminated panels at the opening of "The Mikado;" and probably the worst scene, which this city ought to know how to produce, was the beer garden in "A Waltz Dream." The cluster of red lights about the orchestral stand, on the stage, was so glaring that all else, even the principals, was subjugated to second or third place.

And the designers should take a course in step-building or quit. In "The Firefly," when I was coming down the steps as the gardener with Miss Pavloska, we both would have ended in disaster if we had not been caught by the men below. And must that straight-lined hedge, with its columns at every angle, do service in everything? Designers, look at garden magazines and garden architectural works, and so give variety—not always a straight line across the stage. You should have a fine scenic artist—a Voegelin or an Urban is none too good.

And, in the chorus, must there be naught but youth and beauty forever, as in the steretoyped musical comedy? What artist would think of a pageant or picture composed of masses, without the necessary contrast of medium and old age?

A system of subdued lighting back stage is to be recommended. It might save lawsuits, or at least painful bruises. Likewise chairs or benches should be provided, at least for the girls, so that they might rest between waits. This is always done in first-class companies. In addition, why must the members of the chorus who are strangers here be compelled to accept checks which they often have difficulty in exchanging, owing to the arrogance of certain persons in refusing to cash them on the grounds, unless it suits their whims or fancy?

The costumes have probably been the best that could be secured here. In the future, an effort should be made to get something of lighter weight. Some of these costumes were made to be used at the North Pole. The footgear—shoes and sandals—furnished by the costumer have been abominable.

The acoustics of the theater are wonderful and probably cannot be improved upon. The auditorium, when the pergola on the right is finished, will be perfect. Whoever conceived it should receive a vote of thanks from the city. It will remain one of the greatest, if not the first, feature of the city. But if the so-called municipal opera company is ever to measure up to the auditorium, something heroic must be done.

Mr. Max Bendix, the musical director of the company, in an article published recently by the Post-Dispatch, most ably delineated a policy for operatic productions that excels anything that has yet come to my notice. If the present promoters of the municipal opera company sincerely intend, as the constant blare and noise is, to give opera for the education of St. Louis, and not for the almighty dollar, they are certainly going after it in a peculiar way.

The municipal opera company was last year and this the largest opera company in the country. Judging by the attendance and the applause, it pleased the masses. If this is the object of the promoters, where does the educational part come in that is noised everywhere? I have yet to see the first step taken in that direction. With from $3000 to $5000 taken in each night, surely something better is warranted for next season. The citizens are entitled to it—but will they get it? You'll have to show me! They may, when you get heads of the various departments that measure up to the job, regardless of what the rabble says.

Everyone has talked of the amount of time and labor expended on these productions, but has anyone thought that it might be possible to save a lot of both, by the introduction of system? Why should not the principals have their parts a month ahead and come to the rehearsals letter perfect, instead of having to learn their parts at rehearsals and thus wasting everybody's time? Should not the musical director be capable of making all necessary cuts before rehearsal, so that no time will be wasted on numbers not used?

Likewise, the stage manager should, at his home or office, lay out every bit of business days before he puts on a show, so that he has written down every gesture or action wanted for lyrics or dialogue and can go ahead because he knows what he wants and doesn't have to try things over and over until he finds something satisfactory. One man should drill the chorus and another the principals. Then, when both are ready, they can easily and simply be put together into a whole.

Instead, we have had four directors, who work "ad lib," chew the rag and forget that there is anyone else but themselves. Is it any wonder that the chorus lay down at times and got so discouraged that half of them did not care what they did?

What surprises me most is that the local choristers, who are not tied down by contract, who live at home and are to a degree safe from gouging and profiteering, owing to being acquainted, should so meekly submit to the treatment handed out. Do their parents know the real facts, or did necessity compel them to shut their eyes and ears?

To most of us from New York this engagement and place will always be one of detestation. That it was bad last year is demonstrated by the fact that of several scores of choristers who worked here then, we had only six to work here again this summer. The real management that knows how to treat people keeps them year in and year out. We shall be a happy lot when this "nightmare" comes to a close and we can forget it while preparing for next season's work.

As all know, without the chorus a musical production of any kind is nil. No performance should be given at the municipal theater in St. Louis with less than 75 to 100 experienced choristers, if you wish artistic results; the size of the stage demands it; otherwise it will look bare.

How is this material to be obtained? It goes without saying that the nucleus must be engaged from New York. You need singers who are sprightly and experienced, and who have a repertoire; and likewise, 16 good dancers. St. Louis itself is unable to supply all these requirements. The question rises: Will you always be able to get the kind of choristers you should have after this proposition gets to be well known?

I fear you will have much difficulty. According to the present policy, there is nothing, artistic or otherwise, that is an inducement for a good chorister to come here, unless he is broke and in dire need of the dollar.

In New York the municipal opera company—a misnomer—was represented to us as a city affair—the city guaranteeing and being responsible for our pay. On arriving we learned that it is an independent company and that the city does not hold itself responsible for anything—merely allowing the company to play in its park.

The New York members of the chorus were forced to pay a commission to get the job, while the St. Louis members paid nothing. To be sure that the benefiting parties got theirs, the commission was taken out of each week's salary by the local management, in spite of the understanding that each chorister was to pay

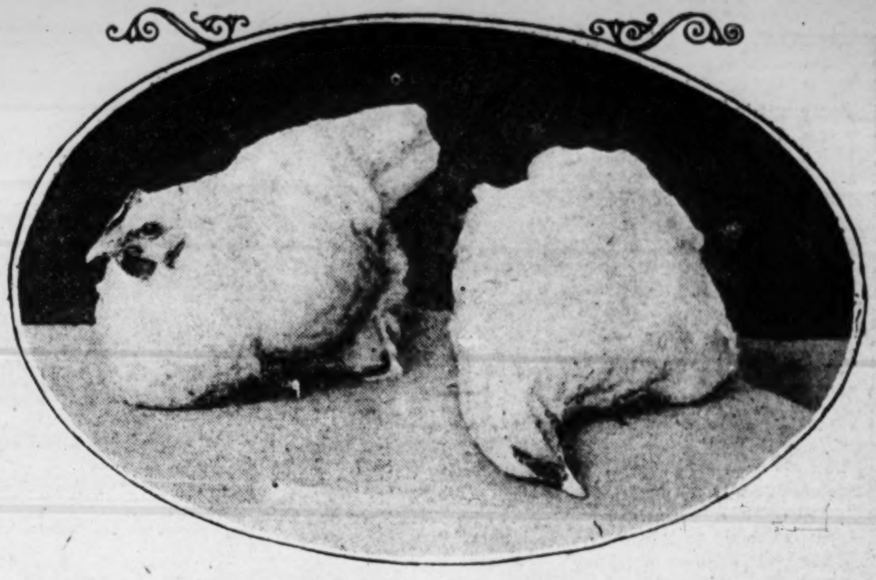
Quick Triumph of Science in Conquering the Deadly Botulinus Germ

Serum perfected by Dr. Robert Graham of University of Illinois not only combats the bacillus which caused so many deaths from infected olives, recently, but it also operates against forage, or silage poisoning, among livestock and fowls -o- -o- -o-



Botulism in chickens. The fowl on the left was treated with antitoxin and survived, while the other died.

THE fascinating way in which science moves her wonders to perform is again illustrated by the triumph of Dr. Robert Graham of the department of Illimal pathology of the University of Illinois, in perfecting a new serum—in the process of which were brought together three isolated sets of phenomena which apparently had little or no connection.

The first set of phenomena occurred in the animal world. For some 70 years a disease fatal to horses and often approaching the proportions of an epizootic has been reported in various parts of the United States. Among farmers the disease was known as forage or silage poisoning, staggers and "Kansas horse plague." Scientists termed it cerebrospinal meningitis, cerebritis or cryptogamic poisoning.

The second link in the chain came to light in distant Belgium. In 1908 Van Ermenger, a scientist of that country, succeeded in isolating, from an infected ham, a germ which he named Bacillus Botulinus, and which he declared to be the primary agent of meat poisoning in man. To the acute disease produced in the human body he gave the name of botulism.

Then, for the third phenomenon in the series, there occurred, a few months ago, as all remember, five groups of deaths in New York City, Detroit, Memphis, Canton, O., and Kalispell, Mont., all of which were traced to the consumption of canned ripe olives.

A report just made public by Dr. Graham announces, first, that Bacillus Botulinus, which for many years was supposed to grow only in canned and pickled meats, or in canned vegetables containing meat products, is now known to develop in vegetables also, and to have been the specific cause of death in the ripe olive cases, and likewise in a fatal outbreak of food poisoning in man at Decatur, Ind., caused by eating canned string beans and mangoes.

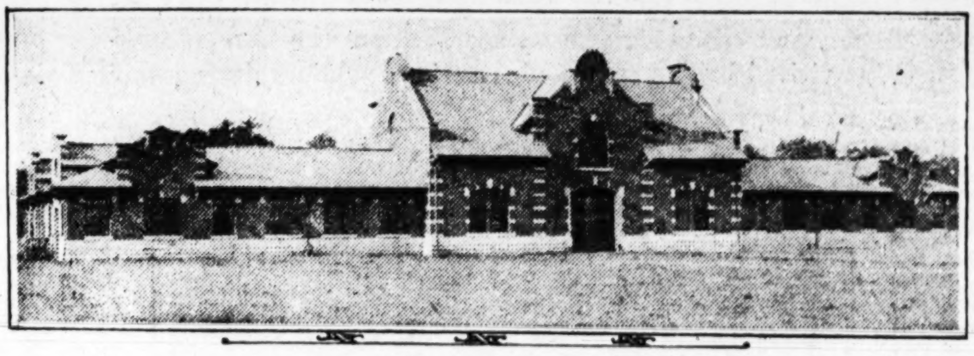
Secondly, Dr. Graham announces that if Bacillus Botulinus is not the identical germ causing forage poisoning in animals, it is at least so nearly analogous that the one serum will combat not only food poisoning in man but also silage poisoning in cattle. This scientist's labors were brought dramatically to the attention of the public in January, when an airplane carrying his new antitoxin sped from the University of Illinois to New York City, to save the lives of Angelo and Domenico del Bene, poisoned by eating ripe olives.

Dr. Graham declares that his serum, tried by long and careful experimentation, will, when properly administered, prevent poisoning and save life both in human beings and in animals. He also points out several methods to prevent infection among animals, so that food that has caused illness or death may be fed without great danger, if preliminary treatment is given. Cooking to the point of boiling, exposure to sunlight for several days, and thorough washing in water are procedures recommended.

He also issues a warning against handling contaminated forage or grain, and especially discourages veterinarians or owners from the common habit of chewing or tasting suspected animal feeds, or handling them with abrasions on the hands. Even a minute amount of the toxin, he declares, is known to produce serious, or even fatal, illness in man.

Particular emphasis is placed on the fact that milk from animals afflicted with silage poisoning should be discarded, or if used, only after boiling. This is because the botulinus bacillus, unlike other true toxins, seems capable of withstanding gastric and intestinal digestive processes. Even the tetanus germ, so fatal when introduced into the blood, and the diphtheria bacillus, so deadly to the throat tissues, are declared to be reduced to relative inertness when swallowed and acted upon by the digestive juices.

As to the destruction of the botulinus germ in canned meats and vegetables, the Department of Agriculture announced in June, after an exhaustive investigation, that poisoning from olives and other products may be eliminated if the contents, in the process of packing, are sterilized by a heat of not less than 240 degrees. The experts found that the trouble was not due to the glass or tin containers, but to inadequate methods used for sterilizing the botulinus bacillus.



Laboratory of Animal Pathology, University of Illinois, where Dr. Graham's experiments were conducted.

Dr. Graham's report states that during certain seasons throughout the Mid-West and Southern States an epizootic form of silage poisoning, or an analogous disease, has prevailed. It is estimated that thousands of horses were fatally affected in the Mississippi Valley during the summer and fall of 1912. The heaviest losses were reported in Kansas and Nebraska, but sporadic outbreaks extended to Iowa, Illinois and Kentucky. This or a similar disease, sometimes called "Kansas horse plague," made its appearance in South Dakota during September, 1918. State officials estimated that 150 horses succumbed before the outbreak subsided, while in the summer and fall of 1919 approximately 1000 fatal cases were reported by the State of Colorado.

That the germ causing some types of forage poisoning is analogous to, if not, indeed, identical with, the germ causing death in human beings from canned meat and vegetable products, is indicated by the following facts established in the laboratory and cited by Dr. Graham:

1. The botulinus bacillus, or a closely related organism, has been isolated from grain and ensilage associated with natural outbreaks of the disease in horses, mules, cattle and swine.

'. Botulinus bacilli isolated from a human spleen and from canned beans and vegetables associated with the outbreak of human food poisoning in Decatu proved highly virulent and fatal to animals. But the poisoning artificially induced in animals proved amenable to a serum prepared against a strain isolated from infected forage.

The scientist goes on to state that from a clinical standpoint also, the disease in animals resembles that in human beings but he cautiously states that the identity of the two has not yet been definitely established.

Van Ermengem proved, according to Dr. Graham, that injections of nonfatal doses of botulinus bacilli into animals result in the development of an antitoxic serum. Guinea pigs were used by Dr. Graham in his experiments and in producing his serum.

This bacillus, says Dr. Graham apparently does not develop to any extent in the human or animal body, the temperature seeming unfavorable to its maximum propagation and toxin production. But it is developed and elaborated on grain and forage stored in barns or silos during certain seasons of the year, when temperature and natural conditions are favorable. It further appears that auspicious conditions for its growth arise during the time when animal feeds are stored en masse in open fields.

"It seems well established," the report continues, "that the causative factor of the disease known as forage poisoning enters the animal body with food and drinking water. Yet a physical examination of suspected feeds may provide little definite evidence regarding the relation of the feed to the toxic agent.

"Rations may appear wholesome, and yet be highly poisonous. Visible molds upon feed have not yet been established as an infallible guide in selecting the feed involved. In fact, our observations on contaminated feeds suggest that judgment of the poisonous quality of feed based upon the prevalence of the organisms is at least questionable and often unreliable. The development of molds upon feeds should therefore be regarded as of secondary importance in the outbreaks of forage poisoning. Stated in another way feeds free from molds should be regarded with suspicion in an outbreak of forage poisoning, until their wholesomeness has been established.

"The presence of toxin in feed, if excessive, may be detected by washing portions of the sample in sterile distilled water after allowing it to macerate at least 12 hours at icebox or room temperature. The watery decoction of feed should then be passed through sterile gauze, through filter paper and finally through a tested Bakerfield filter. The presence of appreciable toxin may be determined by injecting 1 to 4 mills subcutaneously into guinea pigs, or by giving similar quantities by mouth."

Water supplies, says Dr. Graham, may become a of timbers. The schooner dropped back, and in the faint light from the deck lanterns of the steamer and from her port-side light which stained the scene a dull red, Capt. Farish could see that the whole bow of the wooden vessel had been ground and torn away, leaving a vast, cavernous opening into which the sea was rushing like a mill race. Even as he gazed, the wreck sank lower and lower in the water. From her decks came the cries of doomed men, and as she disappeared in the darkness astern, the engine-room telegraph of the Acantha clanged below. On the bridge the old man caught a glimpse of the first officer, half clad, but cool and collected, with his hand on the telegraph handle.

Astern there came a terrific wail that cut the darkness, and then a tense silence. With a catch at his heart that ended in a sob, Farish knew that the schooner had disappeared, taking with her the only men afloat who could tell why she had run down and rammed the great steamer.

Up from below poured the frightened passengers in all stages of undress. Stewards and officers ran out among them, endeavoring to quell the tumult, and Capt. Farish felt rather than saw that panic had seized upon the ship. He knew that Capt. Bennington had lost his head completely and was issuing conflicting orders that only served to increase the confusion. Groome strove hard to bring order out of the chaos that was beginning to reign, but he was handicapped by the law of the sea, which makes the captain king aboard his ship. The Acantha was listed somewhat to port and down by the bow. Capt. Bennington thrust his white face over the port-bridge rail, stared anxiously and affrighted at the wreck below him, and screamed an order.

"Out boats!" he cried. "Pass the word for boat stations!"

Capt. Farish saw Groome catch at his commander and try to show him that the time for abandoning ship had not arrived, but the man thrust him aside furiously and reiterated his orders. His fear spread instantly to the affrighted crowds below him, who on the moment began a rush for the boats. Of the scene that followed those who partook of it had never a clear vision or remembrance. Farish found himself standing at the rent side of the ship with the carpenter who had come up to report that while she was taking water, but two of the forward compartments had been opened, and that if the bulkheads held there was no danger. He shoved the man toward the bridge.

"Tell him!" he cried. "For God's sake tell him there is no danger!"

He saw the carpenter make his way to where the frenzied captain was hurling wild orders right and left, and cry his news. He saw the momentary pause, and the disbelief in Bennington's face, and he saw him strike the carpenter to one side. Groome threw up his hand in a gesture of despair and drawing a revolver from his pocket sprang below to clear a space about the first boat he came to. Farish, with a deep groan of despair at the folly of it all, turned to render what aid he could and found himself beside President Rothwell, who, with his wife and child beside him, was shoving a frenzied way to the No. 4 boat on the starboard side.

"Jimmy!" cried Capt. Farish. "Stop it, man! There's no danger, I tell you! That coward up there will have the souls of everyone aboard on his conscience in half an hour if you don't stop him!"

Rothwell looked at him crazily, and a desperate fear shone in his wild eyes.

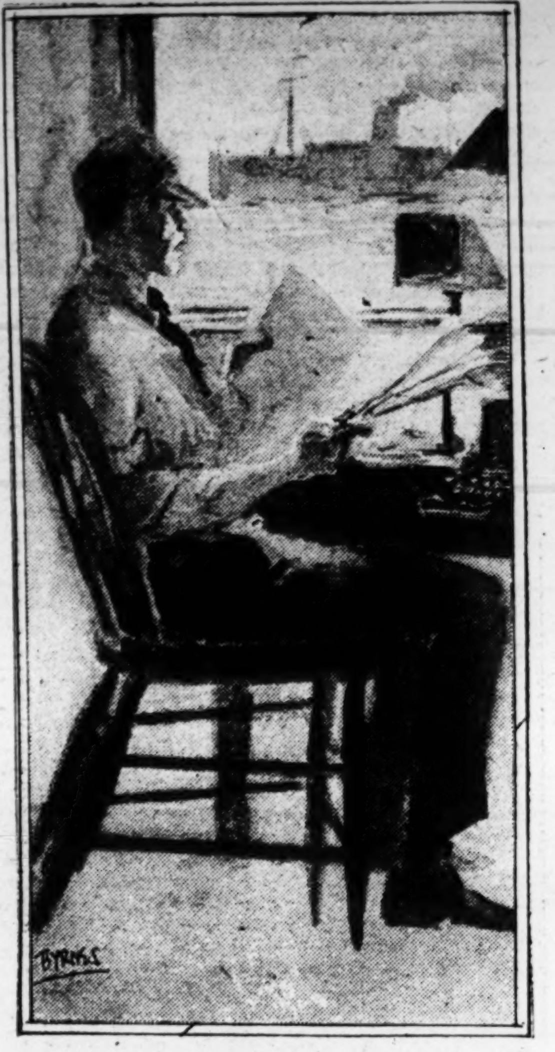
"He knows! He knows!" he gasped. "Get me aboard a boat, captain! I'll give you $10,000 dollars to get me aboard a boat!"

There was the hoarse note of a siren that boomed even above the roar of the Acantha's exhaust pipes, and down to leeward shone the myriad lights of a liner. The sound caught Bennington's frenzied ear, and seizing the whistle cord he sent a distress call screaming over the waves. Capt. Farish stopped suddenly and a grim smile came to his face. Stepping to the side of the ship he looked over. There was considerable sea still running, but nothing dangerous. The Acantha was fairly steady.

Fifteen minutes later the sea was dotted with the boats of the Acantha and those of the Vulcan, the steamer that had come up. Bennington had made his wireless operator send a distress call, and the Vulcan's skipper, knowing nothing of the actual condition of affairs, but that a ship was in distress and lives apparently in danger, called away his boats like the brave, alert seaman that he was, and proceeded to take the passengers off.

Dawn was beginning to break over the horizon's edge when the last of the boats pulled away from the rolling Acantha, now deep down by the head. Capt. Bennington had dropped hurriedly into the third boat away, and just before he slid down the falls Capt. Farish had seen him throw his cap aside and remove his uniform coat. The sight nauseated him. Mrs. Rothwell stood at his side as he turned away.

"The coward!" she breathed, and looked into Farish's drawn face, then laid her hand upon his arm.



The sun had risen when he looked up again.

"Tell me, is there great danger?" she asked.

He laughed shortly.

"If I was in command I'd forbid a man or woman to leave the ship," he said shortly.

"But Jimmy says"—she began, and stopped with a flush.

"There is no danger," he reiterated quietly. "Still, you must go with him, of course."

"Helen! Helen!" cried a frenzied voice in the shadows, and President Rothwell dashed up and clutched his wife by the arm. "Here! Hurry! Hurry! In this boat!"

He dragged her away in his terror and Farish saw him force her into a boat already well filled. She turned to ask him an anxious question, and Farish could see him give her a hasty assurance. The order was given and the falls were loosed, while the boat dropped away down the 60 towering feet of the sheer side of the Acantha, with the men fending it off from the ship's side as it slid down toward the tumbling waters below.

Contemptuously Capt. Farish watched the last boat load pull away in the faint light, laughed grimly to himself as he saw it hoisted up the side of the waiting Vulcan, and gripped his hands with rage as the great ship gathered way and resumed her course to the south.

He turned with a sob of disgust, to find Groome, his face cut and scratched and his uniform in rags, standing behind him, with tears in his eyes. He started, then put out his hand quickly and gripped that of the first officer. For a moment they stared into each other's eyes and then grinned understandingly. There was a shuffling above them.

"He'yo!" said a rather faint small, voice, and both men looked up to see a pathetically small figure in a long nightdress peering through the rails of the bridge. "Say, what'll we do now, Uncle Ben?" the figure demanded.

Capt. Farish was up the bridge ladder in two bounds, and there was a wonderful light in his eyes as he caught the boy up in his great arms and tossed him aloft.

"Do?" he cried with a roar of joy. "Do?" he reiterated. "Why, we'll take the old hooker in to port and ask no odds of any man, nor help, either."

* * * * * * * *

There was a frantic woman aboard the Vulcan shortly after the last boat had been hoisted up her side—a woman who had lost the treasure of her heart, a 4-year-old boy, and her only child. The ship's doctor had his hands full from then on until the Vulcan berthed at Havana, where the woman, a wild, grief-stricken wreck of herself, was taken ashore, clinging, fighting hysterically, and demanding to be taken back to where her little child had gone down.

The story was well told, and not a word of Capt. Bennington or his conduct ever reached the public. The passengers did not see, and the officers, to whom his panic had communicated itself, could not accuse him. Two days the story lasted, and the skipper of the Vulcan was the recipient, and justly, of the praise that was lavishly bestowed. Then the matter was dropped from the public prints and slipped back into the history of the sea. The Acantha was written off the marine register, and only one solitary word followed her name: "Foundered."

* * * * * * * *

There is a marine observatory that holds a very keen-eyed man with a pair of excellent binoculars ready to his hand at a point quite close to Cape Henry, and he had been lazily preparing himself to turn over his watch to his comrade when the sun began to show redly above the watery horizon to the eastward. He yawned and glanced at the calendar, which showed that four days had elapsed since the Acantha had slid out of the Vulcan's view. Tom Terry had been reading the latest account in the New York Herald, and he raised his eyes to see a rift of smoke across the sky. Perfunctorily he picked up the glasses at his hand and focused them upon the slowly approaching ship.

"Um," he muttered. "Too far off yet, but she looks like one of the Blue Ball boats."

He bent his eyes again on the Herald. The sun had risen and the sea was glittering with its radiance when he looked up again. The big steamer he could now see was well down by the head and was moving slowly. From the Roads two tugs and a pilot boat sped out toward the newcomer. Suddenly Terry dropped his paper and strained his eyes through the glasses.

"Good heavens!" he cried. "It's the Acantha! I'd know that raking oval funnel of hers in hades!"

For an instant wonderment and amazement overcame him, and then he fell upon the telegraph key. An instant later the world began to learn that the lost Acantha was limping home between the capes and that she seemed able to weather more of the Atlantic swells.

To the pilot who stepped aboard to find two weary, dragged-out men with blear eyes, and grimy hands and clothes, standing at the gangway amid a litter of smashed and splintered plates and tackle, they said in reply to his question of astonishment:

"She's all right. Take her in!"

The pilot peered at them wonderingly, then turned to Capt. Ben.

"Is your name Farish?" he asked. And when the old man had nodded, he put forth his hand. "I'm proud to know a man," he said. "There'll be a pretty bit of salvage here for you two."

Capt. Farish grinned and turned aside. From around the corner of the deckhouse came a small figure in a dirty white sailor suit, wearing a cap—miles too large—of a captain of the Blue Ball Line. This diminutive figure lined up beside the old skipper and saluted the pilot gravely. The pilot looked inquiringly at the captain, who nodded soberly at him.

"There'll be no salvage here, my lad," he said. "We've got one of the owners aboard."

An hour later a special train was hurrying a praying, thankful, weeping woman northward to where the said owner was eating ice cream in a large hotel dining room and assuring an admiring horde of reporters that not only had Capt. Benjamin Farish not resigned as commodore of the Blue Ball Line, but that he was not going to resign, either, but was going to stay right on the job, and that he, the said owner—aged 4—had the utmost, perfect and sincere confidence in him, and he would now have some more ice cream.

Force With Which a Whip Strikes a Horse

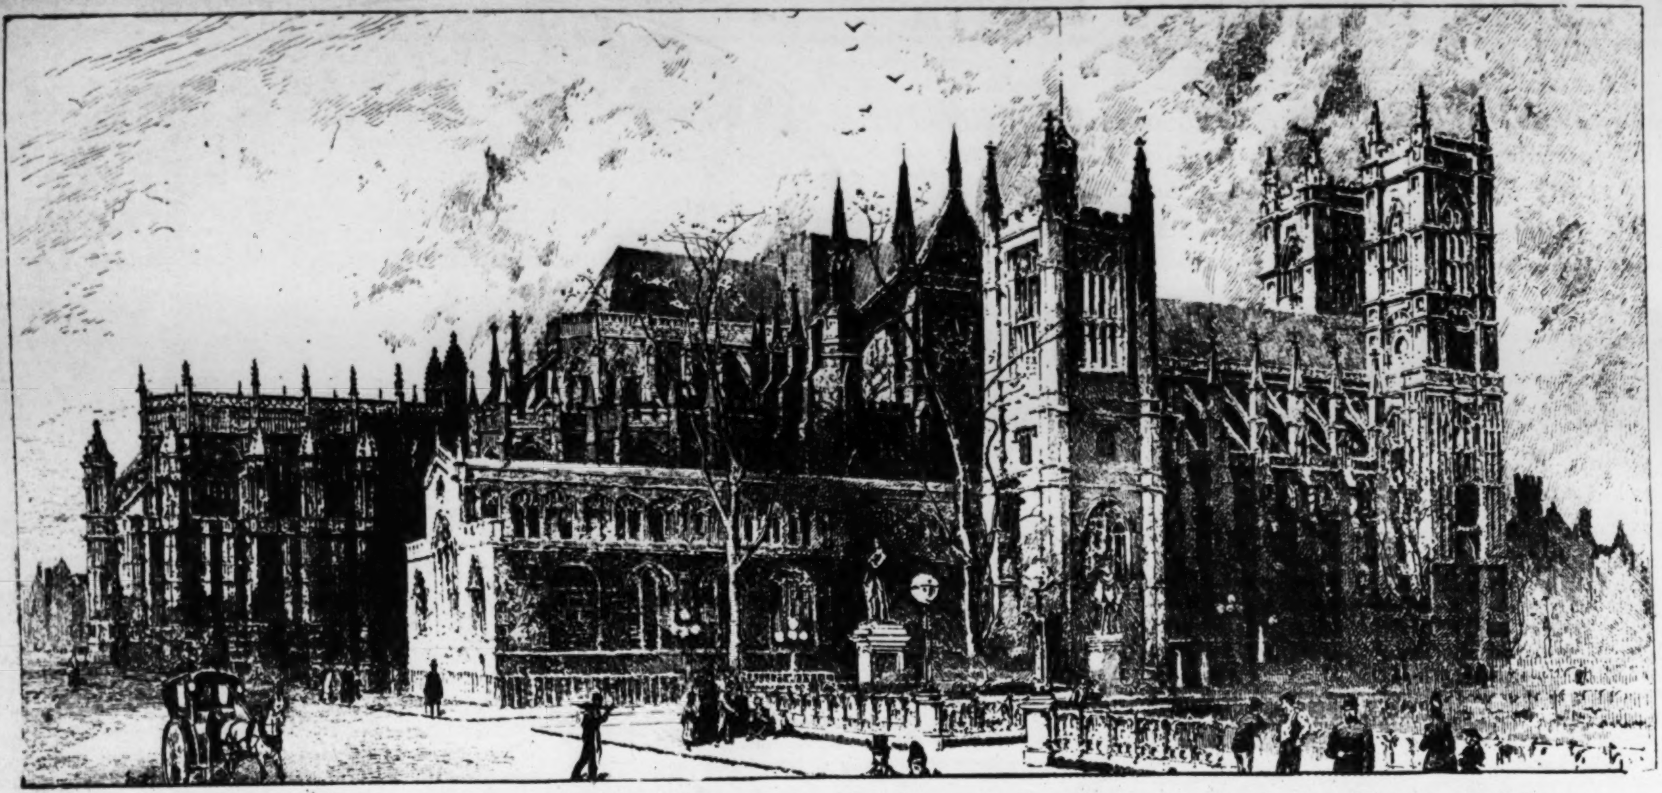
TO TEST the force with which a whiplash strikes the flanks of a horse, M. R. Gaudin of the French veterinary journel, Le Marechal Moderne, has been making some interesting experiments. He got a carter to lash a large lump of moist clay. Under the action of the whip the lash penetrated a certain distance into the clay and the holes thus made remained.

M. Gaudin then made other experiments on similar lumps of clay to ascertain what force was required to produce similar holes. He found that with a coachman's whip a blow equivalent to 75 pounds could be given, with a carter's whip, one of 119 pounds if the lash be square, and of 145 pounds if it be round, and with that of a rattail whip one of 313 pounds.

Although a horse's skin is less sensitive than our own, we can imagine what pain a lash in the hands of a strong man may give when we consider how a blow of only three or four pounds on the palm or the back of a boy's hands brings tears to his eyes.

M. Gaudin's experiments prove that it is not the snapper on the end of the whip that cuts most deeply, but the lash itself.

Westminster Abbey Is on Verge of Bankruptcy



Westminster Abbey, with St. Margaret's Church in the foreground. From a sketch by Herbert Railton.

"We can no longer pay our way," is lament of Dean in issuing appeal to all English-speaking peoples to subscribe $1,250,000 for repairs—Most sacred and historic shrine of British Empire has been tomb of sovereigns since Edward the Confessor, and crowning place since William the Conqueror—Was visited by thousands of American soldiers during war

IF THE public were informed that the Pyramids were insolvent, or that the Sphinx had fallen into the hands of a receiver, there could be little more astonishment than that attending the recent announcement that Westminster Abbey, the symbolic center of the British empire, is on the verge of bankruptcy. The world has come to regard this ancient and revered pile, which has stood the storm and stress of centuries, as indestructible and eternal—forgetful of the fact that it is only through the constant care of a great staff of artisans that the vast fabric is sustained and, where necessary, renewed and restored.

"We are no longer able to pay our way," is the emphatic language used in an appeal just issued by the Rt. Rev. Herbert E. Ryle, Bishop and Dean of Westminster. He reviews circumstances which "have brought us to the verge of bankruptcy," and asserts that "we are faced with a desperate state of things."

In these straits the Dean implóres subscriptions to the amount of $1,250,000—of which he would devote $500,000 to immediate and urgent repairs, and $750,000 to the establishment of a fund through which, in the future, the whole abbey may be kept in a constant condition of complete efficiency and repair.

The appeal is addressed not only to the people of the entire British empire, but "to our brothers and sisters of the great republic of America." It is recalled that thousands of American soldiers visited the abbey during the war, and that on July 4, 1918, a special service was celebrated in honor of Independence Day, while the Stars and Stripes floated with the British flag from the abbey tower.

Immense rises in the cost of labor and materials are assigned as the chief causes of the abbey's difficulties. The halcyon days, as reflected in some of the ancient account rolls, are passed, when stone could be purchased for 2 pounds a load, when John the Mason was content to toil for 3 shillings a week, and when the Clerk of the Works felt passing rich with his salary of 52 shillings a year, accompanied by a word of praise for his assiduous labor and the gift of a furred gown to add dignity to his office.

The abbey is still attempting to operate, says the Dean, under a sum of money which was fixed more than 50 years ago for the maintenance of the fabric and the services of the church. It is true that in the last 30 years some $500,000 has been expended upon the building. This was obtained partly through the suppression of one of the abbey canonries and partly through subsidies supplied from time to time by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, in answer to piteous appeals. The abbey is at present indebted to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for several thousands of pounds, borrowed for essential repairs. At the same time, the appeal continues, "the most historic and most beloved sacred building of the empire is in danger of entering upon a phase of steady structural deterioration." There is urgent need for the repair of the two great western towers, the reparation of the external stone work of Henry VII's Chapel, once famed as "the wonder of the world;" the renovation of a large portion of the parapet running round the roof, and the repair of the clerestories and flying buttresses. Besides, a large outlay is required for the maintenance of the much-decayed cloisters and the ancient dwellings attached to the abbey. King George, it was announced, has subscribed $5000, while the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have made a gift of $50,000.

There will be widespread interest in the statement that the space is exhausted which has been devoted to memorials and burial places of the illustrious dead of the empire. Should the subscriptions exceed the sum requested, there is a plan on foot, through the purchase of adjoining ground, for providing ample space, and at the same time securing for all time "the splendid view of the abbey and the ancient Jewel Tower from the terrible possibility of enormous and disproportionate new buildings." It is promised that a roll containing the names of all contributors of $25 and upwards will be preserved among the historic documents of Westminster Abbey.

King Henry VII's Chapel, the external stonework of which is declared in danger, was once described as follows by Washington Irving: "The eye is astonished by the pomp of architecture and the elaborate beauty of sculptural detail. The very walls are wrought into universal ornament, incrusted with tracery, and scooped into niches crowded with the statues of saints and martyrs. Stone seems, by the cunning labor of the chisel, to have been robbed of its weight and density, suspended aloft as if by magic, and the fretted roofs achieved with the wonderful minuteness and airy security of a cobweb."

The site of Westminster Abbey was formerly an island in the marshes bordering the Thames, and there, according to tradition, stood a Temple of Apollo. This structure being providentially overthrown by an earthquake, King Lucius is said to have replaced it with a Christian Church in 170 A. D. This was in turn destroyed by an irruption of Saxons, but in the seventh century Sebert, King of the East Saxons, having been converted, refounded the church "to the honor of God and St. Peter." Westminster Abbey is still the Abbey of St. Peter, and there is a legend that the apostle went in person to consecrate his new shrine. To prove it, the cope which the saint wore on that occasion is still preserved at the abbey.

In the eleventh century Edward the Confessor, an exile in Normandy, is said to have made a vow that if he returned in peace to England he would make a pilgrimage to the tomb of St. Peter at Rome. From this hinted at. They want a younger man, who might act with more decision, he says." He sat down on a cushioned locker and there was pain in his weatherbeaten face.

"It's pretty tough, Tommy," he went on, with a catch in his voice. "And to get it handed to you like that. An' by—him! Why, I was nurse to that boy, Tom. I brought him up and taught him his letters aboard the Laura. I made him the first pair of pants he ever owned out of an old lug sail, an' he used to crawl all over me an' call me 'Uncle Ben.' Why, he never called me anything else but that till this mornin' an' then it was 'Capt. Farish.' I taught him navigation and was governess for him. Then the old man sent him off to school, and he used to spend holidays aboard with us. Then he went to Harvard, an'—good Lord!—I remember like it was yesterday when he walked into th' old office down on South street with the fool clothes an' a window in his eye, an' how th' old man flapped him over his knees. Jimmy took his meals off a capstan head for a week after that. Now he's all mixed up with that society outfit, an' it's ruined him since th' old man went below for keeps. Not but what his wife's a good girl, but she wants 11 forks before she can eat her dinner. An' th' boy's th' livin' image of th' little Jimmie I used to hold on my knees at 4-year-old. He was in here last trip down, askin' th' same questions his daddy asked an' sittin' up there like his daddy did"——

The old man dropped his head into his hands and sat thus for a full minute. Standing up suddenly he dashed the drops from his eyes and squared his great shoulders.

"I'll come back as a passenger, Tom," he said strangely. "Me, a passenger!"

* * * * * * * *

When the Acantha shoved her nose outside the breakwater at Porto Martinez, a heavy gray sea raced swiftly up and slapped her on the port bow with an insistence that sent a shiver through the ship from stem to her earnest propellers, and passed on its way to break in a shower of foam on the heavy stones of the piers. It was the herald of the salt brethren that majestically followed, five to the mile—the great combers that rolled clear across from the other side of the world in their serried ranks of liquid menace. The Acantha shivered, hesitated, seemed to take a long breath, and then with a long swaying plunge that buried her sharp bow over the hawse holes, settled herself down for a long drive up the coast with a comfortable, settled, 15-degree roll and a rhythmic pitch that brought a faint green tinge to the jaws of the passengers who were not on good terms with Father Neptune.

A tall, square-shouldered, wiry man of 60-odd, with a pair of keen blue eyes that had an alert, peering look in them, leaned against the weather rail on the boat deck. He was dressed in a suit of rough tweeds and wore a cap of the same material. His two gnarled hands gripped the rail and he stared ahead with a certain grimness that held something of affection in it. His lips showed closely set between the gray beard and mustache, and his broad chest heaved slowly. Occasionally his eyes sought the reaches of the bridge above him and forward of where he stood, and a sardonic gleam crept into the keen blue eyes when he caught sight of a blue-uniformed figure that paced briskly to and fro upon the structure.

Gradually the daylight faded and the stars began to glimmer from a watery sky that was swept with scurrying wisps of dark cloud. The bugle call for the first meal rang out, and the saloon and cabin ports began to glow with brilliance, but still the old man stood there at the rail, as motionless as the davit near which he leaned. The darkness crept down, and still he stood by the rail. Occasionally a steward or a seaman hurrying by glanced curiously at the old man and touched a cap, but he paid no heed. From forward came a thick-set figure in blue, and stepping close, laid a hand upon the silent man's arm.

"Going below for a bite of dinner, captain?" he asked, and gently shook the arm he held. The blue eye were turned upon him for an instant and the gray head moved negatively from side to side. There was a look of pain in the eye, too, that bothered the newcomer.

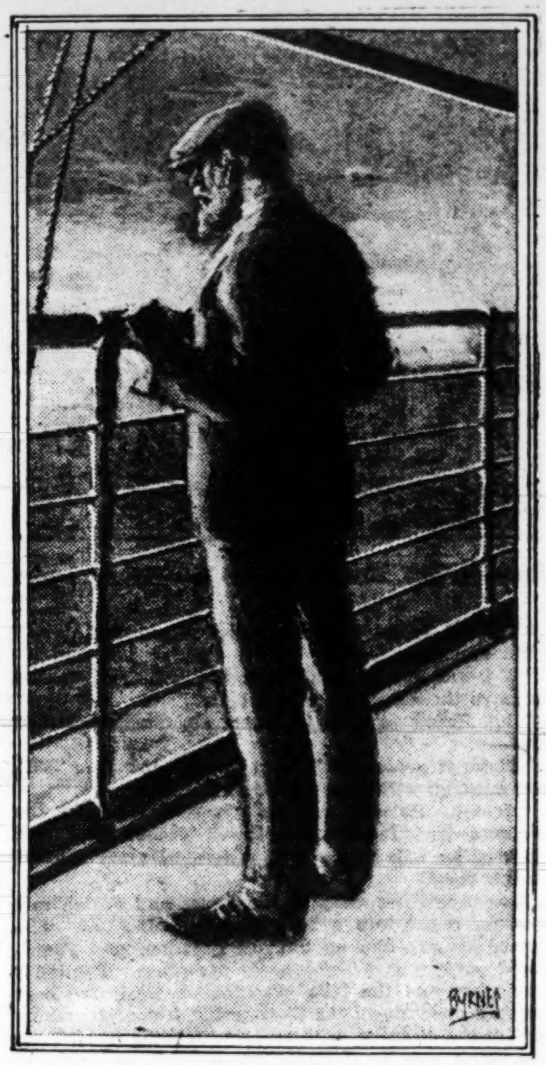
"I'll tell Allison to have something sent up to the cabin for you," the first officer said, but again the older man shook his head.

"No. Let me be, Tom," he replied hoarsely. "I've got to watch her awhile. No one else ever took her out of Martinez but me, and the old ship feels queer about it, I know. Let me be, old friend. I'll turn in after a while, maybe."

The other hesitated, but finally turned away and moved off down the deck. Two hours later he mounted the bridge and looked down on the deck below, and in the darkness, with the faint whiteness of the rushing seas alongside, he saw dimly the great shadow of Capt. Farish. He turned away with a sigh and cast a sneering look at the natty figure of the man giving pompous instructions to the quartermaster at the wheel. It was an illuminating tribute to the estimation in which the new skipper was held that the quartermaster solemnly winked at the lookout on the end of the bridge when the skipper turned away. Groome saw it and frowned, but, with the memory of the silent figure on the deck below, he affected not to have seen it.

Two nights in succession the stalwart figure of Capt. Farish kept watch and ward just below the sweep of the Acantha's bridge. He made no appearance on deck among the passengers in the day time at all. A quiet, dark-eyed lady, who paced the deck with a sturdy boy of 4 or 5 at her side, cast anxious glances here and there, and the child asked a thousand questions.

Capt. Bennington was of the social order. He rarely missed a meal in the saloon, but sat at the head of his table and kept the chatter going. He spent an hour now and then in the smoke room with the male passengers, and was to be seen gallantly escorting the ladies up and down the deck. The third day out the dark-eyed lady and the little boy stopped the natty Capt. Bennington.



His gnarled hands gripped the rail and he stared ahead with a certain grimness.

"What has become of Capt. Farish?" she asked. "Jimmy-boy here insists on seeing him. Do you know, captain?"

The boy stood sturdily before the skipper and looked into his face.

"What are you doing wiv Uncle Ben's clo's on?" he demanded. "I saw you up zere," indicating the bridge. "Uncle Ben won't let peoples up zere—only me," he finished gravely.

Capt. Bennington flushed slightly, and then smiled as he patted the small head.

"That is my bridge now, my little man," he said. "This is my ship, too. Your father gave it to me."

The boy looked at him straightly and distrustfully, and stepped back out of reach of the caressing hand.

"I don't believe you," he remarked quietly, after a long inspection, and shoving his hands in his diminutive pockets, marched off and through the companion, where he encountered Steward Allison.

"Where's my Uncle Ben?" he demanded insistently. "You show me. I went up to ze chartroom, but he isn't zere."

Allison looked up and down, then smiled.

"Hush," he whispered. "You go along up that there passage and bang on th' third door you see, an' call out that it's you."

The sturdy figure walked off and Allison dodged back into the lounge. Ten minutes afterward Mrs. James Prescott Rothwell, happening to glance through an open port of one of the deck cabins, observed her small son seated comfortably on the knee of Capt. Ben Farish, who was constructing a paper ship out of a sheet of notepaper. Two minutes later she tapped gently upon the cabin door and smiled when it was opened.

"Why I should be shut out, I can't see," she said, holding out her hand. "Surely I'm as old a friend as Jimmy-boy." Again she smiled into the old man's face. "Do I achieve an entrance?"

Capt. Farish looked at her earnestly and smiled for the first time in a week.

"Come in," he said, and swung the cabin door wide open.

The president of the Blue Ball Line stood talking to Capt. Bennington in the chartroom of the Acantha. Capt. Bennington had smilingly outlined his understanding of a commanding officer's duties.

"Sailoring is a business, as I understand it, Mr. Rothwell," he said. "Being a business, it ought to be conducted upon purely business lines. Satisfy the passengers and the shippers, and the dividends will take care of themselves. A skipper should be a business man, and I feel that the day of the elderly man with the romance of the sea in his brain, is done."

Young Mr. Rothwell smiled genially and laid his hand upon the captain's arm.

"My idea exactly, captain," he said. "I thought I was not mistaken in you. Age must give way to youth and business. You carry out your ideas and you will have no cause to complain of the treatment the Blue Ball will give you."

"Thank you, sir," replied Capt. Bennington. "I have no fear"——

From down in the bowels of the ship there was a dull report, followed instantly by a sibilant roaring sound that was terrifying to unaccustomed ears. Capt. Bennington started, and his face turned pale.

"What's that?" cried Rothwell, quickly, catching the other by the arm.

"I—I don't know—that is, I'm not sure," Bennington replied thickly.

Mr. Groome, the first officer, was standing not 10 feet away. He glanced curiously at the pair near him and then quietly picked up the engine-room telephone. The noise below died away.

"What was that, chief?" he asked. "Oh, all right," he went on, hanging up the instrument.

"Gasket blew out of the auxiliary steam line, sir," he reported, and went out on the bridge. From there he glanced back occasionally into the chartroom, and there was a deep line between his eyes that had never been there in the years he had served under Capt. Farish. It was the questioning doubt of one man for the wholeness of the other.

That night Capt. Farish heard eight bells strike out in the darkness and leaned again upon the weather rail of the old Acantha. The heavy seas raced up out of the darkness, their hissing tops showing faintly white against the surrounding blackness. The old man sighed and strained his eyes ahead. Suddenly, above the singing of the wind and the noise of the smashing waves, he heard a faint hail and pricked up his ears. There was an answering hail from the bridge, and then a strident shout. On the instant he heard Bennington's somewhat shrill voice and the running of footsteps upon the bridge. There was a terrific blast of the whistle and chorus of wild shouts, and before Capt. Farish could move there was a slowly crunching, smashing blow that seemed to grind into the very shivering vitals of the Acantha. The ship heeled over, and still over. There was a screaming of riven plates and rivets, the ripping of wood and the falling of gear, the rending sounds that go with torn metal, and the awful shaking of the ship.

Her engines still drove her remorselessly ahead, and the smashing and tearing of her wounded side made a terrifying babel of sound. From below there came screams of fright, shouts of men trying to quiet panic-stricken passengers, and the racing feet of the men who hurried to the point of disaster. At the first impact Capt. Farish had sprung around the deck and was thrown heavily backward by a piece of smashed timber that struck him on the shoulder. Looking quickly aloft he saw Bennington, white-faced and terror-stricken, leaning over the bridge rail, screaming useless questions at some dark figures on the forecastle below.

Capt. Farish picked himself up and peered into the smother before him. A hulking black shape that resolved itself into a six-masted schooner was grinding, a mass of broken timber, in the wounded side of the Acantha. As the big ship forged ahead, the schooner, which had evidently come driving down upon the steamer's bow from leeward, swung around with a further rending of her shattered bow. The smashing, grinding uproar continued, and with a final heave, much like a dog shaking himself free of a clinging enemy, the Acantha tore herself away from the schooner and rolled ahead with a terrific tearing

On the Tombs in Westminster

MORTALITY, behold and fear!
What a change of flesh is here!
Think how many royal bones
Sleep within this heap of stones;
Here they lie had realms and lands,
Who now want strength to stir their hands;
Where from their pulpits sealed with dust
They preach, "In greatness is no trust."
Here's an acre sown indeed
With the richest royal'st seed
That the earth did e'er suck in,
Since the first man died for sin;
Here the bones of birth have cried:
"Though gods they were, as men they died."
Here are sands, ignoble things,
Dropt from the ruined sides of Kings:
Here's a world of pomp and state,
Buried in dust, once dead by fate.

FRANCIS BEAUMONT (1584-1616).

pledge he was released on condition that he build a church and monastery in honor of the apostle. He erected a stately church, not unworthy to compare with the present structure in dignity, and was buried in it. The abbey church has been the chief place of royal burial, and from William the Conqueror onward every English sovereign has been crowned there except Edward V. Scanty but important remains of Edward's church persist in the present edifice. Henry III rebuilt the abbey, but it was almost destroyed by fire in 1298.

The church as it now exists was begun in 1344, and the work was carried on slowly, with many vicissitudes, for two centuries. With the exception of the two western towers, which were completed in 1740 by Hawkesmore, a pupil of Wren, and which Englishmen have never ceased deploring for their unfortunate exemplification of "Gothic humor," the structure as it stands today may be said to nave been completed in 1536 with this entry in the account rolls:

"Item for payntted peecis sett in to the west wyndowe and some of coloryd glass in other wyndowes . . . . xvjd."

From a relatively early day derives the practice of honoring distinguished poets with burial or a memorial in the abbey. A part of the south transept is famed under the name of Poets' Corner. Among the English-speaking poets interred or commemorated by monuments in this portion of the building are Chaucer, Spenser, Shakspeare, Ben Jonson, Dryden, Cowley, Tennyson, Browning and the American bard, Longfellow.

The custom of burying in the abbey Englishmen who had distinguished themselves on the sea or on the battlefield was first observed extensively under Cromwell, and has since been continued.

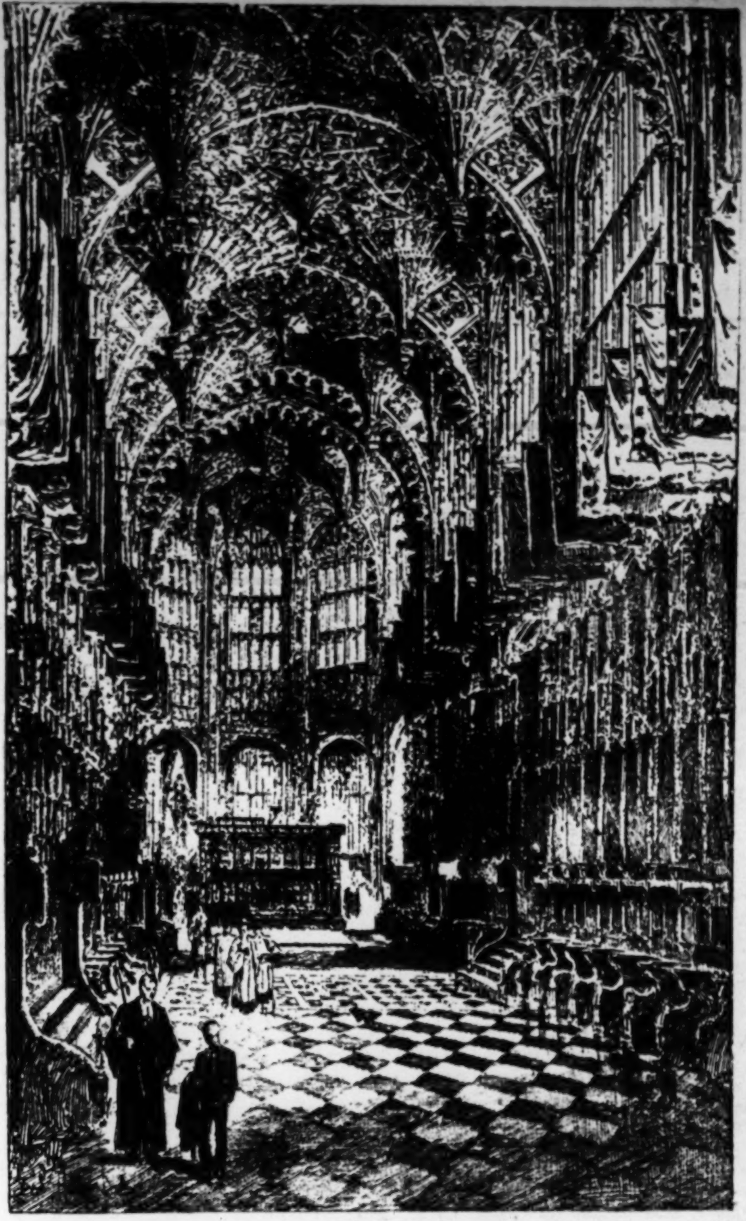
The two coronation chairs used by the King and Queen are in Edward the Confessor's Chapel. That used by the sovereign dates from the time of Edward I, and contains beneath its seat the stone of Scone, or the stone of destiny, on which the Celtic Kings were crowned. It is of Scottish origin, and tradition identifies it with the pillow upon which Jacob slept at Bethel. The second chair, for the Queen, was made for Mary, consort of William III.

One sovereign alone has twice occupied the coronation chair. It was Queen Victoria; for not only was she seated in it when she was crowned, but again on her jubilee, in 1887, she sat in the famous chair to receive the homage of her peoples and the salutations of the Princes of the earth. Only twice has the chair been removed from the floor of the abbey. On the first occasion it was removed to Westminster Hall, in order that Oliver Cromwell might be seated in it when he was proclaimed Protector. The other occasion was in 1915, when, as a precaution against air raids, it was removed to the crypt below the Chapter House, and was not restored until after the armistice.

The abbey church is the chief and central work of English art, and a great storehouse of medieval sculpture and painting. For the history of the early national school of English painting the works preserved there are of unmatchable importance.

No less has the abbey been a witness of the expansion of a little Saxon kingdom of nearly 1000 years ago to the world empire of today. In a tomb, seven feet below the ground, lie the mortal remains of Edward the Confessor, who died 954 years ago. On the north side lies Henry III, and hard by the tombs of Edward I and his Queen, Eleanor. On the other side rest Edward III and Queen Philippa, and Richard II and Queen Anne of Bohemia. Farther to the east is Henry V, and yet farther away, in Henry VII's Chapel, are the marvelous tomb and recumbent effigies of Henry VII and his wife.

And within the same limited area, the graves of Edward VI, Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth and Mary Queen of Scots; and the simple tablets with the names of William and Mary, Queen Anne, of George and George II. How much history is compressed in that little space!



Interior of the Henry VII Chapel, the most admired of all the Abbey's interior. Sketched by Herbert Railton.

Turning again to Poets' Corner, we find that the earliest bard buried in Westminster Abbey was Geoffrey Chaucer, who appears to have received this honor not at all on account of his "Canterbury Tales," but because of his position as Clerk of the Works. It recorded that he "fell into poverty in his old age." His burial occurred in 1400, and in 1599 the body of Edmund Spenser was interred nearby. It is recorded of the poet of "The Faery Queen" that "he died for lack of bread," but he had a public funeral, all the literary men of the day gathering about his grave and casting into it odes in his memory, together with the pens with which they were written.

Ben Jonson "died in great poverty" in a house on the north side of the abbey, and was buried in the nave in an upright position, having been promised during his lifetime "ground two by two" either by the King or the Abbot. His simple epitaph of four words, "O Rare Ben Jonson," was cut at the expense of Sir John Young, "who, walking here when the grave was covering, gave the fellow 18 pence to cut it."

Another poet, Butler, the writer of "Hudibras," also commemorated here, likewise died "in great poverty." Indeed, to no small number of the poets thus splendidly commemorated in the abbey, could be applied the epigram written on Butler:

"When Butler, needy wretch! was yet alive,
No generous patron would a dinner give.
Behold him, starved to death and turned to dust,
Presented with a monumental bust!
The poet's fate is here by emblem shown:
He asked for bread, and he received a stone."

John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham, set up the monument to John Dryden, who also, we read, "died in great poverty." David Garrick, the actor, was buried in the abbey in 1779, among the poets.

There are also numerous cenotaphs, or memorials, of poets and literary men who are buried elsewhere. Among them are memorials to Goldsmith, Coleridge, Thomson and Thackeray. There are memorials to Shakspeare and Milton, but the former sleeps at Stratford-on-Avon, and the latter at St. Giles. Charles Dickens lies in the south transept, contrary to his wish, for he desired to be buried at Rochester Cathedral. Dr. Samuel Johnson is unique in that he is buried in the abbey, but has his monument in St. Paul's.

At the time when Matthew Prior was buried at Westminster Abbey, the famous Francis Atterbury was Dean of Westminster. He looked upon the abbey as a sort of Pantheon, or heathen temple, and is said to have exacted concerning epitaphs that they must all be in Latin, and that none of them should mention Christianity. The Duke of Buckingham wrote an inscription for his own tomb in the abbey, containing the words, "Christum adveneror." The Dean had the offending words struck out.

If Saxon Harold was not the first King crowned at Westminster, then his great foe, William the Conqueror, was. It is recorded that while the ceremony was proceeding, his soldiers, alarmed by the cheers of the congregation, instead of rushing to his help, if they thought he was attacked, "hastened, with the strange instinct of their nation, to set fire to the buildings around the minster." The spectators rushed forth to save their dwellings, leaving the King and the Archbishop alone. William, it is said, trembled at the roar of the flames and the noise of the tumult, but the Archbishop stoutly completed the rites.

Many of the sculptured monuments in Henry VII's Chapel are from the chisel of the famous Italian artist, Torregiano, including the effigies of Henry VII and his Queen. The whole life and adventures of Torregiano make a curious story. Benvenuto Cellini said that he "was exceedingly well made, very bold, and had more the air of a soldier than of a sculptor, with his fierce gestures, his loud voice and his frowning eyebrows, was enough to frighten any man; and every day he talked of his feats among those beasts of Englishmen." When Cellini heard him acknowledge that it was he who had broken the nose of Michael Angelo, he refused to go to England with him. Torregio's end was of a piece with his life. He went to Spain to make a statue of the Virgin for a nobleman. They quarreled over the terms, and the sculptor, in his rage, broke the work in pieces. The nobleman denounced him to the Inquisition for sacrilege towards the Madonna—though a Madonna of his own making. Torregiano was cast into prison, and his temper so overcame him that he starved himself to death.

Henry VII built his chapel as a shrine for Henry VI, whom there was talk of canonizing. The Abbot of Westminster was charged 500 pounds for Henry VI's body, but his speculation was a failure, for the King was never made a saint.

Such are a few of the human anecdotes which cluster about the personages whose memories are in one way or another connected with Westminster Abbey.

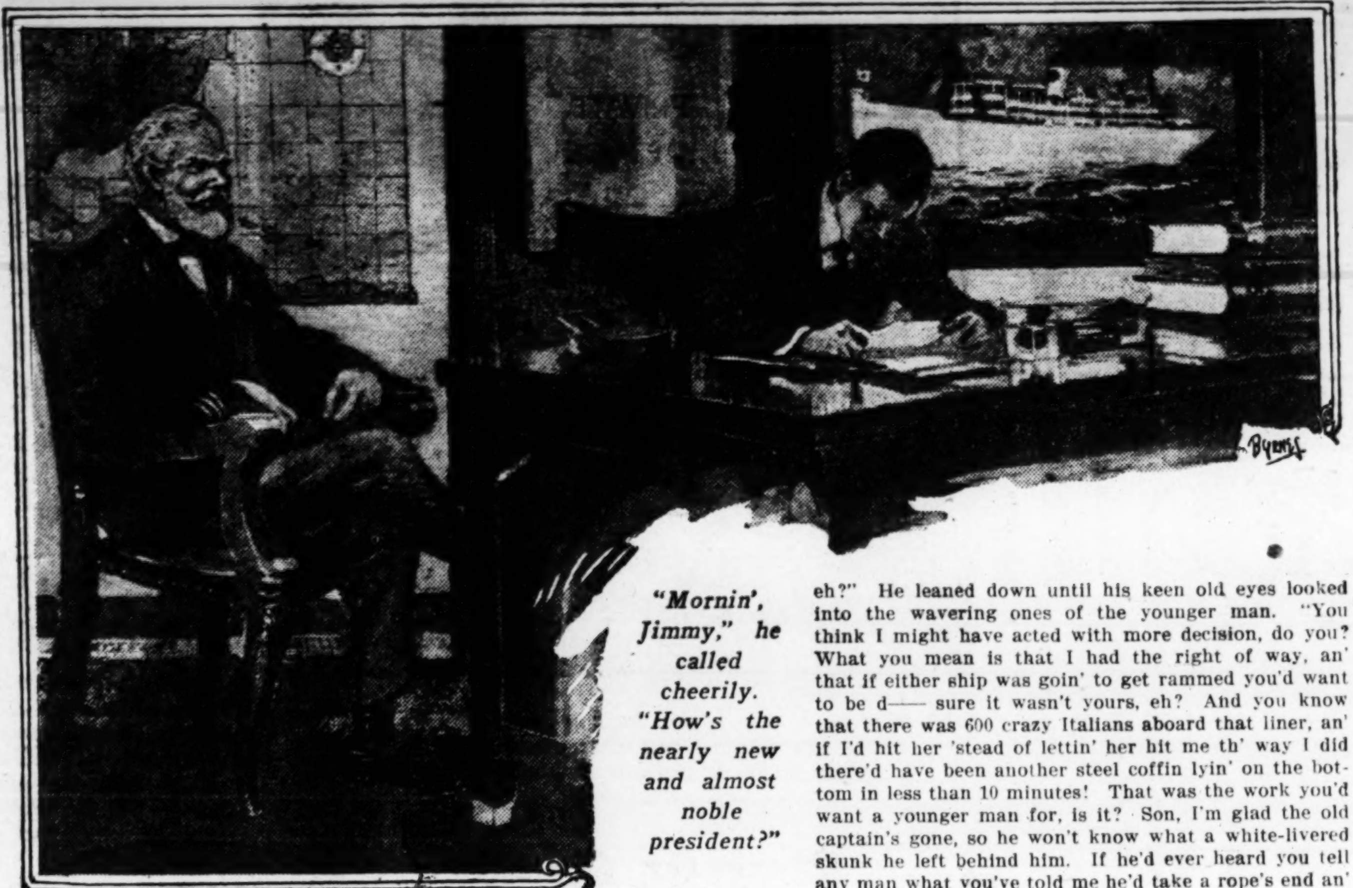
By CAMPBELL MacCULLOCH



"Mornin', Jimmy," he called cheerily. "How's the nearly new and almost noble president?"

CAPT. BEN FARISH walked briskly into the luxurious private office of the Blue Ball Line, slapped his old blue cap upon the polished mahogany desk, dragged up one of the massive chairs, and sat down.

"Mornin', Jimmy," he called cheerily. "How's the nearly new and almost noble president?"

Young James Prescott Rothwell did not raise his eyes, but a pink tint of annoyance stole over his face as he bent over the letters he was signing.

"Good morning, Capt. Farish," he replied evenly. "I'll be with you in a moment."

The older man, 65, keen-eyed and as tough as an ash oar, started, puzzled.

"Capt. Farish?" he repeated inquiringly. "What's the matter with 'Uncle Ben,' Jimmy?"

The young man did not reply, nor did he look up, but calmly continued inscribing his name just above the magic typewritten word, "President," at the bottom of each sheet. Finally he stuck the elaborate pen between his teeth, seized a blotter, and with great care absorbed the superfluous ink from each sheet. Capt. Farish looked puzzled, but shrugged his shoulders and glanced with an admiring eye about the luxurious appointments of the room—at the handsome paintings upon the brown-burlapped walls, at the thick, soft rug that covered the parquet floors, at the massive furniture—and gradually a grin stole over his good-humored and weatherbeaten features.

"Wonder how your old dad would have liked this?" he murmured, half to himself. "Not much like the old place down on South street. By hokey, when I think of that old place down there and the way it used to smell, I wonder how your old man stood it, Jim. Do you know, I got the shippin' clerk to put the captain's old desk—the one with the three legs and the piece of board nailed on where the other ought to have been—away for me? Thought maybe you'd like to have it up at the house." He paused, but the younger man, with set features, did not reply, and the captain rambled on.

"I mind well how that old desk come to get the leg knocked off it. There was a skipper by the name o' Hansen, a big whale of a man, that come in there one day an' told your old dad that th' Laura had fouled him in the channel and carried away a quarter boat from his schooner, and he wanted $40 then and there, and no waitin'. When the old man told him to go to blazes, the Swede slapped his face, and your dad proceeded to clean house with the fellow. The first blow that was struck caught that Swede under the jaw and knocked him 15 feet. He hit the desk, and bein' a big man, cracked the leg off as clean as if you'd sawed it."

Capt. Farish laughed silently, with great enjoyment, and the young man pushed the letters away from him, looked up quickly and leaned back in his great swing chair.

"Capt. Farish," he said slowly, "I sent for you to tell you that the Blue Ball Line will not require your services after the present down trip. Your salary will continue until the end of the year, however. When you reach Martinez you will turn the Acantha over to Capt. Bennington, who will be awaiting you there I have no doubt you will be glad of the rest after your long years of service."

For some moments the old man stared at young Mr. Rothwell as if unable to believe his senses, but seeing no sign of humor on that coldly precise face before him, he turned slowly red beneath the years of weather stain.

"Do you mean that, Jimmy?" he said slowly and with some difficulty. "You're goin' to give Pete Bennington my ship? Why, he's only a kid. They just gave him his master's ticket last year!"

President Rothwell fixed his visitor with hard eyes. "I mean it, of course," he said crisply. "I'm not in the habit of talking idly. You're getting old, captain," he went on a bit more gently, "and I feel we need younger blood in the line. We find there's a number of older men who are not efficient, and it is my desire to weed them out gradually, replacing them with men who are of fewer years. It is the policy of the line hereafter that no man over 45 shall be in a position of trust." He paused again and glanced out of the window with a certain superciliousness.

"Too much caution has a bad effect upon dividends, captain. We'll announce that you wish to retire and have handed in your resignation."

The old man sprang up and swept his cap from the desk. Then he leaned forward with blazing eyes.

"Because that dago liner from the Mediterranean ripped our midship plates and laid the old boat up two trips last month?" he demanded suddenly.

The younger man pursed his lips until they formed a thin line, and wrinkled his brows, but he made no answer.

"Answer me, Jimmy Rothwell!" exclaimed the old captain, with a smash of his hard fist upon the desk.

"We feel that occasionally a commander might act with more decision than has sometimes been shown," the new president began, when the irate old man interrupted him with a savage gesture. In an instant he was standing over the immaculate young gentleman, whose face had turned pale.

"You do feel that, eh?" the captain exploded. "Jimmy, I come pretty near bringin' you up, after your ma died gettin' you into this here world. That was on the old Laura, and your dad wouldn't look at you for two year or more. If it hadn't been that I nursed you, you'd have starved for the weak little brat you was." He paused and breathed heavily, and then his voice took a lower note.

"You know me. You know I was mate with Capt. Bill on the first voyage he made when he'd saved enough to buy the old schooner, and I was mate with him when he brought your mother aboard for the first time, and we went off down among the islands. I was standin' outside the cabin when you yelped for the first time, an' I never left your dad until he laid the Laura up, when he started the Blue Ball, an' gave me my first ship. That was 20 years ago, Mr. James Prescott Rothwell, and I never calculated to leave his boy, that is, so long as that boy stayed human," he finished abruptly, with a steely note in his rough voice.

James Rothwell half started up from his chair.

"I will not permit," he began stridently, but the old man cut him short with a roar.

"Shut up!" he cried. "You won't permit! You, that I've whaled across my knee more times than I can remember." He laughed hoarsely. "You won't permit, eh?" He leaned down until his keen old eyes looked into the wavering ones of the younger man. "You think I might have acted with more decision, do you? What you mean is that I had the right of way, an' that if either ship was goin' to get rammed you'd want to be d—— sure it wasn't yours, eh? And you know that there was 600 crazy Italians aboard that liner, an' if I'd hit her 'stead of lettin' her hit me th' way I did there'd have been another steel coffin lyin' on the bottom in less than 10 minutes! That was the work you'd want a younger man for, is it? Son, I'm glad the old captain's gone, so he won't know what a white-livered skunk he left behind him. If he'd ever heard you tell any man what you've told me he'd take a rope's end an' teach you some sea manners that somehow has sloughed off while you've been livin' ashore, an' I'm not at all sure that he wouldn't want me to do it for him."

The president of the Blue Ball Line glanced up in quick fright, for across the gap of years came the sudden memory of the heavy, tarry hand that had inculcated morals and discipline on the old schooner. He quickly and surreptitiously jabbed the push button that was set in the edge of the shining desk. The old man saw it and laughed contemptuously.

"Don't be afraid—now," he said, turning away and shouldering the immaculate secretary out of his way as he went. At the door he paused and looked back.

"Bennington can have her, an' act with the kind of decision you an' your breed want!" he snapped savagely, and whipped the door to after him with a jar that shook the steel-framed building. As he neared the front door, Nielson, the traffic manager of the line, called to him.

"Just a moment, captain!" he cried, and the old fellow turned back. "Mr. Rothwell's going down with you tonight. But I suppose he told you. He's going down to get Mrs. R. and the boy. They'll have A3 on the promenade deck, just aft of your cabin. Thought I'd let you know so you could look after them. The lady won't travel with any other skipper, you know."

He laughed genially, and Capt. Farish clenched his hands in the emotion that possessed him. For a moment he stood fighting down his feelings.

"She'll have to after this," he said with an effort. "I'm through after this trip, Nielson. Bennington brings the Acantha back." Before the manager could frame a reply he was gone.

He ran up the gang plank to his ship like a boy and went at once to his cabin. The steward came running in answer to his ring.

"Ask Mr. Groome to step here," he said.

When the first officer entered, Capt. Farish was pulling off his coat.

"Sit down, Tom," he said shortly. "You'll be interested to hear that I'm through after this trip. I'm telling you because they're givin' the old tub to Pete Bennington, who's just about as fit to run her as he is a grindstone. He's waitin' down at Martinez for her now. She ought to go to Harry Murdock, on the Aldibran, and that would give you the Azalia, but the young fool gets her."

The other stared in amazement.

"But why, skipper?" he asked, wide-eyed, and the old man whirled on him with cruel agony in his eyes.

"Because I didn't send that infernal Pietro Marini to Davy Jones when she scraped us off the cape, I suppose," he snapped. "At least that's what young Jimmy
